Administration Will Try to Regain Control of Bill Today.

Roll Calls Planned On 3 Amendments

'Raiders' Rally Support; Hopkins Protests Relief Attack.

By Robert C. Albright.

Administration leadership yesterday battled a three-bloc alignment of House members for control of the $1,500,000,000 relief bill, following an earmarking raid leaders claimed would throw 600,000 off relief.

An attempt to free the $505,000,000 clinched for special projects on Tuesday will be made when the House calls up the measure today. Roll call ballots will be forced on each of the earmarking amendments.

This strategy was advised at a leadership conference yesterday pivoting around the militant figure of Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator.

Hopkins told the group work relief rolls would be cut to 1,100,000 if funds set aside for PWA, flood control, highways and water conservation projects are allowed to remain in the bill.

"These amendments practically destroy what we thought was a relief bill," Majority Leader Sam Rayburn told reporters, following the conference. "If they carry, it will mean the relief problem hasn't been solved for next year. Where would we get the money for real relief?"

"Will Not Interfere."

Leaders of the House blocs which successfully earmarked away one-third of Hopkins' $1,500,000,000 on Tuesday retorted with a letter to members congratulating them on the "success" of their drive, and bidding them to resist Administration "pressure."

The letters were signed by Representative Joe Starnes, of Alabama, sponsor of the $45,000,000 flood control earmarking; Representative Wilburn Cartwright, of Oklahoma, who earmarked $150,000,000 for roads, and Representative Alfred F. Beiter, of New York, who led the fight for $300,000,000 for PWA.

"The earmarking of some $500,000,000 of this bill will not in any way interfere with the relief program," said the letter from Starnes, Cartwright and Beiter.

"We are not depriving any needy person of relief, as our opponents would have us believe. Ours is a program of protection and relief. If additional funds are needed for relief in January the Congress can take remedial action."

The leadership attempt to reverse the amendments by three separate roll call votes today was devised in the presence of Hopkins, in Majority Leader Rayburn's office.

Roll Calls on Earmarking.

The roll calls will come today on the $45,000,000 earmarking for flood control, and the additional $10,000,000 for ponds in the Great Plains; the $150,000,000 for highways, and the $300,000,000 for PWA.

A fourth roll call may be ordered on a Republican motion to recommit the bill; and a fifth, on final passage of the measure.

Allowing for special allotments to Resettlement Administration and other agencies, he had counted on the bill to provide work for an average monthly relief load of 1,700,000.

He told members he already planned to drop 500,000,000 under

'Fixers' Taboo With Marquis Caught Speeding; Ready to Pay

By Scott Hart.

The Marquis de Veryac, tailored to a tailor's dream, fingered the Traffic Court summons with the quick, light touch that he has placed on all those exotic flowers he has purchased here and, raising his hands and well-kept eyebrows simultaneously, said in a nasal burst:

"It's nothing . . . ooh, nothing at all!"

"It's nothing," repeated the marquis . . . "$10, perhaps? . . . But I did violate the regulations. . . . I was speeding a trifle; not much, you know . . . I wasn't going stupidly fast, but I violated the regulations . . . and now $10? . . . ooh, nothing!"

Late yesterday afternoon he was relaxing under his shower bath, but came out within ten minutes, punctually as he had promised, to tell of his reactions to arrest. And in the recitation, given near the vase, the marquis never once said, "Zooks," or "I'll call a Congressman," or "I know a man who can get me out of this."

His eyes were animated. His hands were never still. His speech was the animation of France. Only his well-shod feet were still. This was noticeable because all else of the marquis was extreme emotion and movement. It was

Boys' School Scene of Unsolved Murder 3 Years Ago.

By the Associated Press.

Greenfield, Mass., May 26.—Accused by one of his former colleagues, Thomas E. Elder, retired dean of the Mount Hermon School for Boys, was en route to this city tonight under arrest on a charge of "assault with intent to murder."

F. Allan Norton, former cashier at the school, told police that a man he identified as Elder accosted him with a shotgun here late last night. Elder denied this in a statement to newspapermen.

The Mount Hermon School was the scene of an unsolved murder less than three years ago. Dr. Elliot Speer, 36-year-old headmaster, was slain by a shotgun blast fired through the window of his study, but both the identity of the murderer and the location of the murder gun have remained an outstanding New England mystery.

Waives Examination.

Arrested late today at his Alton (N. H.) home, the 60-year-old Elder waived examination and was taken at once by two Massachusetts State detectives to Holden, Mass., where one of the four main State police barracks is situated. Elder told newspapermen he had spent last night in Keene, N. H., some 40 miles from Greenfield. He said he had retired early because of a heart condition, which caused him to tire easily.

Capt. John F. Stokes, chief of Massachusetts detectives, who had ordered a search for Elder as soon as he heard Norton's statement, said the latter told him he was confronted outside the garage of his Greenfield home.

Stokes said Norton declared that Elder stepped from the shadows beside the garage, pulled a shotgun from under his coat and said: "Norton, I want to see you."

Norton related that he fled into his house and notified police and that meanwhile the man who accosted him fled.

Elder returned to his home today, saying that he had been in Brattleboro, Vt., yesterday afternoon and had spent the night in a Keene, N. H., hotel.

Daniel E. O'Neil, manager of the hotel, said Mr. and Mrs. Elder registered between 6 and 7 o'clock last night and left a call for 7 o'clock this morning.

Son of Virginian.

Elder told newspapermen he had breakfast after arising at 7 and set out for Alton soon afterward. He said he had not left his room during the night.

A short time after Elder's conversation with newspapermen, Ralph Coswell, New Hampshire State investigator, and John Breen, an assistant, arrived at the Elder home. They were joined during the afternoon by Lieut. Joseph Ferrari and Sergt. Joseph Canavan, of the Massachusetts police, bearing a warrant obtained in Greenfield Court. Elder, with the advice of counsel, waived extradition, and was brought back to Massachusetts.

Elder, son of a country doctor of Hollydale, Va., spent most of his life at the Mount Hermon school. He first came there as a student in 1903, worked his way through and was graduated from the Northfield Institute in 1907.

He was appointed head of the school in 1926 by Dr. Speer's predecessor, Headmaster Henry F. Cutler.

Dr. Speer's death came on the eve of the opening of the fall term of the school in 1934. He was seated alone in his study when suddenly his mysterious assailant fired a shotgun blast through the open window

80,000 Steel Workers Strike, Crippling 3 Big Independents; Ford Men Beat Up Organizers

C. I. O. Leaders Slugged, Driven Off in Attempt to Spread Handbills.

16 Injured in Riot At Michigan Plant

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, May 26.—Ford Motor Co. employes with swinging fists repulsed the first organizing move of the United Automobile Workers at the Ford Rouge plant in suburban Dearborn today, beating and chasing from company property four union officials.

After 15 minutes of hand-to-hand fighting, unionists seeking to distribute union literature under a permit of the Dearborn City Council were dispersed. They continued distributing leaflets at street intersections within a radius of a mile of the plant.

The union listed 16 persons, including 7 women, as injured in the fracas.

Investgiations by the National Labor Relations Board and Duncan C. McCrea, Wayne County prosecutor, were begun tonight.

The union announced the filing with the N. L. R. B. of a complaint charging the Ford company with coercion, intimidation and interfering with the workers' "constitutional right to organize," without mentioning this afternoon's disturbance.

Frankensteen Badly Hurt.

Richard T. Frankensteen, who is directing the union campaign to organize Ford workers, and Walter Reuther, president of the West Side U. A. W. A. local, were especial targets.

Nursing severe cuts and bruises about the face, after he was knocked down a dozen times, Frankensteen said: "If Mr. Ford thinks this will stop us, he's got another think coming. We'll go back there with enough men to lick him at his own game."

With J. J. Kennedy and Robert Cantor, organizers, Frankensteen and Reuther climbed an overpass at gate 4 of the Rouge plant to direct distribution of union leaflets as work shifts changed in the industrial unit where nearly 90,000 are employed.

About 50 men, some in work clothes, were loitering on the bridge above some street car tracks. One told the union men, "You will have to get off here."

Reuther replied, "We're not doing anything."

Then a dozen men overpowered them, knocked Frankensteen down and rushed them down the stairs to the tracks.

"Worst Licking."

Frankensteen said later, "it was the worst licking I've ever taken."

The entire group of Ford men followed them to the ground, and chased them along the tracks. Frankensteen, knocked down repeatedly, would get to his feet and renew the fight. Reuther and the others were less badly battered.

Women members of the U. A. W. A. "emergency brigade" wearing green berets and arm bands and carrying bundles of leaflets entitled "Unionism, not Fordism," arrived on street cars, only to be pushed back on the same cars by men guarding the loading platforms.

Harry H. Bennett, Ford personnel director, said the men who attacked the organizers were workmen awaiting the change in shifts.

Reuther, his face bloody, attributed the attack to members of the Ford service department which polices the huge plant.

Reuther said, "Before the U. A. W. A. gets through with Harry Bennett and Ford's service department Dearborn will be a part of the United States and the workers will be able to enjoy their constitutional rights."

The women forced back onto the cars alighted at nearby stops and Republic, Youngstown and Inland Plants Are Affected.

Pickets Barricade Entrances to Mills

By the Associated Press.

Youngstown, Ohio, May 26.—A steel strike involving 80,000 workers went into effect tonight at 11 o'clock in five plants of three major independent steel producers in five States. The strike was called by the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, affiliated with the C. I. O., in an effort to obtain signed bargaining contracts which had been refused by the independents affected.

Philip Murray, John Lewis' lieutenant in the steel industry, ordered the great walkout to take effect with the changing of shifts in Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, Illinois and Indiana plants of the Republic Steel Corporation, Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., and Inland Steel Corporation.

As the strike went into effect, in Chicago, John V. Rife, a district director of the organizing committee, and 20 pickets outside the South Chicago plant of the Republic Steel Corporation were arrested after a brush with police.

To Have 8,000 Pickets.

Union sound trucks cruised through industrial areas with loud speaker equipment carrying word of the scheduled strike and notifying members of different locals where to report for picket assignments.

Canteens to serve pickets with coffee and doughnuts were set up in union halls near the mills.

John Mayo, abregional S. W. O. C. director, said the union would have 8,000 or more pickets operating in the district, 2,000 on each of four shifts of six hours each.

Observers estimated 500 men had assembled before five entrances to Republic's nearby Warren, Ohio, unit, where between 5,500 and 6,000 are employed.

They utilized railroad ties found in the vicinity to erect barriers approximately 5 feet high before each entrance.

"We'll shut this mill down tighter than a drum," declared Gus Hall, S. W. O. C. field representative, "and we'll keep it down until a contract is signed."

Hall asserted the barricades were erected "to prevent men who finished work at 3 p. m. from returning to the plant."

Plans Peaceful Strike.

Company guards watched the pickets from within the entrances. They remained on the concern's property.

The decision to call the Nation's most far-reaching steel strike in nearly 20 years was reached at a conference here of S. W. O. C. delegates from the five States.

Murray, head of the organization which won an agreement from United States Steel Corporation, but met difficulty in its effort to obtain signed contracts from the independents, said:

"It is the purpose of our organization to conduct the strike peacefully and in a law-abiding way.

"We were advised by delegates, particularly those of Republic Steel Corporation, that stores of munitions are located at each of the plants, including machine guns.

"We are having this brought to the attention of State officials and the proper agencies of the Federal Government. The day of gunmen is ended."

5 Pastors Jailed; Goebbels Plans Catholic Attack

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, May 26.—The Nazi government, embroiled with both Catholics and Protestants in disputes which appeared tonight heading toward a climax, will carry its argument to the people Friday night.

Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, fiery propaganda chief of the Nazi regime, will deliver a speech in which it was announced he would aim his oratorical guns primarily at George Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago.

At the same time, the fight of Protestant confessional churchmen against Nazi domination entered a new, acute phase with the imprisonment by the Gestapo (state secret police) of all five members of the executive committee of the Confessional's Provisional Church Government.

The five pastors, it was disclosed, were taken into custody last night, but neither their names nor their whereabouts, whether in concentration camp or preliminary custody, were revealed.

The present membership of the committee could not be determined officially because the personnel changes frequently and church sources could be arrested if they gave the names of the imprisoned pastors.

3 Representatives Plead for Second Stay for Jordon

Representatives Palmisano, of Maryland; Bigelow, of Ohio, and Bates, of Massachusetts, called at the Department of Justice yesterday to urge that Thomas Jordon, convicted killer, not be electrocuted at the District Jail June 14.

They conferred at length with Daniel M. Lyons, Federal pardon attorney, whose investigation of the Jordon case already has brought a 30-day postponement of execution.

The Representatives were members of a special "crime sub-committee" appointed by the House District Committee to inquire into the case.

British Minister Favors Bribery In Arms Sales

A. Duff Cooper Defends Corrupt Practice as Business.

By the United Press.

Copyright, 1937, by the United Press.

London, May 26.—Minister of War A. Duff Cooper, who is known as the "Enfant Terrible" of the cabinet, tonight startled the House of Commons by bluntly defending bribery in connection with the sale of British armaments.

"I am prepared to admit," the 47-year-old war minister said, "that a prima facie case has been made out regarding various nefarious practices—even that bribes have been paid by British firms.

"A British firm might not be able to obtain a contract—say in Ruritania—unless it paid a substantial commission to corrupt statesmen. This contract might give employment to the people of this country.

British Bullets Kill Britons.

"We have been told that British soldiers have been killed by British bullets. It could make little difference to the men themselves where the bullets were made."

Duff Cooper has been under attack recently for his failure to increase the pace of enlistment in Britain's armed forces.

It has been reported that when Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin resigns and is succeeded by Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain, only a short time will elapse before Duff Cooper resigns from the cabinet.

The war minister's defense of armaments bribery followed an attack by Philip John Noel-Baker, Laborite, on the government's policy of private arms manufacture and traffic in arms.

Italian Arms in India.

"The present war on the northwest frontier of India is being fought with a surplus of arms, some supplied by Premier Benito Mussolii of Italy, but mostly by private traders throughout the world," he charged.

"Our government prefers to wink at that evil."

He recalled his own experience during the two years he was associated with the disarmament conference at Geneva.

"It was a bitter experience which I hope I shall never have again. I saw the British government obstruct all constructive proposals put before them, but on no proposals were they so obstructive as those dealing with the private manufacture of arms."

Daylight-Saving Hearing Deferred; Sponsor Is Absent

The Sacks daylight-saving time bill received another setback yesterday when neither a quorum nor its author appeared at a scheduled meeting of the House District Committee.

As the bill now goes over until next Wednesday, its chance of passage at this session is believed diminishing because of the opposition and the lateness of the season.

Representative Mary T. Norton (Democrat), of New Jersey, chairman of the committee, said she believed a majority of Washingtonians are opposed to the bill.

Mrs. Lindbergh To Leave Clinic Within Two Days

London, May 26 (AP).—Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh was reported today to have made such satisfactory progress after the birth of her third son two weeks ago that she will be able to leave the London Clinic within the next two days.

At the Lindberghs' country home, Longbarn, near Weald, in Kent, a second cot was placed in the nursery alongside that used by their 4-year-old son, Jon.

It was expected that Mrs. Lindbergh and her blue-eyed baby son would be taken to Longbarn where she and her husband and Jon have lived in seclusion since their dramatic departure from the United States 18 months after the conviction of Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the kidnap-slaying of their eldest son.

Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, Mrs. Dwight Morrow, was one of the visitors yesterday to the seventh floor suite taken in the name of "Mrs. Charles" at the smart West End clinic.

Rebels Attack French Plane Leaving Bilbao

Sky Ferry Is Forced Down by Fascist Aviators; Pilot Wounded.

By the Associated Press.

Bilbao, Spain, May 26.—Seven insurgent war planes forced down a French transport plane in a hail of machine-gun bullets near here today and wounded a Spanish passenger and Jean Gally, veteran French pilot of the Biarritz-Bilbao Air Line.

The insurgent air fleet, surrounding the "Air Pyrenees" plane near Sopelana, 13 miles north of Bilbao, forced Gally to "pancake" his liner on a strip of sandy soil behind the government lines.

Gally and the wounded passenger were rushed by automobile to the besieged Basque capital for treatment. The pilot, suffering head wounds, immediately underwent an operation, but was expected to recover.

The other three passengers, including one woman, Antonia Larranga, were unhurt. The plane, however, was badly damaged both by the forced landing and by the barrage of bullets.

One of the uninjured passengers, Amandro Lopez, 35, said the insurgent attackers appeared just as the French transport headed the mouth of the Nervion Rivor, Bilbao's outlet to the sea, and broke formation to surround the plane, apparently intending to convoy her to San Sebastian as a prisoner.

The war-wise French pilot, formerly an army flier, dodged away successfully, but the insurgents quickly opened fire.

"Our pilot immediately began to descend," Lopez said. "His controls failed to work properly and we landed with a smash. The wheels

Alice Kocher, 3, Disappears From Her Home on 32d Street.

A pretty 3-year-old deaf and dumb girl last night was the object of search by more than 500 men after she mysteriously disappeared from her home at 2507 Thirty-second street southeast.

Nearly 100 policemen, members of the fire rescue squad, 150 CCC youths, Boy Scouts and hundreds of neighbors scoured the hills south of Pennsylvania and overlooking the Eastern Branch and failed to find little Alice Kocher.

The child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Kocher, missed the girl about 7 p. m. from the yard where she was playing. She was not found with neighbors, and police were notified.

A systematic search was instituted. Near the Kocher home is a dense woodland of about 30 acres. When the CCC boys arrived they deployed through the woods under direction of Lieut. W. E. Persons and twice covered the woods.

The girl's mother said that because of her affliction she could not talk, but she could scream loud enough to be heard.

While the CCC group was combing the woods, the fire rescue squad lighting the scene with two 1,000-watt lights on their truck and another on a 1,000-foot cable, police were checking every house in the area and looking under porches and into every possible cranny.

At midnight, Lieut. Emil Desch, of the Eleventh Precinct, declared it would be impossible for the child to have been in the wooded area and not have been found, so thorough had been the search.

The hunt was abandoned by the CCC group, to return at daylight and take it up again.

Philatelists Swarm Annapolis For Sale of New Navy Stamp

Annapolis, Md., May 26.—The routine of this "ancient city" was shattered today as philatelists swarmed through the postoffice to purchase the new 5-cent stamp issued by the Postoffice Department.

They came by train, automobile and airplane and milled about the postoffice from 7 a. m. until midnight, stamping "first covers" and having them signed by Postmaster William A. Strohm, Gov. Harry W. Nice, Rear Admiral David Foote Sellers, superintendent of the Naval Academy, and other officials. Some had their stamps canceled on the battleship Wyoming, anchored off the academy.

The Postoffice Department chose this city to make the 5-cent issue available to the public because it is the seat of the Naval Academy. The stamp carries the seal of the academy as its central design, flanked by two midshipmen, one in the uniform of the old Navy, and the other wearing present-day garb.

Roy M. North, acting Third Assistant Postmaster General, and Strohm gave the first official sheet of the stamps to Admiral Sellers in the lobby of the postoffice. Immediately the collectors clamored for the admiral's signature on their covers. After signing a number of them he returned to the academy.

One group of covers went to the White House for the collections of President and Mrs. Roosevelt. Others were mailed to practically every country in the world. Requests for the stamps were received from motion picture stars, princes, earls, dukes and celebrities in every walk of life. More than 200,000 stamps were canceled during the day, the postmaster reported.

The rush reached its peak about 8 a. m. and caused Police Commissioner Thomas G. Basil to assign two patrolmen to traffic duty. Outside the postoffice, dealers in "first covers" decorated by various cachets did a rushing business.

On the second floor of the postoffice a group of stamp dealers spent the day putting stamps on envelopes and mailing them to clients in all parts of the world.

The contagion of the rush was catching and before noon many local residents were purchasing the stamps. Lines formed in front of all stamp windows, while harried clerks dealt out stamps by the sheet. The largest single sale was for $750 to a dealer.

5 Killed, 2 Injured In Oil Truck Fire

Catskill, N. Y., May 26 (AP).—Five men lost their lives and two others were severely burned when fire destroyed an oil-laden truck and a coupe after a head-on collision near West Coxsackie today.

Killed instantly were Carl Bachofsky 18, Boston; Jack Pantor, 21, of Lynn, Mass.; Israel Goldstein, 18, of Revere, Mass., and Leonard Fleming, 40, Englewood, N. J.; Harold Bloom, 20, or Dorchester, Mass., died later in a hospital here.

Missing Soviet Plane Lands Safely Near Pole With Supplies for Four Explorer-Scientists

Moscow, May 26 (AP).—The third supply plane of the Soviet Union's North Pole expedition, missing since early today, was reported late tonight to have landed safely somewhere near the Pole. Prof. Otto J. Schmidt, leader of the expedition, radioed that "apparently" the plane, piloted by I. P. Mazuruk, had come down "satisfactorily."

Mazuruk's plane was one of three which took off late Tuesday night from the Rudolf Island base, carrying a year's supplies for the party of four who are to remain on the ice near the Pole for a year. Rudolf Island is about 560 miles from the Pole.

Pilot Vassily Molokoff brought his heavily loaded plane down at the camp established by the advance party of 13 who flew to the neighborhood of the Pole May 21. The second plane, piloted by A. D. Alexanieff, came down safely about 13 miles beyond the Pole.

The three ships had been grounded at Rudolf Island since Saturday by fogs and a Polar blizzard. They took off at 11 p. m. last night (about 2 p. m. E. S. T.) loaded with condensed food and scientific apparatus.

The ice field on which the camp is located has been drifting at a rate of about 12½ miles a day, but was believed to be within about 50 miles of the Pole.

First Polar Weather.

Moscow, May 26 (AP).—Today's North Pole weather:

Completely overcast, high clouds, visibility about 6 miles, temperature 8.6 Fahrenheit, three-point wind northeast from Moscow.

Weather Brings Talk of Earlier Adjournment

Court Bill Is Main Hurdle for Congress; Wage-Hour Measure Believed Set.

By Sidney Olson.

In line with immemorial tradition, the members of Congress, sweltering freely yesterday in the first stunning impact of Washington's hot humidity, broke out at once in a rash of white suits and early adjournment talk.

A Senate Democratic leader, who earlier predicted adjournment by August 15, upped his guess to August 1 yesterday. A Senate Republican leader stuck to his previous prediction of August 10. Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, known as a close friend of the President, chose "the middle of August" for his prediction.

The big question mark is still the President's court reorganization bill, due to go on the Senate calendar next week in company with an adverse report now being drafted by a sub-committee headed by Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah.

Wage-Hour Bill Set.

The Black-Connery wage hour bill, on which joint hearings will begin Tuesday with Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson the first witness, is set for fairly swift passage, according to indications yesterday. Numerous Senators and Representatives agreed it could and would be expedited, despite expected difficulties in securing agreement on a score of controversial points in the measure. After two weeks' hearings the bill will be "slammed to passage" in the House, as one member put it yesterday, while the Senate begins to talk over the court bill.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, majority leader of the upper house, rose in the Senate yesterday to ask all standing committees to discharge pending bills for prompt floor disposal.

Besides the court reorganization bill and the wage-hour act, only two other large-scale measures confront Congress. These are the dormant but far from dead governmental reorganization bills and the $1,500,000,000 work-relief bill, now the subject of a House struggle.

Court Bill Seen Dead.

The Government reorganization measures are four bills as yet unintroduced which are slated to receive Administration pressure very soon, according to leaders. Parts of these bills, such as transfer of much of the power of the General Accounting Office to the Treasury and reorganization under 12 Government departments of all the quasi-judicial commissions now existent, are highly controversial and will be fought lustily in both houses.

A number of opposition Senators expressed the view yesterday, in discussing adjournment, that the court bill is actually very dead, and that the President really has abandoned it. Their reasoning is that the President, unwilling to admit defeat, will appear to insist on his no-compromise attitude, but that privately word will be passed around to the bill's proponents not to push it.

Several Administration Senators said yesterday, however, the test will come when the bill arrives on the calendar, and that all predictions until then are valueless.

Rail Head Opposes Trustee Proposal

By the Associated Press.

A Senate investigator proposed yesterday that securities of Eastern railroads of the Van Sweringen system be deposited with a trustee pending elimination of holding company control. The proposal was promptly opposed by Robert R. Young, New Yorker, who with two associates recently acquired control of Alleghany Corporation, top holding company of the Van Sweringen rail and industrial empire.

He contended that the holding company "evil" cannot exist under laws passed by the Roosevelt Administration.

Quezon Stays in Hotel With Affliction of Eye

New York, May 26 (AP).—Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippine Commonwealth, was confined to his Waldorf-Astoria Hotel today suffering from a recurrence of an eye ailment which caused him to cancel all engagements.

A member of the Philippine delegation said that President Quezon probably would be confined for "several days." The illness was described as "not serious."

20,000 WPA Workers To Join Protest Strike

New York, May 26 (AP).—The City Projects Council predicted tonight between 20,000 and 25,000 WPA workers would stop work tomorrow in a one-day demonstration against proposed cuts in the Federal relief program.

Willis Morgan, president of the council, and spokesman for the strike strategy committee of the Workers' Alliance, said an estimated 1,000,000 WPA workers would lose their jobs under the reduced program.

Roosevelt's Proposed Labor Legislation Appeals to Humanitarian Side Despite Legal Tangle.

By Franklyn Waltman

THERE are three ways to look at President Roosevelt's latest program to improve by legislative fiat the economic condition of American workers. One is from the humanitarian viewpoint. The others are from the economic and the legal viewpoints.

WALTMAN.

Only the black of heart would raise objections on humanitarian grounds to what the President is seeking to do. No one favors exploitation of children. Every man wants the best for his own children and concedes the same objective to be the right of the children of all other men. Rapidly, despite the blocking of Nation-wide legislation on the subject, child labor is being eradicated from America and the ideal of at least a grammar school education for every child is becoming a reality.

So the provisions for the abolition of child labor in the Black-Connery bill should win universal approval. They do not contain the objections raised against the ill-fated child labor amendment. They are reasonable, and they do not apply, as legislation enacted under the proposed amendment might, to the work of children on their fathers' farms.

Nor is there any substantial hostility to ending sweatshop hours and wages. The sum of $15 or $16 a week is a pitifully small amount to keep body and soul together in these days, even for a single man or woman. It seems an outrageously small sum for the head of a family. And, certainly, every human instinct cries out against men required to work in mines 50 or 60 hours a week, or women forced to bend over machines for such periods.

But, alas, we are not living in Utopia where every humanitarian instinct can be given full rein, but in an economic world controlled by such things as costs, purchasing power, prices and technological developments. Thus, humanitarian motives must be tempered with an eye toward these practicalities, else more damage than good will be done.

This is not meant to apply to the proposed restrictions against child labor. The necessity of preserving children from exploitation in industry outweighs all economic considerations. But it is not an important economic factor. For instance, the 1930 census showed 667,118 children under 16 years of age engaged in gainful occupations, and 469,497 of them—or 70.4 per cent of the total—were engaged in agriculture. Only 68,266 were engaged in the manufacturing and mechanical industries and only 1,184 in enterprises devoted to the extraction of minerals—the most hazardous of occupations.

The provisions against child labor in the NRA codes greatly diminished the totals reported in 1930. Thus the Children's Bureau of the Labor Department found that "in a group of States and cities reporting both in 1929 and 1934 the number of 14 and 15 year old children certificated for employment in manufacturing and mechanical industries dropped from more than 20,000 in 1929 to less than 100 in 1934." With the invalidation of the NRA codes there undoubtedly was some increase in child labor, but it was not believed to have been great, since minimum wage agreements acted as a controlling factor.

The fixing of minimum wages by law in all probability will have a greater effect on the delicate adjustment of the national economic machinery than the outlawing of child labor. The imposition of minimum wages in the neighborhood of $15 or $16 a week should not cause a serious dislocation in industry, but it may react seriously against aged persons or those not up to standards of competency.

In a competitive economy, manufacturers will undertake to offset increased pay rolls with increased efficiency and units of production per worker. Thus the least efficient will be dismissed and their places taken either by machinery or by faster, more competent workers.

Conceivably there are many manufacturers throughout the country who, because of the capital outlay involved, have not the most modern and efficient machinery. They employ more workers than they otherwise would need. Although their labor costs may be higher than some of their competitors', their capital costs are less and thus they are on a competitive basis.

Increase the labor costs—as this program does—along with the annually increasing social security taxes, and the incentive to install more efficient machinery and reduce the number of workers may become compelling. Moreover, such additional labor costs increase the incentive for the development of more efficient machinery, with the emphasis on labor-saving devices. Thus the scheme within a few years may have the effect of reducing opportunities for employment.

In the above we were thinking chiefly about the possible economic effects of a general raising of minimum wages. All that is said there might result also from the proposal to establish a maximum work week, which is left blank in the Black-Connery bill. Economists do not believe that a general 40-hour work week with necessary exceptions, would cause much of an economic dislocation. But if Congress follows the 30-hour maximum work week ideas of Black and Connery, the economic disturbance undoubtedly will be great.

The need of the moment is to raise the standard of living for those regarded as underprivileged. But this never can be done by curtailing production. Living standards will rise as the wealth of the country and its production increases. It is not contemplated by the Black-Connery bill directly to restrict production. But that would be the effect of a 30-hour week. It is true such a limit would create jobs for many now unemployed, but it also would have the effect of increasing prices, and increasing prices is another way of diminishing purchasing power.

Just a word about the legal aspects of the Black-Connery measure. Whether the Supreme Court, in this period of the reorientation of constitutional interpretations, would hold it valid would be anyone's guess. But the measure goes far beyond the child labor act which the court in 1918 declared unconstitutional.

The dissenting remark of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes in that case, quoted by President Roosevelt, could not be applied to this measure, for as Justice Holmes said: "The act does not meddle with anything belonging to the States. They may regulate their internal affairs and their domestic commerce as they like. But when they seek to send their products across the State line they are no longer within their right."

This bill undertakes to regulate purely intrastate production, as well as manufacturing, which enters into the flow of interstate commerce. It could be applied, under its terms, to any producer whose goods do not cross State lines if he, by engaging in the specified substandard labor practices, unfairly competed with a producer engaged in interstate commerce.

Thus, a Baltimore baker of bread, which he sells only within that city, might be subjected to the measure, if the proposed Labor Standards Board determined he possessed an unfair competitive advantage over a large Philadelphia bakery merchandising its product in Baltimore. Thus, actually only the nonmanufacturing enterprises are outside the scope of this bill.

Eckener Pleads To Legislators For Helium Gas

Asks Export Relaxation in Unprecedented Appearance Here.

By the Associated Press.

Dr. Hugo Eckener appealed to Congress yesterday for legislation to save Germany's lighter-than-air transport industry.

In an unprecedented appearance before a Congressional committee, the veteran chief of Germany's Zeppelin operations urged relaxation of this Nation's restrictions on exports of fire-proof helium gas.

Veteran observers recalled no other instance of a foreign citizen asking a Congressional committee to approve legislation affecting his own country.

Eckener told the Senate Military Affairs Committee the burning of the hydrogen-filled dirigible Hindenburg made it clear "that one is unable to shoulder any longer the responsibility of operating airships filled with hydrogen."

"We must change over to the use of safe helium."

Eckener is scheduled to appear before the House Military Committee today.

He conceded today that helium, on which this country holds a virtual monopoly, has less lifting power than hydrogen, but asserted that would not be an insurmountable barrier.

To Test Fabric.

Lakehurst, N. J., May 26 (AP).—New tests of a recently developed gas cell fabric on the airship Hindenburg were promised today by the German experts observing a Department of Commerce inquiry into the airship disaster.

The fabric, about which little is known in this country, will be studied to determine whether the "fluttering" observed on the airship's outer cover might have caused a friction spark by rubbing against the gas cells.

Club to Honor Dead.

Memorial services will feature the luncheon meeting of the Cosmopolitan Club at the Carlton Hotel today. The Rev. Calvert E. Buck, chaplain, will make the memorial oration. Six members of the club have died since the club was founded in 1921. Following the services, flowers will be placed on the graves of former members.

Cincinnati, May 26 (AP).—The American Federation of Labor's executive council decided today to start war against Rebel John L. Lewis immediately on the waterfront and in the automobile industry.

William Green, A. F. of L president, said the council would unite all loyal maritime unions in a new maritime department to combat a growing Lewis movement in shipping centers.

With the council's approval, Arthur Wharton, president of the machinist's union, decided to issue a charter to a small union rival to Lewis' United Automobile Workers in the Chevrolet truck body plant at Indianapolis.

All Crafts Included.

This new machinists' local would take in all crafts employed in the plant. Observers interpreted the move as meaning craft lines would be abandoned while the federation was waging its war on Lewis.

In another move against the C. I. O., the council summoned the battery workers of Philadelphia, the aluminum workers of New Kensington, Pa., and Steve Mance's Georgia Federation of Labor to answer insurrection charges. All three have bolted to the C. I. O.

Green said the aluminum workers had taken with them $27,000 that belonged to the A. F. of L.

The council held a long hearing on charges of unions affiliated with the striking federation motion picture crafts that the International Alliance of State and Theatrical Employes had blocked an agreement between the crafts and the Hollywood producers.

C. I. O. Backer Sues Green.

Chicago, May 26 (U.P.).—Don Stevens, American Federation of Labor organizer assigned to the American Newspaper Guild, announced tonight he would file charges with the National Labor Relations Board against William Green, A. F. of L. president, alleging he was discharged "for union activity."

At a Sunday meeting of the Chicago Newspaper Guild, which he organized, Stevens informed the membership that he favored John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization. The meeting then instructed Chicago delegates to the A. N. G. convention at St. Louis to vote for affiliation with the C. I. O. The vote was 59 to 4.

Self-Defending Jeweler Found Guilty of Attack

Only Few of Ravven's Many Questions Are Answered.

Ezra Ravven, jewelar and antique dealer, was found guilty of an assault charge yesterday by a Police Court jury after one of the oddest trials in the court's history. Sentence was withheld until June 2.

For two days in a packed court room, the elderly Ravven insisted on acting in his own defense on the charge growing out of an alleged attack on Miss Madeline Veach, 2119 H street northwest, a former employe.

Yesterday the Pennsylvania avenue shop-owner, engulfed in a tide of objections from Assistant District Attorney Arthur E. Caldwell, threw up his hands and asked for a recess so that he might acquire an attorney.

Four witnesses took the stand for cross-examination by Ravven and of hundred of questions asked them, the defense got but two answers admitted as evidence. Ravven attempted to prove collusion between the District Attorney's office and Miss Veach, but his questions were thrown out.

In desperation, the accused man called Caldwell to the stand. Caldwell answered only one question.

Assistant District Attorney Karl Kindelberger and David Hart were recalled to the stand by Ravven, but were not permitted to answer any questions because of Caldwell's objections, sustained by Judge McMahon.

An assault charge was preferred after Ravven allegedly struck Miss Veach in his shop when she returned to get a typewriter she had left when she resigned.

Yesterday Ravven had Miss Veach recalled to the stand after she already had testified for nearly two hours Tuesday. His first question was:

"What was your occupation during your existence?"

"Were you an undercover man for the Government during prohibition?" The question was ordered stricken from the record.

Trial was recessed until 1 p. m. when Ravven appeared in court with Attorney Robert H. McNeill, who presented the final argument. The jury deliberated about 40 minutes.

DuPont, Raskob Evidence Studied

New York, May 26 (AP).—Counsel for the Federal Government tonight set out to digest the evidence it presented during the last four weeks in an effort to collect deficiency income taxes totaling $1,643,656 from Pierre S. duPont and John J. Raskob.

At the conclusion of a hearing before Richard L. Disney, of the United States Board of Tax Appeals, the Government's attorney, Mason B. Leming, was given until July 25 to file briefs highspotting the testimony and exhibits.

After studying the Government's briefs, counsel for Raskob and duPont will have until September 10 to file their answers, and the Government then may offer a rebuttal any time prior to October 11.

Hounds to Be Executed For Deer-Chasing Crime

Staunton, Va., May 26 (AP).—Slim and Beauty, two sad-eyed hounds, awaited the executioner's bullets today which were to satisfy the State for their crime of chasing deer on the North River game refuge last November.

The animals were found guilty by a five-man circuit court jury and were sentenced to be shot.

N. H. Clinedinst, the owner whose legal battle for their lives proved fruitless, was given permission by the court to witness the execution.

Lorton Reformatory 50% Overcrowded

Lorton Reformatory contains 50 per cent more prisoners than were provided for under the original plans according to a report issued yesterday by the Board of Public Welfare.

The consequent overcrowding, says the report, is undesirable "from the point of view of health or ventilation."

At New York City, Mrs. Dorothy Legault, of Washington, D. C., knew something had to be done quickly when the stork swooped low over her sister's home. Running to the street, she twisted the handle of a red box on a pole and aid came quickly in the form of many fire trucks and police cars. She explained to the officers and two hours later in a hospital a 7-pound girl was born to her sister. Mrs. Legault was freed in Yorkville court after being arraigned for turning in a false alarm.

Oil Magnate's Funeral Held In Tarrytown

Rockefeller's Burial to Be Today in Cleveland.

Tarrytown, N. Y., May 26 (AP).—The Rockefeller clan gathered about the bier of its dead patriarch with a few close friends today for a half hour funeral service.

In the quiet, cool, hall of the family mansion at Pocantico Hills the last rites of the church were said over the flower-banked coffin that contained the body of John D. Rockefeller, sr., who died at his winter home in Florida Sunday morning at the age of 97.

About 100 mourners sat in the library and dining room on either side of the main hall as the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick and the Rev. Lester P. Bent read the simple service.

The Rev. Mr. Bent, pastor of the Pocantico Hills Union Church, read the eighth verse of the 124th Psalm, the thirteenth and fourteenth verses of the 103d Psalm, and from John 11, 23 and 26.

He read the invocation from the book of common worship prepared by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Miss Dorothea Flexer, contralto soloist of the Riverside Church in New York, sang "Oh, Love That Will Not Let Me Go."

Then Dr. Fosdick, pastor of the Riverside Church, read from the Scriptures and said a prayer. Briefly he mentioned "the creative foresight pioneering courage, high standards of character, consciousness of stewardship," of the dead capitalist-philanthropist.

Miss Flexer sang "Sun of My Soul, Thou Savior Dear," and Dr. Fosdick pronounced the benediction.

Throughout the world, employes of the far-flung Standard Oil empire developed by Mr. Rockefeller paused in their work for a 5-minute tribute.

The great carillon in the Riverside Church, which he built, tolled out the strains of "Ave Maria," "Lead, Kindly Light" and other hymns.

Parkers Deny Plot To Kidnap Wendel

Newark, N. J., May 26 (AP).—The Ellis H. Parkers, father and son, disavowed at the opening of their Federal trial today any connection with or knowledge of the alleged plot to kidnap Paul H. Wendel and placed full blame for the abduction on the three men who already have confessed their guilt.

Repeatedly during his opening address, J. Mercer Davis assailed Wendel and the men who pleaded guilty —Murray Bleefeld, Harry Weiss and Martin Schlossman—and attacek their testimony. "Unimpeachable" evidence would be offered, he said, to support a general denial of the testimony linking the senior Parker, chief of Burlington County detectives, and his son, Ellis, jr., to the conspiracy.

Adele Astaire Gets Role In British Picture

London, May 26 (AP).—Adele Astaire, in private life Lady Charles Cavendish, is coming back to show business—this time, in a British picture. The dancer, who teamed with Fred Astaire, her brother, before Fred became a movie star, will play the lead role in a British film opposite Jack Buchanan, musical comedy star.

Cheers Greet Chinese Envoy Arriving Here

Dr. Wang Says Conditions Generally Improving in His Country.

A delegation of about 100 cheering Washington Chinese greeted the new ambassador to the United States from China yesterday at Union Station, Dr. Chen Ting Wang (pronounced "Wong").

A battery of cameramen and newsreel photographers made the arrival a gala occasion. Flowers in profusion were handed to the ambassador's two pretty daughters, Miss An-Fu Wang, and Miss Joeh Wang.

Dr. Wang said that "conditions in China are rapidly improving, carried upward by the general improvement in world prosperity. The country is getting back on its feet."

He announced that he would hold a formal press conference tomorrow in which he will give out his first official statement to the American people. Informally he expressed a wish that the friendship of the two nations, dating far back into history, would continue. He wished good fortune to America.

Numerous Chinese societies of Washington were represented, and followed the Ambassador's open car to the embassy at 2001 Nineteenth street northwest.

Representing the United States Government at the welcoming ceremonies were Dr. Stanley Hornbeck, chief of the Division of Far Eastern Affairs; Maxwell M. Hamilton, assistant chief of the Division of Far Eastern Affairs, and Dr. M. S. Meyer, of the Foreign Service Division.

The American diplomats, carrying their hats and mopping overheated brows, shook hands with the precise and immaculately tailored Dr. Wang. It was a welcome to an old friend, not a stranger, for Dr. Wang has spent much time in Washington in the past, but never as an ambassador.

Gold Import Sets Record on May 24

By the Associated Press.

The Treasury, reporting the year's heaviest acquisition of gold, continued yesterday its search for an answer to the vexing monetary question—how to check gold inflows from abroad.

A Treasury report showed imports of the yellow metal totaled $32,284,187 on May 24. This was the largest amount received on any day this year, and more than six times the daily average since January 1.

The Treasury's total gold hoard stood at $11,961,875,298. Officials said the stocks, already about half the world's visible supply, probably would reach $12,000,000,000 before June 30.

Navy Copper Need Met by Contracts

Contracts for 1,225,000 pounds of electrolytic copper were awarded yesterday by the Navy Department, at a price of approximately $200,000. Six hundred thousand pounds are intended for the Washington Navy Yard.

Navy officers said that the contracts would take care of all of the Navy's immediate needs for copper. Earlier in the year the department had great difficulty in securing copper and other metals, due to the Walsh-Healey act.

sank into the soft sand and the left wing snapped off.

"The attacking planes continued to machine-gun us. Bullets hammered everywhere about. Our woman passenger fainted and was placed on the plane's floor for protection."

Lopez said the passengers ran for better cover as soon as they had an opportunity. The passengers attributed their escape from death or serious injury to the pilot's skill and the speed of the plane, a maximum of 230 miles an hour.

Planes "German-Made."

Basques declared the insurgent planes were "German-made."

The transport plane, clearly marked with French registry numbers and its name, was engaged in shuttle service between Bilbao and Bayonne, France, near Biarritz. Insurgent Gen. Francisco Franco frequently has warned of his intention to shoot down the air ferry on the grounds that it was an "aerial blockade-runner."

Numerous times Gally has evaded insurgent attackers on his run along the north Spanish coast. The plane was the only fast means of transportation out of Bilbao, partially blockaded by the insurgent fleet.

Funds of 4,100 Injured in War Depend on Suit

A suit that may determine the pension status of some 4,100 disabled emergency officers in the military service during the World War was filed in District Court yesterday when Alfred K. Gilman, of Virginia, whose disability remuneration was drastically cut by the economy act, started action to restore his award to its original figure.

In March, 1933, acting under the provisions of the economy act, President Roosevelt issued regulations describing the manner in which service disability should be ascertained. He "imposed upon disabled emergency officers the duty of establishing by proof not only a particular causative factor in the service to which his disability could be attributed but also obliged him to show in effect that no matter what disability he may have suffered he would not have had the disability if he had not been in the service."

Of the 6,000 disabled emergency officers who were retired under the Tyson-Fitzgerald act, all but 1,500 were cut off the retired list and only 400 have since been reinstated because of compliance with the provisions of the Executive order. Under the challenge of the suit yesterday it was declared the President had no authority under the act to issue such drastic regulations. Thus, it was contended, the Veterans' Bureau should be enjoined from further enforcing the promulgation and should be directed to restore the emergency disabled officers to their erstwhile pension status.

We don't smell it... We don't taste it... But we know it's there!

When gin really mixes...

It dissolves the sugar completely...

Makes friends with the lemon or the lime...

Subtly flatters the soda...

That's our idea of a mixing gin—one you don't taste or smell in the finished drink!

This is the kind of mixed drink Americans have made famous.

Fleischmann's, the original American gin, is distilled especially for the American taste—especially to mix. The flavor formula that makes Fleischmann's Gin mix so perfectly is a closely guarded secret, known only to our "inner circle" and the office safe. But an increasingly large number of Americans know the result—the masterly smoothness of Fleischmann drinks.

Marquis Finds Officers Polite Despite Ticket

French Nobleman Comes From Bath to Tell of Experience.

here, "why such wonderful fellows. Polite . . . ooh . . . Such courtesy . . . I repeat that I had violated the regulations . . .

"But when they stopped me . . . Let's see, on Reno road? . . . I said that I was rushing to an engagement . . . Most obligingly, they told me to keep the engagement and then to return to the station to adjust the violation . . . But that's nothing . . . Is it what you came to inquire about? . . . Why, they treated me splendidly . . ."

The marquis seemed even to caress the summons. He folded it with respect and returned it to a pocket of the dream-tailored coat.

Earlier down in the worldly realities of Traffic Court, a crowd gathered when word got round that a nobleman had become involved with the law. On the books was the name "The Marquis de Veryac, 39, of Honolulu," who had posted $20 of American money at the Eighth Precinct as collateral in a case alleging speeding and passing through a traffic sign. Policemen F. L. Stouffer and C. E. Riley were listed as arresting officers. They marked down his speed as 40 miles an hour. The policemen noted they did not know the man, but that he resided at the Shoreham Hotel. The case went over until Friday.

"Washington, oooh; magnificent . . . I think I grow too fond of it."

"You like Washington, despite this little discommoding experience?" the marquis was asked.

"Nothing, please; belive me . . . nothing . . . $10 did I say? . . . But I violated the regulations, did I not? . . . And such courtesy . . . I came here intending to remain only three days; I've been here . . . a month, is it? Does that not speak of what I think of Washington . . . I think I grow too fond it . . . So fond!"

"Now soon I leave for Honolulu . . . I spend much time out there . . . It is a haven . . . It is heaven . . . I love it there . . ."

Bus Strike Settled In London; 25,500 To Resume Work

London, May 26 (AP)—Settlement of the strike of 25,500 London bus drivers and conductors, which has tied up 5,000 buses since May 1, was announced tonight. The men will return to work Friday.

Announcement of the early termination of the walkout, which has thrown London's gigantic transport system into a snarl during the congested coronation season, came from the minister of labor.

They contended they had to work under such pressure that health was endangered.

Details of the settlement were not immediately made public.

Seeks Divorce

GRACE KANODE VICKERS.

Mrs. Vickers Alleges Cruelty in Suit Against Manufacturer.

Mrs. Grace Kanode Vickers, attractive brunette secretary to Chief Justice Alfred Adams Wheat, of the District Court, yesterday filed suit here against Harry F. Vickers, wealthy Detroit manufacturer, for a limited divorce on the grounds of mental and physical cruelty.

The Vickers were married July 30, 1934, by Justice Peyton Gordon, of District Court. They resided in the Shoreham Hotel, according to the suit, and two days afterward Vickers brought a prior wife, Mrs. Nell M. Vickers, to call at their apartment in Detroit. Acts of alleged cruelty in Detroit, New York City and Washington were cited by Mrs. Vickers in her complaint, which was filed by Henry I. Quinn, a member of the District School Board.

Mrs. Vickers said that her husband had accustomed her to a high standard of living and she asked that he be compelled to support her in the style which his wife should have.

A controversy quickly arose over who should be allowed to vote and the election date was put off. Hans Kerrl, minister for church affairs, meanwhile reconstituted the evangelical church governments to continue the status quo until the church elections.

The fixing of the election date has been delayed repeatedly.

(Arrest of 11 Protestant confessional pastors by the Gestapo was announced from the pulpit of a church in western Berlin Sunday.

(The announcement, not published in the press, said 14 other pastors were prohibited from speaking anywhere in the Reich and 15 were expelled from their home parishes.

Dr. Goebbels will deliver his speech Friday in Deutschland Halle, which accommodates 20,000 persons, while a radio hookup will carry what is expected to be a challenge to the Vatican over an anti-Nazi speech by Cardinal Mundelein to Millions of German homes.

Dust Bowl Hit By Droughts; Relief Planned

Wallace Starts Organizing as Heat Increases 7-State Threat.

By Russell Smith.

In parts of seven States, the Weather Bureau said, high winds and unrelieved heat intensified a condition which the bureau previously had described as equally as bad as in 1936.

In Washington, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace appointed a co-ordinating committee, headed by the Assistant Secretary, M. L. Wilson, to plan for drought relief.

Here, too, leaders of organized farm groups met in hot offices to act with renewed determination for agricultural legislation at this session of Congress.

And throughout the country the threat of higher and higher prices grew more ominous.

The Weather Bureau said:

"The drought is serious in the western third of the Dakotas and Nebraska, much of eastern Montana, the eastern third of Wyoming, parts of eastern Colorado and over western Kansas."

5-Month Deficiency.

For five months, over a belt from the Dakotas south to the Texas panhandle, the bureau added, there has been a deficiency of moisture. J. B. Kincer, the bureau's chief of climate and crop weather work, said:

"The conditions in that area are just the reverse of those which prevailed a year ago. During May, 1936, adequate rains fell in the dust bowl. During the past month little or no rainfall has occurred and there is no reserve moisture in the soil."

To meet the threat of another drought, which the bureau says will not be a "major drought" unless there is continued absence of rain, Wallace said at his press conference, a "co-ordinating program" is being drafted for early announcement.

This was his serious reply to a question as to Western suggestions that the Federal Government take over the dust bowl States from State jurisdiction until they can be converted into arable land again. In jest, he also said:

"Well, once I told Marvin Jones we ought to make a separate State out of that area, call it Dustbowliana, make Amarillo, Tex., the capital, and make Marvin Jones (Texas Representative) the first Senator.

"Somebody is stealing my thunder."

To Discuss Bill Today.

Wallace today will appear before the House Agriculture Committee to discuss the pending farm organizations' bill. These groups were bolstered in their determination to provide a comprehensive program for storage against surpluses and insurance against poor years as a result of the drought reports.

The Secretary disagreed yesterday with testimony before the House committee earlier in the day by Roy M. Green, Agriculture finance chief under him. Green said $100,000,000 should be available for a crop insurance plan. Wallace and H. R. Tolley, AAA administrator, said $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 would be sufficient but Wallace said he sympathized with Green's view the $100,000,000 would be desirable as evidence of good faith on the part of the Government.

The Resettlement Administration yesterday announced it had loaned $8,000,000 to 18,200 dust bowl farmers, made grants of $1,815,194 and spent $905,888 in acquiring 284,784 acres of the "worst" land in "the region of the black blizzards."

the contemplated $1,500,000,000 appropriation, but if the earmarking amendments hold, he will let 600,000,000 additional go. It requires an average of $800 a year to provide a single relief job.

While declining to forecast the outcome of today's attempt at reversal, Rayburn pointed out that only about 220 members, or slightly more than half the House membership, participated in Tuesday's voting. The roll calls will bring out the entire vote.

"It was the consensus opinion at this conference that the amendments will not be so strong tomorrow," said Rayburn.

Spokesmen from the blocs who logrolled the $505,000,000 in earmarkings into the bill in their letter to members attributed their success to "the hard work of all three groups" and said it "shows the sentiment throughout the country for worthwhile public projects."

stood in safety zones, throwing the handbills into automobiles that carried Ford workers homeward.

Naming part of the union program as a 6-hour day with $8 minimum pay, the leaflets urged Ford workers: "Now is the time to organize! The Wagner bill is behind you! Now get behind yourselves!! General Motors workers, Chrysler workers, wages and better working condi- Briggs workers, have won higher tions."

The Ford company is the only major automobile manufacturer which has not negotiated with the U. A. W. A.

Five investigators for the Senate Civil Liberties Committee witnessed today's altercation. The Michigan Conference for the Protection of Civil Rights announced it telegraphed to Senator Robert M. La Follette, committee chairman, and to the Michigan delegation in Congress tonight: "Circulation of Ford union organization leaflets authorized by Dearborn council forcibly and brutally halted by Ford thugs and service men. * * * This brutal and unprecedented violation of Wagner act and constitutional rights demands immediate attention."

Strike in Ford Plant.

Richmond, Calif., May 26.—The United Automobile Workers fired their "first gun in the war against Henry Ford" today with a strike which tied up the Ford assembly plant here for the second time in five weeks.

The walkout silenced the big plant before 8 a. m. When the day shift was due to report at that hour the place was swarming with pickets who turned back company officials as well as office employes.

Frank Slaby, local president of the United Automobile Workers, said the walkout would spread to other Ford plants unless the company met the workers' demands for adjustment of grievances.

Attack Called "Shocking."

New York, May 26 (AP).—The American Civil Liberties Union tonight termed the attack today on auto union members distributing leaflets before the Ford plant in Dearborn, Mich., a "shocking" violation of civil rights.

closed that two leaders in the rubber and mine union affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization had attended today's meeting.

These were Sherman Dalrymple, of Akron, Ohio, president of the United Rubber Workers of America, and John Owens, president of District No. 6 (Ohio) of the United Mine Workers.

May Aid Steel Group.

Murray declined to comment on what action these unions might take to assist the steel workers.

Advised of the action, spokesmen for Republic Steel Corporation, largest of the companies affected, said they were standing by previous statements in the union controversy.

Republic, in letters to its employes, insisted signing of a contract would "be merely the first step toward a later demand for the closed shop and the check-off."

"These are the real issues in the present controversy," the letter said, asserting wage and work conditions in Republic mills were equal to or better than those in other plants."

Republic's chairman of the board, Tom Girdler, has expressed himself outspokenly on the question of unionism. He said Republic would "shut down its plants" and "keep them shut" if picketing kept workers away.

Republic employs about 55,000 men and Sheet & Tube about 18,000 men. Part of the Republic employes are in the Birmingham, Ala., area which was not included in today's S. W. O. C. action. Murray said S. W. O. C. leaders would meet tomorrow at Birmingham to consider action in that district.

Approximately 8,000 workers in Republic plants at Canton and Massillon, Ohio, went on strike before today's conference. These men had walked out Tuesday night in an action which C. I. O. leaders said they did not authorize, but would "support." The first day of the strike passed quietly.

Murray said the delegates representing S. W. O. C. members in the three companies' plants had "voted unanimously to close the properties of these companies at 11 p. m. today. All the mechanics have been created to take care of the situation. In accordance with custom the necessary maintenance men will be furnished each company by local lodges and committees."

The time at which the strike decree was ordered into effect—11 p. m., local time—is the customary hour for changing shifts at the great steel mills in the area bordering on the great lakes.

For several months these mills have been operating at or near 90 per cent of capacity—the peak since 1929—and some of the companies showed first-quarter earnings nearly 500 per cent greater than in the first three months of 1936.

Hours before the 11 p. m. deadline, union leaders in affected cities began setting in motion the picketing machinery designed to keep the plants from operating.

Murray said he was returning immediately to Pittsburgh, his headquarters. He said, however, he expected Youngstown to be a "hot spot" in the organizing campaign and expressed belief he would spend considerable time in this eastern Ohio city.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE
Caused by Tired Kidneys
Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys and may be relieved when treated in the right way.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.
If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, lumbago, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Premier Colijn Election Victor In Netherlands

By the United Press.

Amsterdam (Thursday), May 27. Holland's electorate, smashing the ambitions of both Nazis and Communists, today pledged overwhelming faith in the "middle of the road" policies of Premier Hendrikus Colijn, returns from yesterday's general parliamentary election showed.

Shortly before the polling booths were closed police fired upon a crowd of Dutch Leftists attempting to mob a National-Socialist agitator.

A tabulation of the complete vote revealed that the Nazis—striving to capture 10 of the 100 seats at stake in the second Chamber of Parliament—had obtained only four.

The Liberal Party lost three seats and the Communists lost one or four seats.

In Amsterdam, where the voting was unprecedented, the election was a tremendous success for Colijn. In 270 out of the 414 precincts he ran 10,000 votes ahead of his showing in the 1935 general elections.

The National-Socialists' losses were consistent throughout the country.

Running alongside Colijn's anti-revolutionary party in the victory was the Roman Catholic state party, with the Social Democrats and Liberal Democrats riding on the wave of the "middle course" voting.

Amsterdam police were forced to use their guns when the crowd of leftists, throwing bricks and stones, attacked a Nazi propagandist near a polling place. The police fired warning shots over the heads of the crowd.

When this failed to break up the attack the police fired on the leftists. A woman, observing the fracas from a window of her home, was injured in the head and was removed to a hospital.

Arrests were made before the leftists were dispersed.

Colijn, favoring a middle course, asks a strong army. Mussert wants to apply the National Socialist theories of government to The Netherlands.

'Naziness' May Mar Fete in California

San Francisco, May 26 (AP).—Amid threats of an anti-Nazi boycott and in the face of a tightly deadlocked hotel strike, San Francisco turned on the revelry tonight to start a week's celebration of the opening of the $35,000,000 Golden Gate bridge.

The Swastika flag of Germany still fluttered from the festoons of national emblems in the street decorations despite the assertion by Secretary Z. R. Brown that the powerful Bay Area Maritime Federation would withdraw from the celebration unless it was taken down. Six men tore one of the Nazi flags from a festoon late yesterday.

There was no protest from the German consulate here or from the German Embassy in Washington.

Envoy Says Duce Favors Arms Slash

By the Associated Press.

The Italian Ambassador, Fulvio Suvich, informally tipped off the State Department yesterday about Premier Mussolini's views on the world armament race.

The envoy told Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles a newspaper article, which said Il Duce advocated a halt in the armament race as a means of curing present political or economic ills, did in fact represent the official views of Mussolini.

The Italian envoy's call on Welles was unusual in that he conveyed no official communication to this Government and received no official reply.

'Wandering' Isle Is 'Pegged Down' By Eclipse Party

Pegging down a "wandering" desert island has been the first job of the National Geographic Society—United States Navy Solar Eclipse Expedition to the South Seas.

A radio dispatch from Canton Island received by National Geographic Society headquarters yesterday states that careful astronomical obseravtions just completed by representatives of the Naval Observatory in the eclipse party show that there has been a considerable error—from the point of view of astronomers—in the position of the islands as previously charted. The island is actually about 1 1-3 miles farther west and 6-10 miles farther north than it was thought to be.

In observing eclipses it is necessary to know with great accuracy the exact position of the observing insirument so that the information obtained can be properly interpreted. The correction in position has made necessary the refiguring of the times at which the total eclipse of June 8 will begin and end. The corrected figures, computed by the Naval Observatory here, have been sent by radio to the island.

Pope Looks Vigorous, Report of Al Smith

Castel Gandolfo, Italy, May 26 (AP). Alfred E. Smith had a half-hour audience with Pope Pius today and remarked afterwards that the Pontiff is "looking much more vigorous than a man many years younger."

Later a group of friends traveling with the former Governor, including Mgr. Fulton J. Sheen of the Catholic University, Washington, D. C., were received in a general audience.

16 of 30 Invited Guests Plan To Attend Wedding of Duke

By the Associated Press.

Monts, France, May 26.—Sixteen of the 30 persons invited will attend the June 3 marriage of Wallis Warfield and the Duke of Windsor.

Several of the guests hold British government positions. No member of the royal family was included.

Twenty-two parcels containing wedding gifts arrived from England today. Ten rooms were reserved for wedding guests at the chateau.

Maj. E. B. Metcalfe, who will attend with Lady Alexandria Metcalfe, will be the duke's best man. The major is one of Windsor's equerries. Others on the guest list:

Hugh Lloyd Thomas, first secretary of the British embassy in Paris.

Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman, of Washington, D. C., Mrs. Warfield's "Aunt Bessie."

W. C. Graham, British consul at Nantes, and Mrs. Graham.

A. G. Allen, of London, the duke's attorney.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman L. Rogers, of New York.

Lady Selby will attend without her husband, Sir Walford Selby. There have been reports that the British government had held out to the last against his attendance despite Windsor's pleadings. Sir Walford was one of the duke's confidantes during his stay in Austria last winter.

'Twin' Is Removed From Baby's Organ

Portland, Oreg., May 26 (AP).—A "twin" was removed from the abdomen of a 13-month-old girl today and the attending doctors held high hope for her recovery.

The fetus, about 5 inches long, contained a partly formed skull, spine and embryonic leg bones. It was in a small sac, as in a fetus of normal birth, but was not living in the sense that embryos live.

Roles of Women In Government Praised in Talk

Characteristics of Washington's women Government officials were brought before the listening public last night in a radio broadcast by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, newly appointed Minister to Norway.

In their radio conversation, the two women praised Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor; Josephine Roche, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, Director of the Mint, and Mary M. O'Reilly, assistant director. Also mentioned were Ellen Woodward, director of women's and professional projects for WPA; Mrs. Ruth B. Shipley, of the State Department, and Dr. Louise Stanley, of the Home Economics Bureau.

Mrs. Harriman declared that one of the most characteristic qualities of Washington women is their enthusiasm and that the quality she admires most is moral courage.

Senate Inquiry On RA 'Waste' Asked by Byrd

Finds 'Discrepancy' in Wallace Figures on Virginia Project.

Investigation by the Senate Reorganization Committee of alleged Resettlement Administration "waste" was called for last night by Senator Harry Flood Byrd, following refusal of Secretary of Agriculture to abandon the Shenandoah Homesteads resettlement project in Virginia.

Wallace last night in a letter to Byrd said the project would be completed at a total cost of $993,000, instead of the $1,500,000 estimated by Byrd, who had asked that the project be dropped.

Byrd slapped back immediately with a proposal for a Senate investigation, not only of alleged discrepancies in Wallace's figures and those submitted by budget and resettlement officials, but of "waste" in other States.

"Mr. Wallace does not answer my charge of gross waste of funds already spent," the Virginia Senator said in a statement. "Only yesterday I received from the assistant resettlement administrator Mr. Baldwin, and the budget director, Mr. Bell, a statement under the date of May 21 that the sum of $1,300,884 was allocated for this project and that this, as of that date, was the estimated cost.

"I will ask the Reorganization Committee of the Senate to investigate and ascertain the true facts of those expenditures and the discrepancy between the figures of the Budget Director, Mr. Bell, and those of Mr. Wallace."

In his letter to Byrd, Wallace said the homesteads would be made up of individual farms, rather than co-operatives. Each unit, Wallace said, would cost $3,755, including $1,500 for land, $1,200 for a house, $400 for barns, $100 for a poultry house, $250 for fencing, $250 for water supply and $55 for sanitation. Wallace said resettlement wanted to "deal fairly with these people who have given up their former homes because of their purchase by the State of Virginia for the creation of the Shenandoah National Park."

Basic Changes By Coercion.

At least two of the reasons why President Roosevelt insists upon changing the complexion of the Supreme Court are now apparent. One is the labor standards bill which he has asked Congress to pass at this session. The other is new legislation "to strengthen and stabilize the markets for the farmers' products."

Originally, the President appears to have planned for enactment of his bill to enlarge the Court before divulging his new legislative program. But the delay which that measure has encountered has forced his hand. Moreover, there is a belief in some quarters that the uncertain constitutional status of the latest effort to regulate wages and working conditions will build up support for any move to insure more sympathetic court hearings. At any rate, the labor standards bill is now being pushed ahead of the judiciary measure that was supposed to clear the way for all New Deal legislation of questionable constitutionality.

The effect of this maneuver is to illustrate once more the boldness of Mr. Roosevelt's bid for additional power. Nearly two years ago he asked the House to let no doubts as to the constitutionality of the Guffey coal bill, however reasonable they might be, interfere with its enactment. Now he has gone a long step further. At his press conference on Tuesday he implied that minimum wage and maximum hour legislation may encounter difficulties in the courts. Moreover, he noted that the Court would have to reverse its former ruling that child labor does not directly affect interstate commerce in order to uphold the child labor provisions of the bill he is now sponsoring.

The significance of this statement is clear. In spite of indications that the Senate will defeat the Court-packing bill, the President has asked Congress to pass a measure which he knows to be unconstitutional, in part, under rulings of the Court now in effect. Here is an open demand for a change in the Constitution, as interpreted by an independent court, through the medium of executive coercion.

This encroachment upon the right of the people to change their own basic law appears the more flagrant because of the refusal of 20 States to ratify the proposed child labor amendment. Everyone, except the exploiters, would like to see child labor abolished. But the principle involved in this executive attempt to effect vital changes by short-cut methods is far more important than temporary employment of children. The President's latest resort to battering ram tactics may well strengthen the resolution of the Senate to carry his Court bill to the floor and flatly reject it.

Child Refugees From Spain.

Modern warfare is no respecter of persons, as news from one part of the world or another has demonstrated almost daily during the past two years. Civilians as well as soldiers are today considered proper targets for bombs and machine guns. The tragic results of this reversion to savagery were probably not fully appreciated in the United States, however, until photographs arrived here recently showing thousands of children on the move from war-torn Spain to France and England. Five hundred of them, it is now announced, may soon embark for this country, where 2,700 families have offered their homes as temporary havens.

Unfortunately, there has been some question as to the eligibility of these children for admission to the United States. Since they would be for the most part under 16 years of age and would have their passages paid by a specially formed organization, they would ordinarily be denied entrance. The decision as to whether these prohibitions shall be waived in this special case appears to lie, in the first instance at least, with the consul in France to whom they will apply for visas. Presumably he will take his cue in the matter from the State Department sentiment that "any humane person would have a natural desire to be of any possible assistance." It is to be hoped he will and that immigration authorities here will sustain him.

Already, sad to say, a few protests have been heard against such action. The basis for the objection is not entirely clear. It is said on one hand that the children are refugees from the loyalist side and to receive them would be to abet communism; from another quarter it is contended that the children may lose their religious faith if quartered indiscriminately here. Either argument is fatuous. And even if both were valid, they would count for little.

For children transcend politics and sects. When they are lost and starving or when they are so unnerved as to cower at the mere sound of an airplane—as did an entire boatload upon landing in London last week—the first and only consideration should be to provide them with food and shelter and surroundings where men are not blasting and strafing each other with savage disregard for innocent victims.

A Federal Labor Policy.

Under the NRA, protection against child labor and regulation of wages and hours of work were provided for by the codes. No attempt was made to impose statutory standards upon the organized industries; they drafted their own rules and regulations under official supervision and guidance. While the Administration's new wages and hours bill is much less comprehensive than the code agreements, which covered trade practices as well as labor policies and embraced intrastate as well as interstate industries, it would establish a much more rigid and direct kind of Federal control over private industry.

In his message dealing with the proposal the President gave the impression that the main objective of the bill was to protect labor against exploitation. That is also the suggestion conveyed by the legislative declaration of intention outlined in the Connery bill. But as a matter of fact, this bill has several objectives. One of its purposes, for example, is to ban interstate commerce in goods made by children under 16 years of age.

The proposed Labor Standards Board would have power to vary these statutory standards of work and wages under certain conditions. It would, in addition, be empowered to set so-called "fair" standards for workers in industries where collective bargaining was not functioning effectively. In other words, the proposed measure aims to raise wage rates above the statutory minimum and to lower hours below the official maximum per week in various cases.

The determination of what is "fair" is left to the discretion of the board within the limits set by vague generalizations. A fair wage is defined, for instance, as one "fairly and reasonably commensurate with the value of the service or class of service rendered." A reasonable work week means a "number of hours of employment in a week which is reasonably suitable to the nature of the service or class of service rendered."

This sweeping delegation of discretionary power over the labor policies of private industries to a Federal agency would be much more dangerous, economically speaking, than the delegation of legislative power conferred upon private industry under the NRA. The NRA at least provided for a saving measure of industrial self-regulation which provided protection against demands that were impossible of fulfillment. Under the new Administration bill the fate of many industries would depend upon the wisdom and administrative skill of a single Federal board and such advisory committees as it might see fit to consult.

However able and conscientious members of the board might be, they would find themselves confronted by a back-breaking task of administration. Furthermore, the economic problems involved in fixing wages and hours are extremely intricate. That is recognized in the bill, which provides for variations in standards by industries, by sections and for special reasons. To make a system of Federal regulation of wages and hours workable, such flexibility in administration is absolutely essential.

Yet these very exceptions entail an exercise of discretion too great to be safely entrusted to any single regulatory agency. The clear logic of the situation suggests that the Administration is reaching out to grasp power that not only belongs to the several States, under previous interpretations of the Constitution, but power that is extremely difficult for a national Government to exercise intelligently.

Apart from the administrative, constitutional and economic objections to the Connery bill, its aim is open to criticism. Why should the Federal Government pass another law to make collective bargaining effective when organized labor is already scoring triumphs under the protection accorded it by the Wagner act? The Administration might at least have waited to see what labor could obtain for itself before undertaking to extend the benefits of collective bargaining by legislative decree.

Labor's Factionalism.

The decision of the A. F. of L. leaders to raise a "war chest" to fight the C. I. O. unions destroys the last lingering hope that a public-spirited desire to further the cause of organized labor would prevail over petty factionalism. Instead of trying to find a basis to reconcile differences, and to effect a return of the Lewis faction to the parent organization, the dominant majority has been more concerned to enforce its will upon the minority.

It was apparent to any disinterested person that organization of the mass production industries required a new technique. That the industrial union constituted a challenge to the leadership—and the jobs—of some of the old-line craft union officials was likewise obvious. But it should have been the concern of the heads of both factions to allay the fears of their followers and seek a compromise of differences. It could have been done without destroying the craft unions and without preventing the legitimate expansion of industrial unionism.

Instead, dissension has been fanned into hatred; bickering has been followed by open warfare, and the progress of organization is certain to be seriously hampered in the future by jurisdictional disputes. Employers seeking excuses for refusing to bargain collectively with their employes will be able in many cases to play one group off against another.

The public at large, disillusioned by a campaign of vituperation that tends to bring both the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. into disrepute, is likely to lose much of its present interest in the cause of the unions. In short, some of the gains achieved will unquestionably be forfeited because self-seeking leaders place their personal ambitions above the welfare of their followers. Since they prefer victory to a statesmanlike attitude of modifying their policies to suit the needs and exigencies of the times, they will doubtless pay a very high price for it.

"Earmarking" Relief Funds.

The House certainly ran amuck when it saddled the relief bill with amendments "earmarking" about one-third of the $1,500,000,000 appropriation for flood control, roads and PWA construction projects. Representative Beiter is reported to have said that "the amendments will not deprive anyone of relief. Congress next winter can vote more money for the WPA." That, of course, is precisely what it will be compelled to do if it diverts one-third of an already reduced relief appropriation to specific projects that cannot profitably employ relief labor.

Undoubtedly flood-control plans should be pushed, within the limits of the budget, to prevent repetition of the disasters of recent years. But, as Representative Dirksen, a former drainage contractor, says: "If you undertake to build flood-control levees or conservancy districts by hand labor or with teams and scrapers, there is not enough money in the Federal Treasury to accomplish the job." If Congress diverts relief funds to flood control, therefore, we may find ourselves in the end with little to show for these outlays in any form.

The proposal to revive the PWA is equally misguided. There is no further need for pump-priming activities such as this organization afforded in the past. And unless the executive order compelling PWA to use only relief labor should be rescinded, that agency could not function effectively even if its life were prolonged by legislation beyond the end of the fiscal year. The proposed earmarking of funds for public roads is equally unwise, adding $150,000,000 to an already large appropriation for that purpose.

The House members who voted for these amendments are simply deceiving themselves when they pretend that they are exercising their right to control the public purse strings. If they really wanted to economize they would go about the task in a very different way by abolishing the WPA and setting up an entirely new system of relief. Returning the administration of relief to the States and municipalities, making Federal appropriations contingent upon a reasonable contribution by the States and substituting direct relief for costly work relief would effect substantial economies without drastic reductions in the relief rolls.

So long as Congress acquiesces in the methods now followed, however, it might as well bow to the inevitable and provide the funds needed to carry on the WPA. If it fritters away the relief appropriation on projects which WPA is not equipped to handle, further waste may be expected. The special projects would be inefficiently executed and the WPA would be coming back later on for deficiency appropriations.

There is some justification for the suspicion openly expressed by opponents of the amendments that the revolting House members are trying to convert the relief bill into a "pork barrel." Even if their motives are unimpeachable, they have certainly made a bungling approach to the problem of cutting relief costs.

Rhapsody In Blue.

The ceremony may take place in the library or on the lawn. Members of the royal family may attend or may not. Rumor, rumor, all is rumor. For though the Duke of Windsor has a spokesman, it is getting harder and harder to induce him to speak. One man's guess is as good as the next one's now. So it is only natural that stories about the Windsor-Warfield union take on more and more the aspect of the famous tales from Munchausen. The latest is that the lady from Baltimore is having her hair dyed blue to match her bridal gown.

In all probability, this story is no more than a press agent's dream. True, Lady Mendl and a few other sophisticates do change their wigs to match their whims. But to date Mrs. Warfield has made almost a fetish of simplicity in hair-do. And it is doubtful that she will change, even though the Duke himself is known to be partial to this particular color. He even met his future wife at a station once with a bagpipe rendition of St. Louis Blues.

It's really nobody's business but their own when or how they'll be married. But the situation does take on gravity when it is remembered that Mrs. Warfield is looked upon as a style-setter. Already she has made women everywhere clothes-conscious about butterfly buttons and baby-like bonnets. Speculate then on the consequences if the Duke's bride should adopt any such colorful custom. For no groom could be sure, until too late, whether or not his affianced can take blue or leave it alone.

Russia's Executions.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Soviet Russia is engaged in carrying forward one of the most important social experiments of the age, and is surrounded by enemies. "Aristotle," in common with most liberals, is unable to see the forest for the trees.

The threat of war and fascism is not one to be taken lightly. Soviet Russia realizes this—indeed, in a nation concerned with a life and death struggle between reaction and socialism, where not only the future of Russia hangs in the balance but the future of all democratic countries, it is logical to expect a heavy hand to fall on those who would wreck the work of the builders. It is better to execute 100 traitors than to have millions suffer from the schemes of anti-Soviet plotters.

"Aristotle" fails to mention that Trotzky and his agents have been found guilty, not only by the Russian trial but by the farcical comic-opera trial in Mexico, where a few misguided liberals attempted to whitewash his work.

Liberals in America have the fortunate position of living in a so-called democratic nation. The liberals gather in their parlors and chatter like monkeys in a zoo while turning the pages of books and papers, but liberals seldom understand what is going on in the world outside—they are too concerned over their own self-satisfied superiority.

By some strange philosophy they manage to live on a spiritual ivory-tower away from the material struggle around them. Because of this they are able to raise a hue and cry about Soviet Russia without paying any attention to the conditions in Harlan, Ky., or among the share-croppers of the South, where more than 100 lives have been lost in the fight for American democratic rights. Federal Reorganization.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: No one challenged the basic or economic values of the Brookings Institute reorganization recommendations. Why not support this report, at least, until a better one is available?

It appears that if the Byrd committee obtains the contract to rebuild and modernize a top-heavy and over-loaded structure, the Brookings' specification will govern the job, and will be found in the corner-stone.

No one questions Senator Byrd's competence and experience when it comes to handling a job like this. His crew or reconstruction gang have a reputation for reliability and capability. Why not get behind this organization, until some other "bidder" comes along with a better proposition? There will be other "bidders" . . . but will they be able to qualify and make good?

To consolidate HOLC and FHA would merge quite a few dual roles. Mr. Fahey's and Mr. MacDonald's flow sheets and organization charts confirm may related activities. They have everything in common when it comes to home-ownership and housing, with nothing competitive.

Such activities as rural electrification which do not lend themselves to the HOLC-FHA consolidation, can be absorbed by PWA or RFC's related activities. The Electric Home and Farm Authority seems to have been designed to supplement FHA's Title I activities, or compete therewith.

D. S. T. Objector.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have suggested to some of my friends who have been clamoring for an extra hour of heat-laden summer sunshine, that they work for a two-hour moving forward of the clock instead of the one hour that would, to their say so, prove so beneficial. I tried to convince them, that since one hour would be so good, then twice as many hours would be twice as good, but they only looked at me with disgust.

Whichever way the cat jumps, I do not care a great deal but I am for the people who dislike to have things thrust upon them against their will. OBJECTOR.

Butchery In Spain.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Cardinal Mundelein has performed a notable service in directing the attention of all to the absurdities of a ruler of humble origin in presuming to attempt to order the activities and thoughts of millions of inhabitants of the country over which he has an absolute control though possibly only temporarily.

The good cardinal, however, could have extended his public services further if he had at the same time taken Hitler and Mussolini to task for the monstrous happenings in Spain that are becoming more terrible and horrifying day by day. The public makes no protest and seems but little interested in the headlines of the daily papers which read as follows: "German and Italian planes, flying low, bombed and then machine gunned the inhabitants of this village. After the planes passed the bodies of more than 100 women and children littered the streets; many of the bodies were horribly mangled."

Is there no one in America in a high position who will condemn such butcheries?

Must the civilized world stand voiceless while the brutish plans of blood-crazed fiends of the Fascist and Nazi governments ruthlessly murder whole populations in order to gain some fancied advantage which even they themselves have never explained.

The great Senator Borah is the only one who has thus far raised his voice in protest. Are there not many other of our leaders who, if they would join in a vigorous denunciation of this mass murder of helpless humans, would go far toward putting an end to this nightmare which daily grows more hideous?

A Use For Old Music.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I write to ask the aid of choral club conductors, glee club directors, choir masters, orchestra conductors and all musicians. Each one of these people knows that music is costly and without it musical organizations cannot exist. These two facts have haunted me this year in my endeavors to build up musical appreciations and activities. I successfully organized and directed a choir, but anthems were sadly missing. My college glee club was made possible by each student contributing 50 cents (incidentally, the first real glee club in this section), enabling us to build a small mixed-voices repertoire.

Lindsey Wilson Junior College, Columbia, Ky., can act as receiving, repairing and distributing agent for music of any type which musicians can send them when they house-clean their libraries. There must be many sets of anthems, choral and orchestral numbers worn by long service and hidden behind newer material. We can use it, repair it and pass it on.

Dr. Eckener's Award.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Undoubtedly Dr. Hugo Eckener is the world's leading authority on lighter-than-air-craft and, therefore, it is only just that he has been selected for the Guggenheim Medal for 1937.

However, will he be able to accept it? The Guggenheim Fund has been created by Mr. Guggenheim, a "Non-Aryan." Will Dr. Eckener be permitted to accept an award of "Non-Aryan origin?"

Two Questions.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I desire to ask you, or your readers, two questions, as follows:

If the wife of the Duke of Windsor is to be H. R. H., what will be the titles of the two ex's?

In toasting the ex's, which should be given precedence?

These are matters of great importance, and I hope you will consider them seriously.

'Not Prosperity But Good Citizenship'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Few there will be in Washington to feel in sympathy with the inexpressibly simple and direct opinion rendered by Justice McReynolds in the unemployment insurance case. As he saw, there was no issue in the case but the timeless question on which President Pierce expressed himself long years ago, whether the letter of the Constitution can have any meaning if its spirit is emasculated and warped to meet the fancies of the hour. The Justice must long since have grown tired of citing authorities and precedents, and in disdaining to list cases known to every lawyer he has brought the issue into its true light. It is not a matter of law, but of statesmanship and philosophy.

Being not unversed in constitutional law, I will not quarrel with the undoubted legal soundness and logic of the majority opinion. On dryly legal grounds, as the President would say, it is correct. The precedents are ample, and they were correctly applied by the majority to permit the people of the United States to indulge their current desire to let George do it.

The justice, in reviving and republishing this old public document, gives a glimpse of an ideal which was in the minds of the founders, and which remained in the national consciousness until the beginning of this century. It is an ideal of what men as individuals and as members of their communities could and should do, expressed during times less troubled by temporary adversity which now confuses the thoughts of men and weakens their determination to bear their own burdens and keep their own houses in order.

For the beginning and the end of the current nationalizing tendency is the unwillingness of our people to admit that their troubles begin at home. It is always someone else who is at fault, whether it be the big bankers, the big industrialists or the little chiselers somewhere else, whom only the Federal Government can reach—but never Main street or Railroad avenue. Social security? Some people are constitutionally unfitted to save money, so we shall make them save, or better yet, since they are in the majority, we shall make others save for them. Does it overcome the inherent faults? Does it prevent unemployment? Does it encourage thrift? On the contrary, it ducks the real problem and lets an army of functionaries smooth over the surface with money—somebody else's money. And thereby it weakens social responsibility among the people, and aggravates what it should cure.

And so it will go. We shall never develop, apparently, into really civilized human beings increasingly desirous of carrying our own weight in society, and increasingly interested in solving the problems of our communities. When burdens arise we will, by act of Congress, remove their disturbing effect from our mind, and merrily go our way in the latest model streamlined, no-vision cars.

The justice may have been wrong on the point of law involved, but he has my thanks for again emphasizing that our Federal system is not merely a contraption which becomes obsolescent at will, but embodies a social philosophy, a practical system for reaching an ideal, not of mere prosperity, but of good citizenship. Tips And Service.

"'Man, know thyself!' said Mr. Pope;
And Mr. Burns expressed the hope
From silly notions it would free us
To see ourselves as others see us
And so we need a law perhaps
To make saps realize they're saps."

Once in a great while Capt. Ebenezer Longbow understudies Silas Wegg with the wooden leg; so the Old Timers, waiting for their mail at the corner store, were not unduly surprised at his outburst and were ready to listen when he went on.

• • • •

The words of that little song (said Capt. Longbow) are, in substance, by State Senator Arthur B. Blanchard, of Cambridge, Mass., and the music just happened. The Senator was discussing a bill which would oblige hotels and night clubs to advertise the fact that they hogged or shared the tips received by hat-check girls and cigarette girls. The bill calls for signs in prominent places.

Proprietors cannot be expected to approve of it. Tips are a large and, they consider, a legitimate source of revenue; and that revenue, they declare, should be applied to upkeep.

Those who first get the tips would like to keep them but are not hopeful. Tip receipts are so important that tip recipients, so far from receiving pay for what they do, are willing to pay for the privilege of doing it.

The real beneficiary of the law is supposed to be the sap who pays. The presumption is that when he learns that the receipts go to the house he will quit tipping, cannily considering that he is paying enough for his entertainment.

The net result of such a law would be that tipping would be abolished and a set charge made for the checking of hats, coats, canes and umbrellas. After which the tipping would be resumed, but surreptitiously; and later, mayhap, the bootleg tips would be quietly divided.

For the sap loves to be tapped. He cheerfully oozes the milk of human kindness even though he knows it will be used to prove him a hunk of cheese. He never grumbles at a gratuity. It is only when custom has given to it all the earmarks of a tax that he raises a howl.

No, sir. The sap needs no protection. He's enjoying himself. The sucker who needs to be saved from himself is the sap-sucker, the bird who takes the tips. What he doesn't realize is that he is jeopardizing his independence, stultifying his manhood, by accepting tips. There is nothing of true democracy in the tipping system.

Dr. Victor Heiser in his "Odyssey of a Doctor" tells of his experience in a restaurant in a Russian city. Although he and his companion tipped lavishly they got poor service. But a couple of Germans at a nearby table were promptly waited upon. So one day Dr. Heiser accosted the Germans, stated the case and asked for an explanation. "It is simple," said one of the Germans "They resent tips. We don't give any. But we say to the waiter, 'Comrade, when next you go to the kitchen we shall be greatly obliged if you will get us so-and-so.'" So Dr. Heiser tried it, and it worked.

• • • •

"Wait a minute, wait a minute!" interrupted Casual Smith. "You've been doing fine, but don't step off on the wrong foot."

Capt. Longbow grinned. "That's only the synopsis," he said. "You go on with the story."

• • • •

The significant thing about that anecdote (said Casual Smith) is that the waiters took the tips and showed their resentment afterward. That this was not wholly due to cupidity was demonstrated by the care they gave the Germans. The inescapable conclusion is, then, that they felt it their duty to take the tips. And in this, strangely enough, they were right. Part of the duty of a waiter is to make the customer happy. The customer is happy—I almost said sappy—to hand out a tip. And there you are. That they did only part of their duty and that grudgingly is beside the point.

Frankly, I enjoy being waited upon, and I am quite willing to pay for the service. If for a tip I am able to get a Jeeves with service rendered and received in a gentlemanly way I am grateful. And I'm not denying that one reason that it is more blessed to give than to receive is that giving feeds the ego and makes a man have a good opinion of himself. When Justice Reynolds handed the bootblack $1 to go to the circus, the other day, you may be sure that he got as much fun out of the transaction as the kid did. And apart from service rendered we really owe a lot to those who accept our tips. And at that, I guess, I'm not aiming to be consistent or logical. I'm simply 'fessing up.

• • • •

"You're both tarred with the one stick," said Demonsthenes McGinnis, "and reason is not in you. And here's a more important matter. Doc telephoned me a little while ago that the latest McGinnis has arrived. Grandson. Eight-pounder. And this is his tip to the philosophers. Pass the cigars around, Gabe; the best you've got; and take a couple yourself."

On Muzzling The Oxen.

IT IS WRONG to muzzle the ox which treadeth the corn, but did I ever tell you about the time I worked as a soda jerk in a big Chicago department store?

Well, it was one summer along about 1912, and the pay was $10 a week for a 12-hour day. It was hard work, too, dishing up banana splits and angel's wings and sliding along greasy duck-boards in soggy shoes, in addition to the off-stage tasks of shining up the bright work and scouring urns after hours.

The soda men were allowed to nibble in slack moments, but they were supposed not to set them up for the help from other departments, such as the shirts and underwear and neckties. However, you could watch the buyer and head soda man, and if they happened to be out of sight you could put on the come-and-get-it for the girls at the merchandise counters.

Not all together, of course, but one at a time. If the buyer and the head soda man persisted in hanging around to muzzle the kine, you could dish up a pineapple surprise with whipped cream and maraschinos, stick it down in an empty ice cream tube and give some girl the nod to meet you out on the loading platform where the ice cream storage bins were.

• • • •

THESE WERE very nice girls, so sometimes, in the employes' elevator going upstairs after work, a girl would give a soda jerk the elbow in the crowd and slip him a couple of pairs of socks or a shirt or a suit of underwear. You could conceal this beneath your bar apron until you reached your locker and there, while changing into your street clothes, put it on extra, whatever it was, and just wear it out with you past the house detectives at the door.

The house detectives would stand watch, and if you were carrying any kind of package you either had to show a sales slip for it or open it up to let him see. The house detectives thought they were pretty bright, but notwithstanding the muzzle the ox consumed plenty of corn.

Up on the balcony where light lunch was served there was a little cubicle about the size of a cracker box containing a steaming sink where a fat Polish immigrant girl, called Tenny, used to stand all day washing dishes. It gets terribly hot in Chicago, anyway, and in that steam the poor Polish girl was likely to smother, and she used to cry most of the time. Her dress and shoes were always sopping from the overflow from the sink.

She couldn't speak any English at all, and when we would ask her what was the matter and try to sympathize with her she would slosh her hot dishrag at the slot in the wall where we were constantly shoving in more and more soiled dishes. But when we would shove through a piece of layer cake or a chocolate nut sundae or a few sheets of nice boiled tongue Teeny would utter sounds of gratitude and show her red, steamy face at the slot with a forgiving smile.

• • • •

SHE HATED US for those soiled dishes, which were no fault of ours. She was like a leper in a cage, where they used to shove the provisions through a hole on a stick and then run.

An old restaurant man once told me that if he didn't muzzle the ox that treadeth the corn he would be broke in no time and explained how much it would come to in a year if 200 waiters, bus boys, cooks and all each should take one snort of whisky on the house per day or walk out with one apple, orange or slice of ham.

He was always catching some waiter going out the door at night with half a chicken on his hip, and said, "Multiply that by 250 times 365 days in a year and tell me where I would be."

Maybe so, but I will bet his oxen managed to knock off a few snorts of corn and a few chicken halves, nevertheless, because it is against the Old Testament to muzzle the ox that treadeth the corn.

Corn is of great variety. It is bundles of lath and shingles and kegs of nails in the building trades, and I suppose it is square cut emeralds in the jewelry business and batches of A. T. & T. in a stock broker's office.

Hot-Cha In The Schools.

New York's high schools are to have instructions in jazz and swing music. These would seem to be the two subjects of which the boys and girls need no further knowledge, but you never can be sure of anything.

• • • •

Paul Whiteman, Rudy Vallee, Duke Ellington, Wayne King, Red Nichols, Benny Goodman and others have been engaged to give weekly lectures. They have all signified a willingness to do their bit for the advancement of education, even if it takes everything jazz has to offer.

• • • •

It looks as if the professor who plays the saxophone in secret is at last to come into his own in the American educational system.

• • • •

Parents are a little staggered by the idea of a jazz course in the schools, but are taking it with the philosophy to which they have become accustomed. But it is going to seem strange to have Junior come home from school demanding a tuba, fiddle and snare drum for his home work.

• • • •

And the old man is going to feel funny about going down to the Cinema Palace to see some jazz band leader about Little Benny's poor report card.

• • • •

Then, too, there will be the problem of the daughter whose retort to a rebuke for getting "D" in English and physics will be: "What of it? Ain't I second in my class in swing rhythm?"

• • • •

Our American schools are certainly going the limit to break down education resistance. They now offer the growing boy and girl everything they can get at the neighborhood theater, except bank night.

• • • •

We now open the day's studies with a half-hour of tap dancing, follow it with coronation pictures and run through the first act of "Tobacco Road" before recess.

• • • •

After recess we offer rhythmic geometry, lyrics, chemistry and trigonometry with a heart throb.

• • • •

Then come Greek and Roman History On the Up Beat, Economics for String Instruments and Bassoons, Vallee's Guest Program, French and a few half hours of special work for microphone enthusiasts.

• • • •

Safeguarding the Pole's Secrets.

Reports from the Pole are meager, but we understand the Russian influence has gripped the place and that already 40 sealions have been shot for espionage.

Mr. Roosevelt is reported more in favor of jazzing up the Supreme Court than ever. Things have reached a point where it gives him only three favorable opinions an afternoon.

John D. Rockefeller outlived 20 personal physicians. This should give you a little comfort if you are thinking of throwing away those last pills.

It is about this time of year that the fellow who worked on his boat ever since early March sits on deck and wonders what to do with it now that he has it overboard.

It is hard to tell which of those cup yachts is getting the most breaks.

Florida, although little space has been given it in the news up North, has outlawed the slot machines. By a vote of 76 to 11, the Legislature has just wiped them out after a long battle. It will now be necessary for a druggist or lunchroom proprietor in Florida to make a living as a druggist or lunchroom proprietor.

China's Representatives Abroad

Dr. C. T. Wang (above, left), newly appointed Chinese Ambassador to the United States, and Dr. Alfred Sze, right, whom he succeeds in Washington. (Below, left to right), Dr. Quo Tai-chi, Ambassador to Great Britain; W. W. Yen, former Ambassador to the U. S. S. R., and Dr. Wellington Koo, Ambassador to Paris.

Five Men Responsible For World Rights Of Republic.

By Mark J. Ginsbourg.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Shanghai.

TORN ASUNDER by civil strife, having at times as many as four governments, each claiming to represent the nation, the republic of China has never been lacking in capable representation abroad.

The credit for this must go to a little band of veteran diplomats, who, unperturbed by the unrest at home, have struggled to preserve China's sovereign rights over conference tables in Washington and Geneva, London and Paris, for the last 20 years.

Included in this group must be Mr. Quo Tai-chi, Ambassador to the Court of St. James; Mr. Wellington Koo, Ambassador to Paris; Dr. W. W. Yen, former Ambassador to Moscow; Dr. Sao-ke Alfred Sze, the outgoing Ambassador to Washington, and Dr. C. T. Wang, his successor.

Far removed from domestic squabbles, enjoying prestige which made them immune to political intrigue, these envoys have actually "made" China's foreign policy, as well as executed it. This measure of independence is probably without parallel in the history of any other great nation.

Gradually Withdrawing From Diplomatic Service.

AGING MEN all, they are now gradually withdrawing from the diplomatic stage in favor of younger men. The first to go was Dr. Yen. Next to go is Dr. Sze, the peerless defender of China's territorial and political integrity.

About 40 years ago, Alfred Sze—or simply "Alfred," as he is known to hundreds of Washington's diplomats, Congressmen and journalists—arrived in the American Capital to serve the Chinese Embassy as a student-interpreter.

Although already in the possession of a Chinese college degree, the ambitious youth entered a Washington high school. In 1901, he was graduated from Cornell with high honors and a year later secured his master's degree.

Trained in the ways of two civilizations, Mr. Sze returned to China to take the difficult Imperial examinations, which tested one's physical endurance as well as one's knowledge of the Chinese classics. Ever a brilliant student, he won the treasured "Chin-Shih" Degree—the highest possible—in 1906, at the age of 29.

Promotion was rapid after that. After serving in various provincial governments, Dr. Sze transferred his allegiance to the Ministry of Communications. In 1907, he was already the managing director of the important Peiping-Hankow Railway.

Following four years of service with other railways, the customs service and the Foreign Office, Dr. Sze became Minister of Posts and Communications, and later acting Minister of Finance in the first republican cabinet, following the collapse of the monarchy.

Reentered World Scene As Minister To England.

IT WAS NOT until 1914 that Dr. Sze returned to the field of international diplomacy as Minister to the Court of St. James. He remained in London until 1921, performing yeomen service during the war. The holocaust over, Dr. Sze took part in the Versailles deliberations.

In 1921 Dr. Sze returned to his beloved Washington, to remain there as Minister for eight years, while his country was experiencing the pains of civil unrest and revolution. In 1929 he was again appointed Minister to Great Britain.

It was during his stay in London that Japanese troops clashed with Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang's forces in Manchuria. The duty of presenting China's case before the world tribunal fell on Dr. Sze. Using his personal charm, thorough knowledge of international law and clever political strategy, Dr. Sze in a few weeks marshaled all minor powers to the support of China.

Pitted against the best minds that Japan could send into the Geneva fray, Dr. Sze won his League encounters with flying colors. And, facing universal condemnation, Japan had no alternative to marching out of Geneva.

His health badly affected, Dr. Sze left London for China in 1933 for a rest. While passing through Washington he was intercepted by a Nanking telegram asking him to become Minister to the United States. He has remained in Washington ever since, being promoted to Ambassador in August, 1935.

Today, at 60, universally esteemed and decorated by seven nations, he is retiring from the diplomatic service to give place to a younger man. While he may again emerge into the world's headlines, it is more likely that he will shun politics and devote his time to his family, business and ancestral worship.

HIS SUCCESSOR, Dr. Chengting T. Wang, is 55 years old. Unlike Dr. Sze, he has spent few years out of China, playing a more prominent role in Chinese internal politics.

Graduating from a Tientsin University in 1900, Dr. Wang began his career as a teacher. In 1905 he went to Japan for two years to study and to serve as secretary of the Chinese Y. M. C. A. in Tokyo. In 1907-08 he studied at the University of Michigan, and the following three years at Yale, where in 1910 he received his bachelor's degree and won the coveted Phi Beta Kappa key.

Following a year of advanced study in the United States, Dr. Wang returned to China in June, 1911, to plunge again into Y. M. C. A. work, on which he has been intensely interested all his life.

The same year, with monarchy on its last legs, Dr. Wang, at the risk of his life, became a revolutionary, serving under Li Yuan-hung, revolutionary commander in Wuchang and later China's President. When representatives of provincial military governments met in Hankow in the winter of 1911, Dr. Wang, then 29 years old, was one of the signers of the provisional government organization law.

Early in 1912, he helped to organize the provisional government, and a year later was rewarded with the post of Vice Minister of Industry and Commerce. He later became acting minister in the first republican cabinet.

As a prominent member of the Kuomintang—the revolutionary party—Dr. Wang was elected vice president of the senate in April, 1913. The party was declared illegal six months later by ambitious Gen. Yuan Shih-kai.

When the Parliament was dissolved in January, 1914, Dr. Wang left actvie politics to become general secretary of the national committee of the Y. W. C. A. in China. But Gen. Yuan died in 1916, and Dr. Wang was called back to his post in the Senate.

Sought Support From President Wilson Here.

IN 1917, when the Parliament was re-dissolved, Dr. Wang went to Canton and helped to inaugurate an extraordinary parliament. A forceful speaker, he was sent to Washington in 1918 to plead support and recognition from President Woodrow Wilson. While in Washington, he was appointed one of China's chief delegates to the Versailles Conference.

On his return to China in 1920, Dr. Wang turned his attention to business, founding and managing several large industrial concerns. In October, 1922, he became Foreign Minister, and two months later acting premier.

Early in 1924, Dr. Wang began negotiations with Leo Karakhan, the then Soviet Ambassador, for a readjustment of Sino-Soviet relations.

When the "Christian General," Feng Yu-hsiang, defeated the notorious Chihli Party, Dr. Wang again became Foreign and Finance Minister, while in 1926 he resumed negotiations with the Soviet government.

Following a brief spell of business activity, he was again called to service as Foreign Minister of the Nanking government. He remained in that post during the trying years of 1928-1931.

To list his various activities would require a special article. Briefly, he is a member of the all-powerful Central Executive Committee and the Central Political Council of the Kuomintang, China's ruling party; a member of the Nationalist government, former district governor of the China Rotary Clubs, president of the China National University in Peiping since 1922, chairman of the China National Amateur Athletic Federation and managing director of a host of important industrial concerns, including the Liu Ho Kou Mining Co.

New Ambassador Found Business-like And Cordial.

IT WAS IN the gloomy old offices of the latter firm that Dr. Wang received your correspondent. He is business-like and non-committal on controversial questions, but friendly.

"In my new post," he said, "I shall strive to maintain and enhance Sino-American friendship, dating back to the eighteenth century."

China, he declared, has always looked to the United States as a stanch and disinterested friend. Today America can play a leading role in extending to China technical and financial aid without infringing upon this country's territorial and administrative integrity.

Denying that he is entrusted with the mission of securing a large loan in the United States, Dr. Wang, however, emphasized China's urgent need for funds to carry out her ambitious rehabilitation plans.

"We have natural wealth, manpower and an earnest desire to make China a great and prosperous nation. What we need is money to translate our schemes into reality."

Empire Defense

The Discussions At London.

EXCEPT for occasional communiques, which conceal more than they reveal, nothing has officially been made known regarding the discussions at the present imperial conference in London. But enough has leaked out to indicate that progress is being made in at least one important direction. It now appears likely that as the result of the conference there will be a greater measure of co-ordination in matters of defense between Great Britain and the dominions.

The British Commonwealth of Nations is not a unitary organization but a voluntary federation of independent states held together by the visible bond of the common monarchy and invisible ties of history, sentiment and expediency.

At the time of the World War these ties proved strong enough to make possible a united effort against Britain's enemies. Every part of the empire rallied to the defense of the motherland. But since 1918 it has by no means been certain whether, in the event of another European war involving the United Kingdom, the same thing would happen again.

• • • •

MORE AND MORE since they achieved their independence, the dominions have tended to go their own way. Canada, for instance, made it very clear to Lloyd George in 1922 that he could get no support from the Dominion in the then brewing war in the Near East. None of the dominions accepted the obligations embodied in the Locarno pact which was binding on Great Britain. The members of the British Commonwealth of Nations, in fact, are entirely free to conduct their own affairs even when in so doing their policies conflict with those of Great Britain.

Indeed, in view of what seemed to be an increasing diversity of policies among the members of the British Commonwealth, the hypothetical possibility was more than once suggested that another world war might see Great Britain a belligerent and one or more of the dominions neutral. Yet as long as the League of Nations remained potentially strong this possibility remained more hypothetical than real.

• • • •

THE FACT IS, of course, that Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the Irish Free State, as well as Great Britain itself, are not only members of the British Commonwealth but also members of the League. As League members they are pledged to uphold the Covenant.

Were the League a truly powerful force in international affairs, as many expected it would become, the problem of working out an all-British foreign policy would necessarily merge with that of the operations of the collective system.

Thus, at the time of the Italo-Ethiopian imbroglio, the British Empire could, with no inner friction, work as a unit by the simple device of carrying out the mandates of the League. It was the existence of the League which made it possible for President de Valera, for instance, to take a stand similar to that taken by Downing Street.

The League, however, is in eclipse while threats of war are rising in Europe, Asia and Africa. Thus Geneva has lost its importance as a rallying point for members of the British Commonwealth. Thus the need, as seen from London, as well as from the vantage point of some of the dominion capitals, of an imperial foreign and defense policy has enormously increased. But by the same token the difficulties in the way of achieving such a policy have also increased.

• • • •

CANADA, for instance, has tended more and more to take an isolationist attitude toward European problems while Great Britain finds itself, if reluctantly, increasingly compelled to descend into the European maelstrom. Australia and New Zealand are acutely aware of the Far Eastern problem; South Africa, the Irish Free State and Canada are wholly or largely indifferent to it. On the other hand, South Africa is very much concerned with the problem of Africa; to this problem the other dominions are indifferent.

It is clear, therefore, that the decline of the League represents a very real blow to the stability of the British Commonwealth. This is a fact which helps explain why certain dominions, such as New Zealand, are urging Great Britain and the commonwealth to take the lead in a new effort to rebuild the battered structure of collective security.

Whether this can be done remains to be seen. At the moment the outlook in none too bright. No wonder, then, that the problem of imperial defense dominates the agenda of the present imperial conference. For without collctive security every nation must look to itself for protection against attack. Yet no nation can be sure that its own unaided efforts will be sufficient.

• • • •

IT IS NOT surprising, therefore, that Great Britain, while undertaking new and back-breaking burdens to make possible the achievement of an ambitious rearmament program, is eager to enlist the support of the other members of the Commonwealth.

Not without justification have British statesmen emphasized that the expansion of Britain's land, air and sea forces adds to the security not only of the United Kingdom but of all parts of the far-flung empire as well. And the suggestion has been made that the dominions give recognition to this fact by contributing directly or indirectly to the imperial defense budget or, at least, agreeing to co-ordinate their own rearmament efforts and defense systems with Britain's.

To what extent these suggestions will be adopted by the governments of the dominions remains to be seen. Reports from London indicate, however, that the plea for co-ordination, at least, is not wholly falling on deaf ears.

As a matter of fact, much has already been done to bring about a considerable measure of technical co-ordination between the defense forces of Great Britain and the dominions. The nations of the British Commonwealth have long employed interchangeable equipment and have followed the same methods of training and manuals of arms. There has been a frequent exchange of personnel between them.

The New Zealand navy is actually a division of the imperial navy while that of Australia works in close co-operation with the British admiralty. And by the Simontown agreement the naval defense of South Africa is, by implication, made the task of the British fleet in return for the union government's permission to Great Britain to establish a naval base on South African soil. And last, but not least, there are at regular intervals meetings of the committee of imperial defense whose business it is to harmonize imperial defense policies.

BUT WAR PREPARATIONS, as the whole world now realizes, is more than a matter of armies, navies and air forces. It also involves industrial preparation, merchant shipping, access to sources of essential raw materials and foodstuffs, etc.

It was with this in mind that there was recently created in Great Britain the post of defense co-ordinator with Sir Thomas Inskip in charge. Now, as a result of the imperial conference, a committee has been named to do for the British Empire as a whole what Sir Thomas plans to do for Great Britain alone. It remains to be seen whether the contemplated program of imperial defense co-ordinator can be achieved. There are great obstacles in the way. But even if only partial access is achieved, it would mean a great strengthening of Britain's position in the world.

Rex Stout

By William Lyon Phelps.

A New Mystery.

Rex Stout, who has had varied experiences as a man and who has written a variety of books, suddenly entered the murder-field a few years ago, with a detective story called "Fer de Lance." In this furiously exciting, realistic romance, he introduced two unforgettable persons to hungry readers—the heavyweight detective, Nero Wolf, and his man Friday, called Mr. Goodwin. Nero Wolfe is static in body, weighing 300 pounds; he is dynamic in intellect. He solves all his problems sitting in a chair, the processes of his mentality liquefied by gallons of beer. He is the only sleuth in the world who can drink more beer than Bulldog Drummond.

Cleaning Employe Reinstated in Job

Reinstatement of Clyde Jones, allegedly dismissed from the W. H. Fisher Cleaning Establishment for organizing activity, has been announced by the Laundry Workers Cleaners & Dyers Union, which had appealed the case to the Labor Relations Board.

Jones' dismissal came after the union had opened negotiations with the employer, W. H. Fisher, last Friday. The union, claiming to represent a majority of the employes, took the case to the Labor Relations Board.

Fisher said:

"Of course Jones has a right to enlist employes into his union, but not on my time. And that is why I discharged him. His organizing should be confined to after-work hours in the future."

Dulings Given 99-Year Terms In Slaying Case

Brothers Convicted of 1st Degree Murder in Deputy's Death.

By the Associated Press.

Rocky Mount, Va., May 26.—Paul and Hubbard Duling, brothers, of Summersville, W. Va., were convicted of first degree murder today in the ambush slaying of a Deputy Sheriff three years ago and were each sentenced to 99 years imprisonment.

A motion to set aside the jury verdict was overruled by Circuit Court Judge A. H. Hopkins.

The two were charged with killing Deputy Sheriff T. J. Richards, of Franklin County, by firing upon him as he was riding in an automobile with a colored prisoner, Jim Smith. Smith was killed also and the Dulings brothers have been indicted for this slaying.

The State contended the Dulings killed the officer in revenge for the death of a brother, who was killed when he leaped from a liquor-laden automobile several years ago.

It was the third trial of the two on the same charge.

Two Boys, Man Are Hurt by Autos

Two boys and an elderly man were injured in automobile accidents last night. Ronald Shoop, 4 years old, of 218 Bates street northwest, was struck down while running across the street in front of his house by a car operated by Lester I. Gilmore, 41, of 1216 Q street northwest. Gilmore took him to Sibley Hospital where the boy was found to have concussion of the brain and possible skull fracture.

Paul Posner, 7, of 1114 Penn street northwest, was playing in the 1500 block of West Virginia avenue northeast when he was struck by the automobile of Edward Talbot, 34, of 145 Water street southwest. The boy was removed to Casualty Hospital where his injuries were diagnosed as fracture and contusion of the skull and abrasion of the right knee. Talbot was held at the Ninth Precinct for operating an automobile without a District permit. George Stalcup, sr., 57, of 4337 Wells street, Brentwood, Md., was injured when the car in which he was riding, operated by his son, George Stalcup, collided at Fourth and New York avenue with a car operated by Martin C. Bradford, of Baltimore. Bradford was held at the Ninth Precinct Station on the charge of reckless driving.

Housewife Blinded By Bullet Wound

The woman's husband, Dr. James T. McClenahan, a dentist, told police that he left the apartment to visit a drugstore. When he returned he found his wife on the bed, crying out that she couldn't see.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

For his final orchestral concert of the season Capt. Taylor Branson selected a program attractive for its proportion of unfamiliar compositions, each one of which was well worth the hearing. True, he began with Brahms' "Academic Festival Overture," which is no stranger, and closed with the battered and tattered second "Hungarian Rhapsody" by Liszt. But the overture, the oddest and most jocular acknowledgment ever made by an honorary Doctor of Philosophy, is always enjoyable, and the rhapsody still has an unquenchable vitality.

"A Song of Summer" by Frederick Delius is a companion piece to "On Hearing the First Cuckoo in Spring," and is imbued with the same impassioned feeling for nature. Delius had a temperament singularly sensitive to the atmosphere of place, and his musical evocations of landscape moods are delicately poetic. In his description of summer he has caught the very sultriness of the air and the brooding pressure of the burning sky.

Ravel's "Tzigane," that exacting pastiche of gypsy improvisation, is not yet overdone because it requires a capable violinist to negotiate its difficulties. Albert Schoepper handled it competently on the technical side, although his intonation was not always pure.

The major work of the evening was the first symphony by Arthur Tregina, a retired principal musician of the Marine Band. Inasmuch as it is dedicated to the memory of author of "War and Peace," it might well be called "A Tolstoi symphony." Excellently constructed in form, it shows melodic invention, harmonic facility and a sure sense of instrumental color. The influence of Chaikovski is observable in the treatment of the woodwinds in the first movement, but one was not aware of other derivations.

The first movement opens with a majestic andante, the theme of which is again utilized at the beginning of the last movement, and proceeds into an allegro which has a Slavic tinge. The slow movement has an elegiac theme, introduced by the solo horn, and is tenderly sorrowful in mood. The scherzo, animated by a lively and brusque humor, is brilliantly orchestrated and contains an effective fugato passage.

The composer, now in his seventy-second year, was present to hear the performance of his work, and was singled out by Capt. Branson to receive the tribute of the audience.

Ickes Envisions Road Network To U. S. Parks

Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes, who resides in the outskirts of Kensington, Md., was guest of honor at the annual Kensington Community Day celebration last night at the Kensington Elementary School.

The Secretary envisioned a great network of boulevards connecting the National Parks as he spoke to the 600 persons at the rally. He said the parks should be "close to the wilderness" and not "Coney Islands."

Ickes praised Montgomery County as a place to live and said he has secured a home near Olney in addition to his residence at Kensington.

Washington I. Cleveland, president of the Kensington Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the joint committee in charge of the celebration, presided. The program was held under auspices of 24 organizations.

Boy Scouts, the Washington Gas Light Glee Club and the Music Section of the Women's Community Club of Kensington took part in the program. Invocation and benediction were delivered by the Rev. H. Fairfield Butt 3d, rector of Christ Episcopal Church.

Many county officials attended the celebration which closed with the traditional ice cream and cake.

Mrs. Johnson Arrives Today For Lectures

Widow of Famed Explorer Will Speak Tomorrow on Borneo Trip.

Mrs. Martin Johnson, widow of the celebrated explorer who was killed in an airplane crash shortly after the return of the exploring couple from their last expedition together through the jungle interior of Borneo, will arrive in Washington tonight to give two illustrated lectures on the Borneo trip at Constitution Hall tomorrow.

Although injuries which Mrs. Johnson herself suffered in the same accident that took her husband's life make it necessary for her to talk from a wheel chair, her physicians believe that shortly after the Washington engagement she will be able to do away with the chair entirely.

The first lecture will be given at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, a matinee performance arranged especially for the school children of the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia. The evening lecture will begin at 8:15 p. m.

Under the auspices of the Washington Committee of the Child Welfare League of America, proceeds of the lectures will be used to complete the survey of all child welfare projects in Washington, recently requested by the District of Columbia Council of Social Agencies. Tickets are on sale at the T. Arthur Smith Concert Bureau, 910 G street northwest.

Airport Dirt Feud Truce Called As Army Reviews Law Books

A truce prevailed yesterday in the three-cornered "dirt feud" involving Washington Airport, the Army Engineers Corps and the office of National Capital Parks.

The armistice was agreed upon to enable War Department lawyers to scan law books and decisions for a possible solution to the controversy, in which Manager S. J. Solomon of the airport insists he has a right to dump excavation material in Boundary Channel and the two Federal agencies say he has not.

The police guard which was dispatched to the site Saturday by C. Marshall Finnan, parks superintendent, to prevent execution Solomon's scheme was withdrawn yesterday. Previously Solomon had conferred with Maj. Walter D. Luplow, Army engineer for this district, and the former agreed to halt dumping operations until the corps' legal talent had canvassed the situation.

Fundamentally based upon the unsolved boundary dispute between Virginia and the District, the flare-up originated last week when trucks began depositing excavation dirt on the channel bank across Military Road from the airport.

Maj. Luplow contended that the channel, being a navigable body of water, could not be tampered with unless the War Department issued a permit. Finnan's argument was that the channel banks are Federal land, under jurisdiction of the parks office, and Solomon's position was that it is airport property located in Virginia, not the District.

Yale Health Crusader To Speak on Syphilis

Using as his theme "The Drama of Syphilis," Prof. C. E. A. Winslow, Yale University's noted public health authority, will address physicians, social workers, educators and religious leaders at the annual dinner meeting of the Social Hygiene Society. Assembling at the Mayflower Hotel tonight at 7 p. m., the diners will celebrate the fine progress which Washington and the Nation are making in combating America's health menace. Tributes will be paid to the society's late president, Dr. William A. White, the main eulogy being delivered by Rabbi Abram Simon.

Soviet Buys U. S. Planes, Rights to Manufacture

The Russian government has ordered two Seversky amphibians, manufacturing rights on the planes, and has taken an option on two additional planes, along with complete tooling adequate for the production of 10 such planes daily, the Seversky Aircraft Corporation, of Long Island, announced last night. The contract involved $780,000.

The amphibians, which can operate from land water, ice or snow, only recently have been released by the United States for export. At the Seversky plant, a separate factory houses work on the planes, in order to keep Russian inspectors from studying other Seversky productions for the United States Government.

YOU will know the minute you see this tire why car owners everywhere call it the greatest tire ever made to sell at these low prices. The deeper, wider, flatter non-skid tread made of tough, long wearing rubber will give you dependable service and protection against dangerous skidding.

But tires cannot be judged on tread alone. Under the tread of Firestone Standard Tires are two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords. This Firestone patented construction feature binds the tread and cord body into one inseparable unit, provides greater strength and guards against punctures. Now examine the body of the tire. Every cotton fiber in every cord in every ply is saturated and coated with pure liquid rubber which counteracts the internal friction and heat that ordinarily destroy tire life. This Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping makes the tire stronger—gives greater protection against blowouts and is used only in Firestone Tires.

Don't risk your life on thin, worn tires when you can have new tires with all these extra values at such low cost. Come in and join the Firestone Save A Life Campaign today by equipping your car with a set of new Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires.

DON'T RISK YOUR LIFE ON THIN WORN TIRES

Above is a section cut from a smooth, worn tire, which shows the non-skid protection worn off. Tires in this condition are more liable to punctures, blowouts and skidding.

Above is section cut from a new Firestone Tire. Note the thick non-skid protection against skidding, blowouts and punctures. Come in today and see by actual demonstration.

Protect yourself and your family from the danger of driving on thin worn tires which may cause a serious accident.

DO YOU KNOW

THAT last year highway accidents cost the lives of more than 38,000 men, women and children?

THAT a million more were injured?

THAT more than 40,000 of these deaths and injuries were caused directly by punctures, blowouts and skidding due to unsafe tires?

House Group Pushing D. C. Levy Program

Sub-Committee Baffled in Effort to Get Added Revenue.

By James D. Secrest.

Still undecided on what new forms of taxation to recommend, the Kennedy sub-committee of the House District Committee will meet at 9 o'clock this morning in an effort to whip into shape a program before the end of the week.

With members divided on the general sales tax, the sub-committee yesterday groped about for possible new levies, including an increase in the real estate tax, a higher levy on liquor, and the installation of parking meters.

The District Commissioners were alarmed as the sub-committee members began picking to pieces the major planks in their 5-point tax program and reminded the committee that only about a month remains before the end of the fiscal year.

"I don't know what we're going to do," complained Melvin C. Hazen, president of the board. "We've only got about 30 days to clean up this whole muddle. The only alternative is to raise the realty tax rate."

Representative Dirksen (Republican), Illinois, started the attack on the commissioner's tax program by predicting that the House would not pass the sales tax and stating that he would move to substitute an income tax on the floor.

Another member of the sub-committee, Representative Nichols (Democrat), Oklahoma, disagreed with Dirksen and expressed the belief that the House would approve a sales tax.

The repeated suggestion that the realty tax be raised came from Representative Cole (Democrat), of New York.

Cole began by suggesting a $2 realty tax rate, but concluded with a proposal that it be raised 10 cents or to $1.60 on $100 valuation.

While the District heads raised their hands in alarm at the $2 rate, Hazen said he believed the 10-cent jump would not meet with any great objection from taxpayers.

Sales Tax Needed.

He pointed out, however, that such a slight boost would not solve the fiscal problem, unless the sales tax is retained. It would raise only $1,000,000, he said.

Washington business men came in for a strong reprimand from Nichols after Hazen had stated that the sales tax has been approved by the Board of Trade.

"I never saw a city where business men are as cold-blooded and as unresponsivee to trade as they are in Washington," he said.

He suggested reviving the business privilege tax which the Commissioners suggested originally and then discarded in favor of a sales tax.

Nichols also assailed parking lot operators as "a bunch of bloodthirsty robbers" and urged the District officials to hike the license fees on them and other enterprises in Washington.

Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal agreed that something should be done to raise the license fees at least to the costs of inspection, but he expressed doubt as to how the scale of fees could be worked out.

People's Lobby Stand.

He pointed out that while the cost of supervising parking lots is small, about half the Metropolitan Police Department is detailed to Griffith Stadium on the opening day of the baseball season, yet the Washington ball club pays only $5 fee for a year.

Another attack on the sales tax was from an outsider, Benjamin C. Marsh, of the People's Lobby, who explained he was speaking only as a private citizen.

A sales tax, he said, is "imposed only by a pickpocket government, which is too dishonest or too cowardly to tax either on the principle of benefit received or ability to pay."

He advocated an income tax on incomes over $3,000 and the substitution of a graduated land tax for the present realty property levy.

Two Government employe groups, WPA Lodge, 139, American Federation of Government Employes, and the Inter-Union Council, have officially expressed themselves against the proposed sales tax for the District.

WPA lodge stated that the sales tax "is undoubtedly one of the frankest attempts on record to make the low-salaried Government employe and other workers in the District carry the burden of local government."

U. S. to Sell Land.

A bill was signed by President Roosevelt yesterday authorizing the Secretary of War to sell to General Motors Corporation part of the Holabird Quartermaster Depot, Baltimore.

MRS. IDA B. WISE SMITH.

"During the last five years the W. C. T. U. has gained at the rate of 1,000 new members a week," announced Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, of Illinois, president of the Temperance Union, yesterday, at headquarters at the Washington Hotel.

Among the first delegates to arrive here for an international convention with representatives from 53 foreign nations, Mrs. Smith, a small woman, brimful of activity, said that each of the 48 States will act as "hostess" to one of the foreign nations.

"My State, Illinois, is hostess for India," she explained. "I was born in Iowa. Iowa is hotess to Palestine." This arrangement is carried on to a neat conclusion, as each of the Territories has been granted chaperonage of one nation, too, there being 53 of each.

Anticigarette Campaign.

Tea and coffee will be served at a giant banquet during the gathering between June 2 and 8. "We have no objection to tea and coffee," Mrs. Smith stated. "We do have an educational program against cigarettes and other narcotics."

Chief activity of the W. C. T. U., she said, is best expressed in the pledge, which says, "I hereby solemnly promise, God helping, to abstain from all distilled, fermented, and malt liquors." Explaining, Mrs. Smith said malt liquors referred to beer.

"We obtained exactly 52,970 new memberships at $1 apiece last year," Mrs. Smith said. "That's 1,000 a week. We'll do better next year.

Liquor Opposition.

"Because this is an international convention, we will not discuss policies so much as listen to reports of various enterprises of ours all over the world. In Egypt, for instance, we are fighting narcotics rather than liquor.

"I won't drink. I'll do all I can to keep you from drinking, and I'll do my best to take all the liquor stores off the streets. That is our policy in the United States."

Mrs. Smith, dressed in a pale blue knitted silk suit and wearing a sable scarf, said that "Washington will have to better on this weather. It's really too hot here."

Discussing the German delegation, she said with approval that Hitler was a total abstainer, and that during the Olympics der Fuehrer had turned over the woman athletes to the W. C. T. U. to see that they were kept sober. "The beer people raised an awful row," said Mrs. Smith.

Special Film Showing.

"Sulphur and Molasses," a new talking motion picture, will be shown tonight and tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock at the Wardman Park Hotel to Esso dealers and their employes.

Navy Board's Support of Zep Plans Revealed

Recommended $3,000,000 Dirigible Months Ago; Swanson Undecided.

The Navy General Board, policy-determining "cabinet" of the Navy Department, has recommended the construction of a small airship, roughly about 3,000,000 cubic feet capacity and costing about $3,000,000, to replace the Los Angeles, now decommissioned at Lakehurst.

Although the general board apparently made its recommendation several months ago, not until yesterday did Secretary Claude A. Swanson allow the information to become public. Even then, the statement was made only in conjunction with a general discussion of the Navy's lighter-than-air policy. The Secretary has not indorsed the board's decision.

Legislation to provide for the airship's construction was introduced in Congress two months ago, but no mention was made of the general board's report. Late in April, referring to the bills, Secretary Swanson reported that, "As its future policy regarding rigid airships is now under consideration, the Navy Department prefers not to make any recommendation on the bills * * * at this time."

Yesterday the Secretary indicated that the department, officially, has still to make a decision regarding its airship policy. Although the Durand committee, a group of experts appointed nearly two years ago to study the question, has recommended the construction of an airship in both of its reports, and although the general board's suggestion duplicated a recommendation made in 1934, the Secretary said the question is still being "studied."

He also admitted that the Navy is divided within itself as to the feasibility of renewed airship construction, and that he himself has not yet changed his skepticism of airships as implements of war. He asserted that they are vulnerable, expensive to construct, costly to operate and "depend on the weather."

Apparently, the Hindenburg tragedy has not had a serious effect on the Navy official's undetermined attitude. In previous statements, Swanson has said that the hydrogen-filled airship could not be compared to helium-filled American airships.

Hollering Tourney Draws 30 Entries, Much Controversy

New Orleans, May 26 (AP).—Warren Doyle who has become impresario of the Louisana Holler, said today he has 30 entries for a hollering tournament next Fourth of July.

Doyle disclosed casually last week he was gonig to sponsor such a contest among his rural neighbors in St. Tammany Parish.

Residents of the "Piney Woods," he explained, greet the dawn with cries of joy and wild halloos that appealed greatly to him on vacations on his houseboat in Bayou Lacombe.

"I have letters from north Louisianna saying that the St. Tammany boys would be out-hollered up there on the first yell," he declared.

To a statement by representative Otha D. Wearin in Washington that hog-calling in the corn belt is an art vastly superior to Louisianna dawn-whooping the attorney replied, "Iowa yells are attuned to the ear of a hog, and appreciated only by a hog. These boys here really make music."

Deceased Members Honored by House

By the Associated Press.

Tributes to the 6 Senators and 15 Representatives were paid in addresses by Representatives Tolan (Democrat), California, and Short (Republican), Missouri.

Members of families of the deceased occupied reserved seats in the first two rows of seats in the chamber, the well of which was decorated with large white water lilies. Among them was Mrs. Rubye Nix Zioncheck, youthful widow of Representative Marion A. Zioncheck, of Seattle.

Bob Burns Says:

I suppose I'm just like all the other country boys. After I've been in the city a while, I like to get my country relatives out here so I can show off a little bit.

When Grandpaw Snazzy came out here to visit me, I couldn't wait to get him up to one of these fashionable night clubs, so he could see some of these modern dances. I knew he had never gone to anything but the square dances back home.

Well sir, he sat there and watched 'em for a couple of dances and then he turned to me and says, "I'd like to get out there and dance." I says "Grandpaw, you don't know anything about these modern dances," and he says, "Well, there ain't a thing in the world to it—all you got to do is keep turnin' around and wipin' your feet!"

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

Revolt.

Leaders of the six A. F. G. E. lodges that have openly and without mincing words revolted against what they call the inactivity of their national leaders in the economy crisis yesterday were standing by their guns in the face of the cease and desist order from A. F. G. E. President Stengle, who has frowned on the independent fight the six revolting groups are making against the economy moves in Congress.

The six lodges' "committee on economy" will meet tonight—in the face of the cease and desist order—to arrange for a mass meeting which is calculated to arouse public support behind the revolting A. F. G. E. groups. And yesterday letters were in the hands of all A. F. G. E. lodges urging them to join the "rebel" six "to combat this threat to decent working conditions and efficient Government service."

According to Janet Gaines, chairman of the committee on contacts for six lodges, speakers will appear before as many lodges as possible next week in an effort to enlist their support.

"Judging from the numerous unsolicited expressions of support and approval coming from both individual and organized groups of Government employes, there can be no question as to where Government employes stand on this issue," Miss Gaines stated yesterday.

"We can confidently predict that within the next few days many more A. F. G. E. lodges will join us in this fight against false economy in the Government service."

Letter.

The letter sent by the six lodges to the other A. F. G. E. groups follows:

"As you are aware, Congress is now moving toward a repetition of the ill-fated economy drive of 1932. We know, as Government workers, that we cannot give the public the service to which they are entitled in understaffed agencies where overtime is rife, furloughs prevail, wholesale dismissals take place, and leave is curtailed. Finally, a general wage cut is a logical complement of this pending legislation—and this in the face of a rising cost of living. We call upon all A. F. G. E. members to consider that the effect upon Government workers of such measures is most serious, endangering particularly the job standards and job security of lower-paid workers both within and without the classified service.

"The public must be informed that such so-called economy measures are in fact wasteful, not only in curtailing all Government services—however essential—but also in decreasing the efficiency and destroying the morale of such Government workers as are left on the job. When the public is convinced that Government workers are not parasites, Congress will no longer attempt to achieve economies at the sole expense of the Federal pay roll.

Threat.

"To conmbat this threat to decent working conditions and efficient Government service six A. F. G. E. lodges in the District of Columbia have united efforts for the sole purpose of waging a public campaign against false economy. This campaign is the only method of forming an intelligent public opinion to support us in our claims that real economy in Government cannot be achieved by ill-considered and indiscriminate appropriation slashing. We invite all lodges to aid us in our effort to avoid another costly battle such as that of 1932.

"We are taking these steps only after repeated efforts to persuade the national office to conduct such a campaign in conjunction with other A. F. of L. unions. Our obligations as lodge officers would be violated if we did not assume the responsibility for the action which is demanded by our membership. Our members wholeheartedly endorse the strong stand taken by William Green, who, at the Maryland-D. C. Federation of Labor Convention on May 17, urged all organized labor to opposed the pending so-called economy moves.

"It is urged that public opinion in your locality be mobilized behind those members of Congress who take advantage of this unprecedented opportunity to bring unorganized Government workers within the ranks of the A. F. G. E. It is urged that every possible effort be made to inform the public of the true effect of such attempts to repeat the unfortunate 1932 experience with ill-considered economy legislation.

"If your members, too, are interested in defending themselves against these false economy measures, we ask you to get in touch with us at once."

Traffic Hazard Removal Goal Of Road Group

Experts Will Meet Today to Plan Highway Safety Drive.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

A concerted attack on traffic hazards on the Nation's highways will open today when 50 safety experts from the District and surrounding States gather in the Willard Hotel to discuss plans with delegates to the American Road Builders' annual meeting.

Representing 35,000 highway engineers and constructors, the road builders' association is prepared to throw its entire strength behind a movement to reduce accidents, said Charles M. Upham, of Washington, engineer-director of the group.

"The blemish of avoidable accidents must be wiped out," said Upham. "The committee on safe highways of the association is convinced this can be done through application of modern engineering methods—the building of safety into the Nation's roads."

The association opened a three-day meeting yesterday. A morning session was addressed by Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the Bureau of Public Roads. He discussed the future of highway planning and its relationship to traffic safety.

Elimination of dangerous highway curves, the meeting was told, will do more to promote safe driving than any attempts to teach motorists how to "take" these turns at high speeds.

In announcing plans for a Nation-wide traffic safety movement, Upham declared:

"Immediate steps must be taken if we do not want 1937 to reach an all-time peak in highway deaths. Accidental fatalities to date are already 26 per cent over 1936.

"We, as road builders, are going to concern ourselves with the rehabilitation of antiquated roads. We are determined to reconstruct safety into the old roads and build safety into the new.

Washington's problems were described by Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer and Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District highway director. Capt. Whitehurst was elected president of a local branch of the association.

Yale Alumni Stage 63d Rally, Ponder Over Cummings' Talk

Attorney General Relates Napoleon Story Which May Describe President's Attitude Toward Court Reform Proposal.

The cheers and songs of Eli rang out in the Mayflower Hotel last night as the Yale Club of Washington gathered for its sixty-third dinner.

Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, Yale '91, told a story about Napoleon that might have described President Roosevelt's attitude toward enlargement of the Supreme Court—and, then again, might have had nothing at all to do with it. He left the interpretation to his fellow alumni.

"The great Napoleon," said Cummings, "was in the midst of a crucial battle when, in an inadvertent moment, he sat on a red-hot cannon. With commendable celerity, he rose and shouted:

"I can not retreat: I've burned my britches behind me."

Cummings Gets Cheer.

Yale men, Republicans as well as Democrats, joined in giving Cummings a roaring "Breke Ke Ke Kex, Rah 9 times, Yale-Cummings!"

A graduate of the Class of '98, Representative James W. Wadsworth (Republican), of New York, told a story that served to illustrate the great difference between the undergraduate of his time and the undergraduate of today.

In the free silver campaign of 1896, Wadsworth recalled, William Jennings Bryan went to New Haven to deliver a speech. He never made it. Every time he started to talk, Yale boys set up a cheer for William McKinley. It wasn't that they disliked Bryan or that they favored McKinley. They simply thought that the silk-hatted politicians who crowded the platform were funny, and that something ought to be done about it.

Wadsworth remembered the incident well because he was arraigned as one of the hecklers.

New Yale Attitude.

But if Bryan appeared on the Yale campus today, Wadsworth and the other speakers implied, he would get a far different reception with his 16-to-1 slogan. He would find a body of students keenly interested in public affairs, alive to questions of the day and eager to ask questions about them.

Representative Wadsworth had noted this on a recent visit to Yale, and so had Dean Acheson, '15, member of the Yale Corporation, and Wayne Chatfield Taylor, '16, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. They, along with James M. Landis, Princeton man, who soon will retire as chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission to become dean of the Harvard Law School, spoke.

Wadsworth told of a speech he made to a group of Yale students of which his son was a member.

"Then came the question period," he said, "and believe it, my friends, I was put on the spot. Those boys were acute, keenly interested in the issues of the day. They are questioning. They are wondering whether their forbears were right."

Class System Dying.

Alumnus Acheson agreed that a university education today is regarded as a much more serious venture than it once was. He predicted that the old class system—freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors—eventually would disappear.

"The undergraduates are no longer boys," he said, "they are adults. They are vitally interested in what is going on in the world. The freshman is no longer satisfied to do merely what he is asked to do. He does research work far beyond the requirements. So does the sophomore.

"My own opinion is that the whole class system is going to disappear."

Acheson also told of the revolution that has taken place in the methods of instruction. Recitations, historical dates and daily examinations have given way to a system designed to give the undergraduate a breadth and depth of knowledge.

Shuns Mass Education.

Yale, he said, is not so much concerned now about mass education as it is about turning out a limited number of distinguished graduates.

Landis agreed that the big schools would have to think in terms of limitation, of the quality of education, rather than the number exposed to education.

Taylor predicted that, as a result of the interest undergraduates are now showing in public affairs, the United States can look forward to a constantly improving government.

Plea for Public Defender Made In House Group

Rep. Scott Assails Leaving the Poor to 'Shysters and Fledgelings.'

A plea for the creation of an office of public defender in the United States district court was made yesterday to a sub-committee of the House Judiciay Committee by Representative Scott (Democrat), of California.

The hearing was not concluded, however, and no new session was scheduled. Scott intimated that he expected merely to lay the groundwork for favorable action at the next session of Congress rather than this year.

Scott assailed the policy of leaving impoverished defendants to the mercy of "shyster lawyers and fledgelings."

The former, he said, merely delay proceedng while they bleed relatives of the defendants, while the latter are usually just out of law school and are not experienced enough to defend unfortunates properly.

He submitted reports from officials of other jurisdictions where public defenders operate and predicted that similarly satisfactory results would occur here. He suggested that a District office might be tried as an experiment before creating similar offices in all United States district courts.

He said the Columbia Heights Citizens Association had indorsed the measure voluntarily.

Jewish Group Is Told Democracy Only Haven

The Jewish people are safe only in a democracy Dr. Josef Dunner, Jewish lecturer, told an audience at the auditorium in the Jewish Community Center last night. The speaker, novelist and international correspondent, was forced to leave his native Germany when the Nazis came into power.

The speaker described racial conditions throughout Europe, dealing at length with the problems faced by Jews in Germany and Poland.

In Warsaw, he asserted, 90,000 Jewish children have only one meal a day. He asked his audience to help Jewish refugees, by making contributions to the Joint Distribution Committee.

Mercury Hits 84; Capital Workman Overcome by Heat

One heat prostration was reported by police yesterday afternoon as the mercury climbed to 84 degrees at 2:30 p. m., remaining there until after a light shower about 4 o'clock.

James Hinely, 25, of Nokesville, Va., was prostrated by the heat while working at Wisconsin avenue and K street northwest. He was taken to Emergency Hospital, where his condition was reported undetermined.

The day's highest temperature was 84 degrees, reported at 2:30 and again at 3. After a shower the temperature dropped only 4 degrees, as the Weather Bureau forecast cloudy skies, with occassional showers. Cooler weather is due to arrive late this afternoon.

The day's lowest temperature was 67 degrees, reported at 4 a. m.

Attorney, Accused in Robbery of Tailor Here, May Not Testify.

A move to establish an "alibi" defense for John William Tomlinson and Phillip John Pratt, who are being tried in District Court on a charge of robbing Sam Siratonis, a tailor, of 3003 Fourteenth street northwest, of $785, was made by attorneys yesterday immediately after the Government concluded the prosecution testimony.

Several witnesses, among them Tomlinson's attractive wife, were called to state that he was not in the places where Charles Henry Bass, a third defendant, who pleaded guilty and then turned State's witness, said he was.

Trial was abruptly adjourned late last night with Pratt on the stand undergoing cross-examination by Samuel F. Beach, assistant United States attorney. He said he was arrested in Baltimore, whither he had fled when he found local police were searching for him, although he said he did know why he was being sought.

The trio, of which Tomlinson was pictured by police as being the master mind, is charged with beating Siratonis over the head and robbing him of a large bankroll which he was carrying on his person because he was afraid of the banks. The two colored men, Pratt and Bass, left tell-tale evidence, police charged, when they became frightened and left an automobile in which they had driven to the tailor shop, standing in front. They escaped on foot leaving Siratonis unconscious on the floor of his shop.

Defense Attorneys James O'Shea, Alfred Goldstein and John Burnett said they would probably conclude their defense testimony today, although the arguments over instructions to the jury and the examination of rebuttal witnesses may consume another day. No statement was forthcoming as to whether Tomlinson, onetime attorney for Gaston B. Means, would take the stand.

Vote League Urges Boost In D. C. Relief

Need of Jobless Called More Important Than Additions to Zoo.

The District League of Women Voters yesterday opened the drive for increased unemployment relief appropriations in the District supply bill at a hearing before the Senate sub-committee handling the measure.

Other social welfare organizations are expected to be heard today in a plea for funds for unemployed employables.

While sympathetic to the need, Senator Thomas, chairman of the sub-committe, called attention to the rising District deficit that is now expected to reach $7,500,000 or more.

Mrs. Lester Buchanan asserted to the sub-committee human suffering should be considered before "air-cooled bird houses" or other new buildings at the Zoo.

The delegation was headed by Mrs. Walter S. Ufford and included Mrs. David Cushman Coyle, Mrs. Allan Morgan, Mrs. John Allan Moore and Mrs. R. Thomas West.

The women asked that the Children's Receiving Home not be abolished abruptly, as provided in the House bill, but that the change to boarding homes be effected gradually over a period of months.

The delegation also asked for restoration of the Gallinger Hospital appropriation to the Budget Bureau estimate, additional nurses at the Glenn Dale Sanatoria, a hospital ward at the District Training School for Feeble-Minded, and an increase in personnel at the Home for the Aged.

Senator Thomas intimated the House provision for establishing a bonding office in the corporation counsel's office will be stricken from the bill because of an adverse report from Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal.

The sub-committee was confronted with the problem of what to do about the recorder of deeds' office in that owners of the building are demanding an increase in rent.

Senator Thomas said he referred the problem to the Commissioners after the question of building a new office and renting space elsewhere was discussed.

Legislator to Speak.

Representative George H. Mahon, of Texas, will speak at a meeting of the Association of Non-Classified Federal Employes in the Hotel Willard tonight. Representative Harry R. Sheppard, of California, will introduce Mahon, whose topic will be "The Problem of the Unclassified Employe."

Keith Picture Reveals Boles As a Comedian

By Nelson B. Bell.

"AS GOOD AS MARRIED," Universal picturization of a story by Norman Krasna, adapted to the screen by F. Hugh Herbert and Lynn Starling, starring John Boles, with Doris Nolan, Walter Pidgeon, Alan Mowbray, Tala Birell, Katharine Alexander, Mary Phillips, Ernest Cossart, Harry Davenport, Esther Ralston, Dorothea Kent and Walter Byron. Directed by Eddie Bussell. Reviewed at RKO-Keith's Wednesday afternoon.

Devoid of any "mission" in the matter of preachment, "As Good As Married" is merely diverting and inconsequential screen fare that has been rigged up with a fine material embellishment, skillfully directed and made the beneficiary of a cast perhaps more distinguished than the fragile nature of the plot deserves.

It is the familiar story of the "marriage of convenience," arranged between the young architect and his secretary for reasons of evading "woman trouble" and the income tax law. From that point on the formula is pretty well known—the rival architect, who "cuts in" on the bride at every opportunity; the pursuing females who will not permit Alexander Drew to live in peace; the house parties, the office embroglios and whatnot.

Done With Finesse.

In this subject, the treatment of the fable has been given a polish, a savoir faire and a polite sophistication that place it among the better exhibits of its kind. It would hardly be possible to designate this release a "special," but it would be completely bogus not to denominate it one of the better "program" films.

The cast is such as to justify even more sprightly material than that with which they have to deal. John Boles, long-standing friend that he is, never has impressed this column as being especially on the side of comedy. His best work, heretofore, has been done in serious roles. Here, however, he presents himself as a debonair young man of wealth with a fine flair of tickling the risibilities. This performance will add a new palm to the medal he wears for his work in "Back Street" and "Craig's Wife."

The whole credit for the success of "As Good as Married," nevertheless, is not Mr. Boles'.

Supporting Cast Fine.

Walter Pidgeon, as Frazer James, the rivel architect, does an especially able piece of characterization as a harassed lover who seems disinclined to take "no" for an answer, even from another man's wife. No less may be said of Alan Mowbray, whose Wally Burnside also catches the spirit of the play and adds much to its comedy value.

Among the feminine members of the cast, first honors must go to Doris Nolan, that fabulous Universal "discovery," who has something to learn about acting, but still is a decoration to any screen play. She is cast as Boles' secretary-wife, who finally wins the day. Tala Birell is an effective menace, as the Princess something-or-other, whose pet name is "Cherry," and Katherine Alexander also lends her talents to the balance of a cast that is beyond reproach.

There is an occasional musical background for the pictured action that has been arranged with rare skill and, for once, does not submerge the developments of the dramatic narrative under a blast of sound. The whole spirit of the picture, as a matter of fact, is one of finesse and good taste.

The Pathe News, a single-reel subject by the title of "Stevedores" and a two-reeler devoted to the Dionne Quintuplets complete a bill that should satisfy the tastes of a wide range of theatergoers.

Two Army Pilots Get Flying Cross

James H. Wallace, a first lieutenant in the Army Air Corps and a native of Washington, has been awarded a Distinguished Flying Cross for heroism during a flight over Panama two years ago, the War Department announced yesterday. Lieut. Frank A. Armstrong, of Shreveport, La., the pilot of the plane, received a similar award.

Wallace, who is now stationed at Hamilton Field, San Rafael, Calif., was copilot of the plane. While flying at an altitude of 4,000 feet over jungle and mountainous terrain, the right engine of the plane disintegrated. The passengers jumped and Wallace remained in the plane and assisted the pilot in making a safe landing.

Swanson Planning To Revamp Fleet

Reorganization of the battleship divisions of the Battle Force in the United States fleet and reassignment of several destroyers were announced yesterday by Secretary Swanson. The reorganization, which provides better tactical organization and increased efficiency, is the result of several years of study and recommendations by flag officers in the fleet, the Navy General Board and high-ranking shore officers.

Nelson B. Bell About The Show Shops

Former Manager of the National Theater Has Signed for Use of College Facilities for Staging Summer Plays, Beginning in July; Theater Council Rides for a Fall; News Notes of the Current Amusement World.

HOT on the heels of all the announcements that have been made concerning the inauguration of the new season of the Roadside Theater, there comes a personal visit from Stephen E. Cochran, former manager of the National Theater and impresario of the National Theater Players, one of the most celebrated of the summer stock companies, to the effect that he definitely has articled for the presentation of a 10-week summer season of stage successes, past and present, and probably a new manuscript play, "prior to Broadway," at the University of Maryland.

BELL.

This is a setting that will lend dignity and easy accessability to Mr. Cochran's pretentious program. The auditorium, or stadium, or whatever it is called, at the U. of M., has a glass roof that is partially removable and gives promise of comfort for patrons on hot nights.

The policy, as I understand it, will be largely the same as the one followed at the National when Mr. Cochran conducted his National Theater Players with high success over a period of 11 years—a sterling stock company to do the major chores and an imported star of the first rank to take the spotlight each week.

As I have said, one of the advantages of this new alliance of Cochran with the university is that it provides easy access and plenty of parking space. The plays, again to be slightly repetitious, can be presented in the open or under roofs as the vagrancies of the weather man occasion.

Mr. Cochran, of course, is known to all Capital theatergoers. He was manager of the National Theater for a period of 30 years and prior to that had been identified with other theatrical interests in Washington. That he knows how to conduct a summer stock company has been amply demonstrated by the history of the National Theater Players. From the ranks of that sturdy flock sprang such subsequent stars as Edward Arnold, Minor Watson, Stanley Ridges, Leneta Lane, Roger Pryor, recently on the Earle stage with his band; Mrs. Adelaide Hibbard and many others.

This department wishes Steve luck in his new enterprise, which, incidentally, rather effectually nullifies that deal for the expansive acreage out in Maryland opposite the Olney Inn. That seems to have gone by the board. The University of Maryland alignment seems to be positive.

Curtailment of space in yesterday's issue of The Post, as it related to the drama section, prevented a full exposition of the verve with which the Civic Theater acting group are attacking "Fly Away Home," the lively comedy that represents their last production of the season. This piece is played with a speed, vivacity and all-around ebullience that semiamateur companies seldom are able to attain. The whole thing, as goes without saying, being a farce, does not amount to a row of pins—unless you set a row of pins up as your symbol of an amusing evening in the theater. After each performance of "Fly Away Home," a reception is held on the stage at the Wardman Park Theater, at which the audience is permitted to meet personally those who have had a hand in the staging of the play and its enactment. It runs through Friday of this week only. Better see it.

It probably will fall on the lay ear as a bit of heresay, but I feel that the first annual convention of the American Theater Council, at the Astor Hotel in New York, is not going to amount to a great deal in lasting advantage to the theater of the living drama.

I am led to this belief by observation of many such conclaves in the past and a consciousness that the so-called "legitimate" theater on this occasion is "stealing" too much of the stuff that has made Hollywood dominant. A great deal of motion picture money, if you must know the truth, is poured into the coffers of the New York producers each year for the furtherance of their admirable business. It will be a delicate business to draw the line so fine that there will be no quarrel between the film magnates and Broadway, if the first suggestions of the Theater Council are followed.

More and more, I am coming to agree with Max Gordon in his view that there are not enough schooled actors to cast plays sufficient for the sort of 40-week season we used to have in the old days. It is a matter that will take long and careful deliberation to solve.

There is also a bit of resentment, possibly, in the suggestion that the play producers plan to send out "road shows" from which professional critics will be banned because the productions will not measure up to the standards of critical appraisal. That is one of the most asinine proposals I ever have heard in three decades of devotion to the playhouse—a confession of weakness at its start that would be fatal at the boxoffice. However, the ladies and gentlemen in the chair at the Astor may know what they are talking about. In large measure, it is my personal impression that they are talking around Robin Hood's barn, whatever and wherever that may be.

So the screenings still go on. Yesterday, the drama desks were regaled with a preview of "They Gave Him a Gun," the subject that stars Spencer Tracy and concerning which he wrote at some length in a recent Sabbath issue of the drama section of The Post. This is a drama of vibrant content, directed by that recent visitor to Washington, Maj. Woody S. Van Dyke, who makes very few mistakes with that megaphone of his.

Tomorrow, the Warner Brothers' local executives are screening "Kid Galahad." They could not have picked a worse day for it, from the viewpoint of this unimportant outpost. But that's the way it goes in this "racket"—and if anybody in authority sees that word, I am only kidding!

Final Conclusion Note.

Steps Out as an Ace Comedian

In "As Good As Married," which opened on the screen at the RKO-Keith Theater yesterday, John Boles establishes himself as a polished, "drawing-room" comedian of the sophisticated type. His performance will do much to substantiate the fine impressions which he created as long ago as "Back Street" and as recently as in "Craig's Wife," both subjects of more serious and dramatic import.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

Hollywood, May 26.—Out of the past: Today's bright moment was a chat with Anita Stewart. Remember her at fame's peak, a decade or so ago, in such pictures as "The Goddess," "The Girl Philippa" and "Never the Twain Shall Meet?" She was one of the most beautiful girls on the screen and she is still a lovely woman—a mellower loveliness. There is nothing of heartbreak or frustration about the very dignified Mrs. George Converse, ex-star.

TRACY.

Anita's career ran true to form. Beginning as a five-dollar-a-day extra, she climbed to $7,000 a week and a popularity in keeping with her price. Then a run of poor pictures, plus the public's yen for new faces, started her on the down skids. Marriage and divorce returned her name to headlines briefly; after that she disappeared from the Hollywood scene. And for once a fallen star made no effort to stage a comeback.

If there is anything that irks me more than the high-hattitude of some stars, it is the incredibly bad manners of some fans. The other night, after a preview, I saw Anne Shirley running the gauntlet at the door. She wore a gardenia corsage—but not for long. A wild-eyed female, old enough to know better, suddenly dashed up to her and exclaimed, "Those flowers are lovely—I know you won't mind my having them for a souvenir!" Before the astonished Anne could protest, the flowers were ripped away and the woman disappeared in the crowd. At such moments, I think Garbo has the right idea.

The Post's New Yorker

New York, May 26.

THE COUNTRY'S FRONT PAGES on Saturday reported that Alabama's Scottsboro cases will be settled, with all nine defendants pleading guilty, but receiving prison terms instead of death sentences. The report also said that none of the terms would be as long as the 75-year sentence meted out to Heywood Patterson . . . The truth is that all the defendants will not plead guilty. At least four—or possibly five—will be liberated. The remaining ones will receive short prison sentences.

Loew's Capitol Schedules New Van Dyke Film

Beginning tomorrow on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater the principal film attraction will be "They Gave Him a Gun," the production directed by Maj. Woody S. Van Dyke, with Spencer Tracy, Franchot Tone and Gladys George in the featured roles. The story is one that is said to pack a considerable "wallop" and one that provides Spencer Tracy with perhaps the best role he has had since "Captains Courageous," which has been previewed, but not yet publicly presented in Washington. On the stage, three acts will compete for first place—Phil Regan, film star and noted singer; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Crawford, wizards at the console of the organ, and "Popeye, the Sailor."

Charles Ruggles, Eleanore Whitney, Johnny Downs, Benny Baker, Phil Harris and His Orchestra, Ben Blue and numerous others will be pictured stars on next week's bill on the screen at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater, beginning tomorrow, in a new Paramount musical comedy production, "Turn Off the Moon." On the stage the living bill will be headlined by the California Collegians, Hollywood's most famous singing funsters. They have been seen on the screen in "Top of the Town," "Champagne Waltz," "Roberta," and other productions. Louise Massey and Her Westerners, Grace and Nikko and the Jackson Boys will round out the stage program.

At the National Theater next week, beginning Sunday, "Lost Horizon," the Frank Capra production for Columbia Pictures, will enter its third week of "road-show" production in the Capital. The principal roles are played by Ronald Colman, Jane Wyatt, Sam Jaffe, H. B. Warner and a long list of others who lend this subject an unusual appeal. No supplementary features are shown, "Lost Horizon" being of full evening's length.

On Saturday of the current week, "Carnival in Flanders" will return to the screen at the Belasco Theater, succeeding the combination bill of "Ladies Lake" and "Happiness," with Simone Simon and Charles Boyer in the stellar roles of the respective pictures. This riotous comedy is risque, but highly hilarious.

At Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater next week, beginning tomorrow, the chief feature of the screen bill will be "The Prince and the Pauper" the film version of the Mark Twain story in which the principal roles are played by Errol Flynn and the Mauch Twins. Others in the cast include Henry Stephenson, Phyllis Barry, Fritz Leiber and Montague Love.

By a last-minute decision, such as motion-picture theater executives are wont to make, it was determined yesterday that the popular-price engagement of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's film version of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" at Loew's Palace Theater will end tonight. Tomorrow, the chief feature of the bill will be "This Is My Affair," in which the costellar roles are played by Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck. This is the subject in which Frank Conroy impersonates the late President McKinley; Sidney Blackmer, the late President Theodore Roosevelt, and Robert McWade assumes the role of the late Admiral Dewey, hero of Manila Bay.

Janet Gaynor and Fredric March will occupy the screen at Loew's Columbia Theater this new week, beginning tomorrow, in the Technicolor production of "A Star Is Born," a romantic tale of how actresses come to eminence in Hollywood. They are supported by Adolphe Menjou, May Robson, Andy Devine and Lionel Stander in a first-class story of travail and triumph. This is a repeat engagement.

"War's End" is announced as the major feature of next week's bill at the Little Theater. It purports to make clear the answer to that moot question, "Who Won the War?" The film, by animated pictures and maps, is said to reveal the tactical maneuvers by which the Germans were turned back and the tide of battle was thrown in the direction of the Allies

Text of President's Message

I transmit herewith to the Senate with a view to obtaining the advice and consent of that body, five international conventions, two treaties and an additional protocol which were signed by the delegates of the United States of America at the inter-American conference for the maintenance of peace held at Buenos Aires, December 1-23, 1936.

The significance of these instruments is described in the accompanying letter from the Secretary of State and in the individual reports which describe and explain each document, to all of which the attention of the Senate is invited.

1. Convention for the maintenance, preservation and re-establishment of peace.
2. Additional protocol relative to non-intervention.
3. Treaty on the prevention of controversies.
4. Inter-American treaty on good offices and mediation
5. Convention to co-ordinate, extend and assure the fulfillment of existing treaties between the American states.
6. Convention of the Pan-American highway.
7. Convention for the promotion of inter-American cultural relations.
8. Convention concerning artistic exhibitions.

The conference at Buenos Aires which adopted these instruments met at a time of historic importance in the Americas. With the termination of war between two sister republics there had arisen among the peoples of every country throughout the hemisphere a fervent desire that war be banished forever as a method of resolving international disputes.

The delegates who assembled there felt deeply the responsibility that had been entrusted to them and proceeded in their deliberations with a determination and dispatch which distinguished this conference. So favorable did the opportunity appear for constructive results that I journeyed to the conference to signify my own realization of the high importance of the conference, and I was accorded the high honor of addressing the opening session. I can, therfore, from personal observation testify to the earnestness of purpose of the many outstanding statesmen of the Americas gathered there, and to their determination to give an example to the world of international cooperation order that peace may prevail.

It is my considered belief that the several instruments that the delegations of the American republics formulated justify in the fullest measure the high hopes for success which they bore with them. These instruments evidence the desire and the will of the American peoples to live in peace one with another and they provide the long awaited mechanisms for insuring the co-operation between nations indispensable to the maintenance of peace.

The original initiative for this conference came from the United States. It would, therefore, seem to me particularly fitting that the United States Government be among the first American governments in the ratification of the conference adopted, therby giving a further indication of the sincerity of the good neighbor policy. I strongly recommend, therefore, that the Senate give favorable consideration to the instruments herewith submitted with a view to giving its advice and consent to their ratification.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

Some of the worst mistakes conceivable go unpunished at the bridge table. In today's hand, the fantastic discarding of a defender created the opportunity for declarer to make two over-tricks on a vulnerable doubled contract. But the opportunity was not capitalized because declarer could not credit that such a frightful error had taken place.

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	2 ◇
Pass	Pass	2 N T	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 N T	Dbl.
Pass	Pass	Pass

North's opening bid was pretty light but not really bad. He attempted to warn South of this lightness by passing over the two diamonds, and over two notrump by making the weak response of three clubs. But South, with a very fair hand, could not be denied and persisted to game. West's double was nothing if not optimistic; if he had found his partner without a quick trick, he might have run into a redouble that would have returned extra tricks.

The fourth-best diamond was the opening lead. (The Queen was the proper opening on the bidding). Dummy's nine held the trick, and five rounds of clubs were rattled off. On the second and third rounds West discarded hearts. On the fourth round he let go a low diamond, and carefully noted East's discard of the heart nine.

Now, satisfied that his pardner had hearts stopped. West made the horrible play of letting go his last heart on declarer's fifth club. East completed the heart echo, and at this point declarer did some profound thinking.

He had, of course, noted East's high heart signal, but he had also seen West discard three hearts. One thing was inconceivable and that was that West, after receiving a heart signal from partner, would have voided the suit and thereby severad communication with partner's hand. Since that was unthinkable, declarer concluded that West must be blanked down to the Ace of hearts while East had merely been showing possession of the Queen-Jack.

On this not illogical conclusion, declarer led a low heart from his hand, watching expectantly for the Ace to go up from West. To his utter amazementand disgust West showed out, discarding a spade. East won, cashed the heart Ace, and led a diamond through the declarer's King-Jack.

Had declarer been able to credit that West had discarded so miserably he could have led a spade and, if West split his honors, made him a present of the trick. A spade return by West would have established four tricks in dummy, while a diamond return would have given declarer the King and at the same time have permitted the cashing of dummy's spade suit.

Roosevelt Asks Senate to Pass Peace Treaties

By William V. Nessly.

President Roosevelt yesterday recommended to the Senate that it ratify, in the interest of international peace, eight treaties signed at the Inter-American Peace Conference at Buenos Aires last December.

At the same time, interest of State Department officials was centered in a reported suggestion by Premier Mussolini of Italy that Mr. Roosevelt call an arms-limitation conference.

In a message transmitting the treaties, the President told the Senate they were "indispensable to the maintenance of peace" and he "strongly" recommended their approval.

First of the conventions was one "for the maintenance, preservation and re-establishment of peace" in the Western Hemisphere. Next was one dealing with non-intervention by any of the powers in the internal or external affairs of another, and a third provides for permanent bilateral mixed commissions to study the causes of future controversies with a view to applying treaties in force. Others deal with mediation, consultation to prevent or delay hostilities and restrict the spread of conflicts that may occur, completion of the Pan-American highway, promotion of inter-American cultural relations, and artistic exhibitions.

Hull Lauds Conference.

Secretary of State Hull, in an accompanying letter to the President, said that "both the spirit in which the deliberations of the conference were conducted and the achievements themselves, all reached by unanimous agreement, established this conference as one of the most successful international gatherings in recent times."

Regarding this country's attitude toward the 20 other American republics, his letter said:

"The policy of the good neighbor which you enunciated in your first inaugural message brought into the conduct of our foreign relations a spirit of friendship, tolerance and good will. The early evidences of what that policy means in practice has dissipated the many apprehensions held among the other American republics concerning our motives and desires."

Meanwhile, the next text of Mussolini's press interview in Rome on Tuesday was being studied at the State Department.

Welles Is Silent.

Undersecretary Sumner Welles was asked at his press conference regarding the official reaction here, but said that since the Italian leader's views were not made in an official statement no official comment could be made here.

It was made clear by officials, however, that any indication that the head of another government is favorably disposed toward the idea of averting or arresting the present rearmament race is a matter which would be very favorably regarded by any government interested in world peace.

At the same time, there was little apparent inclination to take seriously the idea of an arms conference in the near future.

Patman Revives Inflation Plan, U. S.-Owned Federal Reserve

By Franklyn Waltman.

Renewed activity on Capitol Hill in a movement for Government ownership and operation of the Federal Reserve System and for currency inflation yesterday was regarded in Administration quarters as a forecast that this issue will again have to be met, but in all probability not before next winter.

Revival of the old monetary reformatoin movement was signalized by the introduction in the House by Representative Wright Patman of a bill which would place the Federal Reserve System directly in the hands of the Government, staff the Federal Reserve banks with political and civil service appointees and set up a commodity dollar as a standard for credit and currency control.

The seriousness of Patman's intentions was indicated when he made public a list of 150 Democratic members of the House, including 4 members of the House Banking and Currency Committee, who, he said, had approved the bill. He asserted he had been drafted with the cooperation of the group. He said House Republicans and Progressives were organizing similar groups to support this type of legislation.

Patman Asks Hearings.

Patman said he had requested Chairman Henry B. Steagall of the House Banking and Currency Committee to hold hearings on the bill and that "a hearing is expected within a reasonable time" Steagall was not available yesterday, but his office said no hearings had yet been scheduled.

Due to the advanced period of the present session it was believed unlikely the Patman bill will reach the House floor this summer, but under House rules it will be carried over until the next session, and orthodox monetary authorities are concerned over what might happen then.

Patman has successfully sponsored measures to pay immediately the soldiers' bonus and the so-called fair price bill. Moreover, the legislation he now advocates has had the backing of Father Charles E. Coughlin and leaders of past monetary inflation blocs.

Would Acquire All Stock.

The measure would direct the Secretary of the Treasury to acquire all the capital stock of the 12 Federal Reserve Banks by creating credits in the sum of the cash paid value of the stock, plus unpaid dividends on the books of the banks. This method of acquiring the stock of the Reserve banks would be inflationary to the extent of $130,000,000, laying the foundation for a potential expansion of credit of approximately $700,000,000.

The bill would increase the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System from 7 to 15 members, including the Secretary of the Treasury, the Comptroller of the Currency and the chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. The Secretary of the Treasury and Camptroller of the Currency were members of this board until its reorganization by the 1935 banking act.

The present members of the board would be permitted to remain under the bill, with the President naming five new members. Not more than one member could be named from a Federal Reserve district. The bill would authorize the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate, to name the nine directors of each reserve bank, which under existing law selects the officers and personnel of these institutions.

At present the board of governors names three of the nine directors of each reserve bank, as representative of the public interest. The other six are elected by the stockholding banks, but three of these must be free of any direct banking connection and are regarded as the representatives of business and commerce.

Patronage Field.

These directors would have power to name officers of the reserve banks, who may be paid as much as $25,000 annually. Thus a rich field of political patronage would be opened by the Patman bill. Other positions in reserve banks would be placed within the classified civil service by the bill.

The bill declares it to be the policy of Congress that the reserve system should "stabilize and maintain a dollar of uniform purchasing power for the purpose of assuring the kind of dollar which a generation hence will have the same purchasing and debt-paying power."

The board of governors would be given power, on the affirmative vote of not less than ten of its members, to change deposit reserve requirements in order to prevent injurious credit or expansion contraction, and to carry out the policies imposed on it by Congress. The board has exhausted its present power to increase reserve requirements.

Another provision of the bill would constitute the board of governors as the open market committee, which under law also possesses powers to expand or contract credit. At present representatives of the banks, along with the board, comprise this committee. The Federal Advisory Council, which meets quarterly to discuss and advise regarding current credit and business conditions, also would be abolished by the bill.

Mature Styles Now Available In Small Sizes

By Ethel Ehlen.
The Post Fashion Editor.

If your shoulders, hips, or general build make it imperative that you buy women's sizes, even though you are small of stature and perhaps young, it will be interesting to discover that such sizes are available this summer in the season's smartest presentations. It has been found to be much more satisfactory to buy women's sizes than to select a size too large in the misses' departments and then resort to alterations.

In the past it has often happened that small women who could not be fitted in youthful looking clothes finally in despair bought clothes which were too mature and consequently lacked chic and style. The same was also true of materials—they lacked the verve and snap of the frocks and ensembles in the misses' sizes. The short person with broad shoulders or hips, extra long arms or legs, a large waistline, needs clothes which are designed with these special features in mind.

Smart Mature Styles.

The mature woman and the one who is inclined to be stout also has her problems. In a large number of cases these persons are the forgotten women when it comes to buying merchandise for a store or shop. In too many instances styles are not as smart and slim-looking as they should be and materials, too, have a mature appearance. The new ideas in women's sizes perfected this season take care of persons in these classifications.

Whichever category you belong in if you are an unusual size and your silhouette is not a perfect 14, 16, 34, 38, and the like, you need specially designed clothes—and they need to be selected with great discrimination. Best selections are materials in solid colors which do not emphasize figure idiosyncrasies; prints of small patterns in which the motifs are well-spaced; trimmings which help to disguise unusual lines, curves or bulk. Skirt lengths are also important; regardless of the length which may be in vogue, the individual figure should be the deciding factor.

Attention to Details.

In styling, great care should be taken in the matter of necklines, sleeve lengths and treatment, peplums, belts, and the length of jackets and coats. For some unusual shaped figures a jacketed dress or one with a peplum may be a grand acquisition. For others it may be all wrong. The same is true of hats, in the question of wide brims versus those which are brimless or flaunt very narrow brims; crowns, too, are important, if one is to flatter the silhouette from every phase of grooming.

Whatever the figure problem, clothes for summer may be bought in numerous and diverse styles, planned especially to take care of any and every odd angle, height and the like. And, in materials and styling, just as smart as those designed for stars of the screen. Figure problems should no longer be a problem to the smart and discriminating shopper.

Smart Lines for Mature Figures

Sheer redingote which may be worn over summer frocks, accompanies a simple print frock in navy and white in women's sizes. The high neckline and pleating treatment are smart features.

Todays Health

By Dr. Logan Clendening

Heart of Athlete.

We hear a great deal about "athlete's heart." Exactly what it means is difficult to say. Superficially it means that a heart is damaged by too much exercise and goes into dilation. As a matter of fact, it is not too much exertion that causes a heart to dilate but infection or mechanical difficulties, such as high blood pressure, which are the result of infection.

Athlete's heart is probably a myth because it is almost physically impossible for a person to take exercise beyond the ability of the heart to endure it.

Any heart has a certain capacity for allowing its owner to take exercise. It is judged on the basis of wind and, of course, the ability of the athlete to endure is measured by his capacity to breathe and send oxygen to all the tissues of the body. As a muscle moves, it requires oxygen. The oxygen is brought in from the outside world through the lungs, enters the blood, and the heart must then pump this oxygenated blood in the tissues. Unless it is strong enough to do so, the exercise must cease.

The heart, like any other muscle, increases in size with work, and this is the reason why athletic training will increase a person's wind. The young man of 20 can start the tennis season and be so short of breath that he will have to stop at the end of the second strenuous set. Two weeks later, after he has been doing it every day, he may play five or six sets in succession without any noticeable discomfort as to his wind. This is because the heart muscle has increased in efficiency and its fibers have actually increased in size.

The young man's heart is well supplied with blood. As time goes one, however, the blood vessels of the heart begin to disappear in number and get smaller in size. The elderly heart is, therefore, automatically prevented from getting the oxygen that it needs, and an attempt to improve the wind of an elderly person is not nearly as successful as with the younger one. In fact, a middle-aged person reaches the place when there is no use of his trying to go on with an athletic contest because he simply can't get enough oxygen pumped around to his muscles to allow them to contract. It is for this reason that the middle-aged man must be content with less and less strenuous forms of exercise, until finally even walking up and down stairs becomes a little too much.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Several months ago in my profession I met a young man my own age, 24, who became a good friend, after sharing a number of problems and difficult experiences with me. In addition to perfect congeniality and sympathy there is a strong physical attraction between us which we can no longer deny. However, he is married to a girl with whom he eloped while in college, and who does not satisfy him now as she once did.

• • • •

We have grown dependent upon each other in innumerable ways, but the time has come for me to decide just where all this is leading us. Have two individuals, who complement each other in every way, who bring needed happiness, confidence and peace to each other by their association, any right to dissolve a relationship involving a third person, whose only faults are those of omission?

• • • •

No malice or low designs figure in the case on either side. The whole question boils down to one issue—congeniality. No children are involved and each of us (including the man's wife) earns his own living through professional work. Would it be possible for me to keep this man's friendship? Or should I avoid him altogether, thus leaving all of him to a wife who no longer receives his whole-hearted affection? I am not predatory at heart, and will abide by your decision, hard though it may be. Sincerely yours, M. H. L.

• • • •

DEAR M. H. L.: Responsibility for deciding whether his marriage should be dissolved because of his wife's alleged "faults of omission" rests entirely with the man in this case.

• • • •

It is possible you may be reading into the man's mind a dissatisfaction with his wife which does not really exist. Or, if it does exist, it may have no valid foundation. It is not uncommon for the average marriage to go into a temporary slump after a few years. This is almost as inevitable as that spring shall yield to summer.

• • • •

On the other hand, of course, there is no denying the fact that impetuous elopements often result in incurable conjugal disharmony. Hence the old saying, "Marry in haste and repent at leisure." However, where such fundamental incompatability exists, it becomes apparent almost immediately, and does not await the tardy arrival upon the scene of a third person before making itself painfully apparent.

• • • •

Rather than discuss the pros and cons of this situation with you, I think the man should discuss them with his wife. If she were brought to a realization that he was drifting away from her, through real or imaginary starvation for tender, responsive understanding, it is entirely possible that she would bestir herself to provide, and could provide as well as yourself, all that he hungers after.

• • •

In any event, and whatever developments the future may bring, I advise you to refrain from all overt attempts to influence the man's decision. Remember that the woman who takes a husband from his wife is establishing a precedent from which she herself may eventually suffer.

• • • •

I think the friendship should be discontinued, for two reasons. In the first place, if he should not marry you, you are only promoting the greatest unhappiness for yourself in continuing to see him. And in the second place, since a constructive decision must be reached, and it is the man who must make it, he will be obliged to choose definitely, once and for all, between his wife and you, when he finds that he cannot have both. M. H.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, May 26.

UP THE GANGPLANK of the noble Normandie there marched, the other day, what I think is the outstanding feat of glamorizing ever performed outside the Hollywood factories. Amy Johnson, the blonde British flier who recently divorced Jim Mollison, was off to Europe in a huff—and in a brand-new coat of chic and beauty!

ALICE HUGHES

Whether love has again burgeoned in Amy's breast, or whether she just decided to slick up, I am not in a position to say, but the moth has certainly become a very fetching butterfly. A couple of years ago the girl was every which way. She cared nothing for clothes, and her hair was pretty much of a mess. But on her most recent trip to the dear old States, Amy caught hold of herself, and the great change occurred! For one thing, she is devoted to the fine art of American dentistry, and now has a magnificent mouthful of straight white teeth, her gnashers having been sadly banged about in a crash.

A beautician did a grand job on Amy's face, and made her a very becoming and handsome hair-do. On the liner, I asked her what she liked best in our shops, and I got the usual answer from a European—namely, shoes and stockings. She bought 24 pairs of shoes, for instance, and dozens of pairs of elegant hosiery. The once-dowdy Amy was a very tasty sight indeed as she posed for the lens-exposers on the Normandie' boat deck!

Of course, she was very bitter about the collapse of the air race to Paris, in which she was to compete. But her soreness must have been tempered by consciousness of the fact that she'd become smart and lovely!

• • • •

The silliest rumor of 1937, to date, is that Queen Elizabeth of England and her two little datters will visit us next fall. A local columnist even went so far as to print this preposterous dream, which goes to show just how tough it is to fill newspaper space, sometimes. . . . The funniest local facet of the Windsor wedding is the way the astrologers and dream-book artists are contradicting each other on the chances for the match's survival. Robert De Bruce, a Britisher now here, told me the other day that it looked very black for the pair, as June is the worst month they could choose. Sighing deeply, he said that David and Wallis are practically defying the cosmos, which is as tough as Stanley Baldwin, at least! Yet the next stargazer says all will be perfectly dandy!

First Lady Faces Long List Of Parties, Engagements

Has Enough Appointments to Keep Two Women Busy; Secretary Will Leave for Norfolk Today to Christen Destroyer.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

With the end of the White House social season in sight, Mrs. Roosevelt's calendar of parties and appointments still shows no signs of clearing.

At her press conference yesterday, the First Lady opened her little black book and read off a string of engagements for the next few days that would keep two persons steadily on the go. An hour after the conference she was joint hostess with the "Cabinet wives" at a picnic on the south lawn of the White House for wives of Senators. (She disclosed that her contribution to the picnic-fare was eight hams and the coffee; other luncheon dainties were contributed by the other hostesses. Yesterday afternoon she was guest of honor at the St. Thomas' rectory tea.

Today, the former United States envoy to Turkey, Dr. Abram I. Elkus, and Mrs. Elkus, of New York, will be luncheon guests at the White House. Tomorrow evening, the President and Mrs. Roosevelt will be host and hostess at a dance for members of the Fourth Estate.

Saturday evening, the White House will be the scene of another party when 50-odd members of the Roosevelt Home Club from Dutchess County are entertained at a buffet supper.

On Monday evening, she will attend the famous "Ring Dance"—a highlight of "June Week" at Annapolis, and on the following day she will ge guest of honor at a luncheon of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs.

Having disclosed her schedule for the next few days, the First Lady devoted the remainder of yesterday's press conference to discussing a variety of subjects, ranging all the way from childhood reminiscences to social security. The former were precipitated by her mentioning some of the personal questions directed toward her by interviewers outside of Washington.

She expressed herself as being "extremely pleased with the recent social security decision," and said she felt that the importance of it could not yet be realized. She said further that she was convinced social security should be extended to domestics.

As on a number of previous occasions, Mrs. Roosevelt yesterday reiterated her belief that "there should be equal pay for equal work for men and women." She stressed that she wished "this principle could be taken for granted."

Early in June, the First Lady will have another honorary degree to add to her collection. She is to receive an LL.D. degree from John Marshall College, Jersey City, N. J.

* * * *

Mrs. James M. Helm, Mrs. Roosevelt's social secretary, will go to Norfolk today for the christening of two destroyers, The Helm, named in honor of her late husband, and The Blue, named for the late Victor Blue. On Saturday Mrs. Helm will leave Washington for her farm in Illinois—which means the social season at the White House will be closed until fall.

Envoy of Cuba Gives Luncheon

THE CUBAN AMBASSADOR, Dr. Pedro Martinez Fraga, entertained at a men's luncheon yesterday at the Embassy in honor of Mr. Sumner Welles, recently appointed Undersecretary of State. Mr. Welles was formerly United Ambassador to Cuba. The guests were Dr. Jose T. Baron, Minister Counselor of the Embassy; Dr. V. Valdes Rodriguez, Counselor; Jose T. Notables Attend Garden Party Of the Blisses

Several Hundred Present at Dumbarton House Function.

THREATENING weather—in fact, even a shower or two—did not deter Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss from giving their garden party yesterday afternoon on schedule. Several hundred members of the official, diplomatic and residential society gathered at Dumbarton Oaks for the event.

Famed for miles around are the grounds of this beautiful Georgetown home, with its extensive gardens, which Mr. and Mrs. Bliss open a number of times each spring for charity. There are both varieties of landscaping—the formal French kind with hedges and trees trimmed in designs, and the English, or natural.

Yesterday the guests wandered about, admiring the trim terraces, the flower beds in full bloom, the towering trees that remind one of the famous gardens of Versailles. Many gathered about the swimming pool and tennis courts, which Mr. and Mrs. Bliss allow their friends to use during the summer while they are away.

A former Minister to Sweden and, later, an Ambassador to Argentina, Mr. Bliss knows most of the diplomats in Washington, and many from the foreign corps were present yesterday, mingling with other officials and residential persons. Tables with delicious refreshments—wine punch, paper-thin sandwiches and dainty cakes and ice—were set up in the garden.

Among the guests glimpsed at a late hour were the Secretary of Labor, Miss Frances Perkins, and the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, Senator and Mrs. William Gibbs McAdoo, Senator Arthur Capper, the Minister of Sweden and Mme. Peter, the Counselor of the Polish Embassy and Mme. Wankowicz, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman—the center of a wide circle of acquaintances who crowded around her as long as she stayed—Senator and Mrs. Warren F. Austin, the Cuban Ambassador, Senor Dr. Pedro Martinez Fraga, and the Counselor of the Cuban Embassy and Senora de Baron.

Sara Pryor Dodge To Exhibit at Tea

Sara Pryor Dodge, the artist, known in private life as Mrs. Hunter Kimbrough, will give a tea and art exhibit at her home on Macomb street from 3 to 7 o'clock today.

Mrs. Kimbrough is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William de Leftwich Dodge, of New York and Long Island. Her father is a celebrated mural artist who has done considerable work in Washington. He also did the murals at the capitol in Albany, N. Y., several years ago, when President Roosevelt was Governor of that State.

Mrs. Kimbrough's first Washington exhibit, which was held in February of last year, included portraits and water colors.

THE MERRY WHIRL

By Marylyn

WHEN IT COMES to giving parties, Mrs. Barge Hartz and her daughter, Bette, are hard to beat. Yesterday they entertained at luncheon, first having tall, delicious mint juleps at their hospitable home on Edgemoor lane. When the guests arrived, they were met by the two tall hostesses, smartly gowned and wearing hats.

But the answer was that the Hartzes took their friends out to the Congressional Club for luncheon. Fun, oh fun—in the center of the large oval table which was decorated with two vases of snowballs, was a white and silver "grab bag" with silken streamers leading to each place. The prizes ranged from pencils, dolls and metal cars to marbles.

One of the funniest stories told was that with which Agnes Hartz kept the table in uproars for some minutes. It seems that at her home there is a large fish pond in the yard and in order to transplant some of the water lilies and other greenery, it was necessary to remove the goldfish. So—John, the garden man (he is about 4 feet high) started about his task. Not having any hip boots of his own he borrowed some, whose owner is feet taller and larger. This was handicap enough, but bravely he went on about his business. Mrs. H., who was around on the terrace, suddenly heard some very strange noises and rushing back to the pool found that poor John, not knowing how deep the water was, went in—and how. He was finally dragged to safety and practically emptied half the pool with what his boots took up.

MRS. GUY HELVERING in brown and white with little Helen Fish and the former's nephew, Charles Koester, were among those having luncheon at Pierre's, when we stopped by yesterday. We are just wondering if any or all of these rumors we are hearing about these two young people are true?

BETTY O'MALLEY, whose wedding to Bob Strauss took place last July (and will we ever forget that day, hot and bright—with a terrific thunderstorm that broke just as Betty and Bob were about to start on their way to the Army and Navy Country Club for the reception) is here again for a time with her parents, Capt. and Mrs. John J. O'Malley. Her friends are delighted and only hope that she tarries a while.

The Belgian Ambassador, Count Robert van der Straten-Ponthoz, arrived in Washington last night after a trip of several months to the Argentine and Paris. He will be joined later this spring by Countess van der Straten-Ponthoz, who is at present in the Argentine, where her family resides.

Frau Dieckhoff, wife of the German Ambassador, will be the guest in whose honor Mrs. Edwin B. Parker will entertain at luncheon today at her residence, 2001 Twenty-Fourth street.

The newly appointed Ambassador of China, Dr. C. T. Wang, arrived in Washington yesterday afternoon. He was accompanied by his two daughters, Mlle. Yuehai and Mlle. An-fu Wang. The former, who is 25 years old, will serve as hostess for her father until the arrival of Mme. Wang, who plans to join her family here after recovery of the Ambassador's mother, who is ill in Shanghai.

Dr. and Mme. Wang visited Washington last summer on their way to the Olympic games in Berlin. The former was once foreign minister of China.

The Secretary of War and Mrs. Harry H. Woodring have leased the home of former President Herbert Hoover on S street, and will move to it Tuesday. Mrs. Oscar Underwood again is taking up residence at Woodlawn.

Mrs. Pat McCarren, wife of Senator McCarran, was among the guests at a luncheon given at the Shoreham yesterday by Mrs. A. L. Scott in honor of Mrs. L. E. Werder, of Sacramento, Calif. The latter is visiting her sister, Mrs. Frank B. Warren.

Other guests at the luncheon were Mrs. George W. Winfrey, Mrs. W. W. Jensen, Mr. Frank Taylor, Mrs. J. H. Hedges, Mrs. Reginald A. Hodgson, Mrs. F. W. Krippel, Mrs. Sanford M. Rosenthal, Mrs. Harold Lawry, Mrs. Albert B. Dieterich and Mrs. Finis E. Scott.

The United States Ambassador to Belgium, Mr. Dave H. Morris, who is on leave, is staying in Washington at the Carlton Hotel. He will return to his post in July.

Mrs. Louis Murphy, wife of the late Senator Murphy, of Iowa, has arrived from Dubuque, accompanied by her son, Mr. Charles Murphy, and they are occupying a suite at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mrs. Brewster Entertains for Press Club Head

MRS. RALPH O. BREWSTER, wife of Representative Brewster, of Maine, entertained at a luncheon yesterday in honor of Miss Mary Hornaday, president of the Women's National Press Club. The hostess lives at the Carlton Hotel and it was there that the party was held.

The 16 guests were seated at a long table in the dining room, Mrs. Brewster at the head, and Mme. Cantacuzene Grant presiding at the other end. As the recently elected president of the League of Republican Women, Mme. Cantacuzene expects to have a busy summer and will spend most of it in Washington. Yesterday she wore a rose print frock with a large straw hat.

Mrs. James Hornaday, mother of the guest of honor, was also present.

Among others there were Mrs. Edwin D. Canham, Mrs. Elizabeth Mae Craig and Miss Ruby Black, both of whom head their own news bureaus here; Miss Jane Eades, Miss Ruth Jones, Mrs. Lucy Eberly, Mrs. Sallie Pickett, Mrs. Tully Nettleton and Mrs. Charles E. Dustin.

The hostess wore a black chiffon frock with a matching broad-brimmed hat. She will leave about the middle of June for Brunswick, Me., to be present at the graduation of her son, Mr. Charles Brewster, from Bowdoin College. She has not yet decided whether she will spend the summer at her home in Dexter, Me., or in Washington, but probably will divide her time.

Wife of Envoy Feted at Party

BARONESS VON SCHOEN, wife of the German Ambassador to Chile, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Harold Walker, at Villa Rosa, was guest of honor at a garden party given yesterday by Mrs. Walker.

More than 100 guests met the visitor and spent most of the time between the hours of 5 and 7 on the terrace and in its small Italian garden.

Tea and cocktails were served in the dining room. Mrs. Edward Finkenstaedt, another sister of Baroness von Schoen, who is entertaining for her this afternoon, was among those who poured.

Others who poured were Miss Sita Finkenstaedt, who wore a blue and white print; Mrs. English Gordon, of Philadelphia, who is a guest of Mrs. Newbold Noyes; Mrs. Millard E. Tydings and Mrs. Aldace Walker.

H. T. H. Willett Wed in Chicago

Son of District Couple Is Married to Miss Myrabelle Kirkham.

Of interest to Washington was the wedding yesterday in Evanston, Ill., of Miss Myrabelle Kirkham, daughter of Mr. Robert F. Kirkham, of Chicago, and the late Mrs. Kirkham, to Mr. Harrison Tyler Hathaway Willett, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Jean Willett, of Washington. The ceremony took place at St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Dean Moore officiating.

Mr. Kirkham gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a beige triple sheer afternoon gown, a brown hat and brown accessories. Mrs. Rowena Giles, the matron of honor and her only attendant, wore a brown and white sheer frock with matching accessories. Mr. George A. Schanbacher was best man. The ushers were Mr. Clifford Fisher and Mr. Lawrence Coffin.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served. Later, Mr. Willett and his bride left for a wedding trip. They will come to Washington tomorrow, then go to New York and other Eastern cities before returning to Chicago.

Mrs. Roosevelt Helps to Receive at St. Thomas Church Benefit As Shower Drives Rector's Aid Society Guests From Garden

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Rain, no respecter either of persons or of garden parties, descended unceremoniously just before the hour of the tea given yesterday by the Rector's Aid Society of St. Thomas Church in honor of Mrs. Roosevelt. Even though the sun came out a few minutes after the downpour, the garden of the rectory on New Hampshire avenue was too wet for entertaining, and the guests were received in the house instead.

The First Lady who, with the President and other members of the "First Family" attends St. Thomas Church, arrived at 5 o'clock and stood in the receiving line with Mrs. Howard S. Wilkinson, wife of the rector, and Mrs. Ralph Mulligan, president of the aid society. She wore a silk jacket suit of a rose and blue flowered print, with wide bands of fur on the sleeves, and a broad-brimmed hat of eggshell straw, trimmed in roses. Mrs. Wilkinson was in a gown of green lace with which she wore a white hat, and Mrs. Mulligan in a black frock, wide black hat, brightened by bouquets of red flowers, and a silver fox fur. Mrs. Norman Towson, a member of the vestry, made the introductions.

In the drawing room where they received, was a handsome photograph of the President prominently placed on top of the grand piano. The veranda beyond overlooked the garden, inclosed by a brick wall covered with climbing roses, in full bloom, and bordered by beds of lavender iris and red and white peonies. Punch was served on the porch and coffee and ice cream in the dining room.

Mrs. Charles F. M. McGuire, general chairman of arrangements for the party, was assisted by Mrs. William D. Leahy, wife of the Chief of Naval Operations; Mrs. Albert Niblack, Mrs. Leahy's sister; Mrs. R. Beardall, Mrs. F. H. Calvert, Mrs. J. C. Davidson, Mrs. Walter Finley, Mrs. Norman Hall, Mrs. Needham Jones, Mrs. Dangerfield Long, Mrs. Charles McVey, Mrs. Prentiss, Mrs. F. H. Tait, Miss Frances Smith, Miss Shields and Mrs. William Wheatley.

Also assisting was a group of young women of the parish—Mrs. Edith Beardall, Miss Barbara Beall and Mrs. Winthrop Wilcox.

Among the guests were Dr. Ernest Smith, now retired, who for many years was rector of St. Thomas Church, and Dr. William Bishop, former Vicar of the church.

Dr. Wilkinson was busy in the role of host, and the assistant rector, Dr. Allen Miller also was there, as were several of the vestrymen.

Proceeds of the affair will be used for the new kitchen which is being added to the Parish House. Mrs. McVay is chairman of the committee for the new project.

Madame Chairman . . .

By Suzanne.

MME. CANTACUZENE is so busy she feels as though she has been working about 25 hours a day since taking over her duties as president of the League of Republican Women. The league is preparing to sign a lease—probably next week—on a house near Scott circle which will be converted into a headquarters. Funds are in the bank and everything in readiness for the opening of its new "home."

The organization, although chartered as a local club, actually functions as a national one, welcoming Republican women when they visit Washington and sending out literature on national issues.

Its clubrooms were formerly in the Capital Club and, when that closed, were moved to the Raleigh Hotel, Mme. Cantacuzene says. This will be the first time since she can remember that the league will have a clubhouse of its own.

BIG PLANS are going forward for the dinner of the Southern Society next Wednesday night at the Willard. In the old days, before the State societies came into existence, the Southern Society was the only organization of its kind in the Capital—it still is for that matter—for it has a tradition behind it no other can claim. The President and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson were its first and only honorary members; Secretary Roper was its president in 1922; his daughter, Mrs. Frank Bohn, for several years was its secretary, and its parties were always among social highlights.

When Gen. Pershing returned from France, in 1919, it was the Southern Society which planned a great reception for him. That, too, was at the Willard, and was attended by 4,000 guests. A picture of the event was taken, showing Mrs. Robert H. McNeill standing beside the guest of honor—of particular interest now because she and Mr. McNeill have continued their work in the society and Mr. McNeill this year is its president.

The British Ambassador and Lady Geddes were among those for whom it entertained while they were in Washington, and Miss Mabel Boardman was another for whom one of its functions was given.

This time Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania is to be guest of honor and speaker, with a view to uniting, in another large gathering here, the bond between the North and the South. It is he, incidentally, who is responsible for the plan for the joint encampment of the Grand Army and the Confederate Veterans in Gettysburg July 1, 1938.

New Gonorrhea Drug Is Praised

Chicago, May 26 (AP).—Baltimore physicians reported today they were "profoundly impressed" with results obtained by treating gonorrhea with sulfanilamide, a drug successfully used in combating other diseases.

Describing the treatment of 19 patients, Dr. John E. Dees and Dr. J. A. C. Colston wrote in the current issue of the journal of the American Medical Association:

"The prompt response to treatment in the vast majority of our cases, the smooth clinical course, the fact that no complications have occurred and that the infection has not progressed, together with the reduction in hospital expenses, have impressed us profoundly."

Fight to Control Wage Law Begun By Miss Perkins

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Frances Perkins, whose Labor Department is threatened with eclipse because of the rise of powerful new agencies dealing with workingmen's problems, began a determined fight yesterday against establishment of another independent bureau.

She told a house labor sub-committee President Roosevelt's proposed new wage and hour standards for industry should be administered by a board placed under the "general structure and pattern of the Labor Department."

Her testimony recalled that she once made a vigorous attempt to have the social security act administered by her department. The National Labor Relations Board also is an independent agency.

Seal Tightens Up On Personal Taxes

In an attempt to overcome widespread evasions of the District's intangible personal property tax, Elwood Seal, corporation counsel, is drafting a series of amendments which will give force to the present law it was learned yesterday. Fred Allen, District tax assessor, has estimated that the law if properly enforced would yield about $1,000,000 in additional revenue.

2 Paris-Tokyo Fliers Forced Down in Japan

Tokyo, May 26 (AP).—The Japanese (Domei) News Agency reported today the French aviators Marcel Doret and Francois Micheletti made a forced landing along the Tobara Coast in Kochi prefecture at 7:30 tonight (6:30 a. m. (E. S. T.). Both were slightly injured and taken to a hospital at Kochi, Sjikoku Island seaport. They were attempting a Paris-Tokyo flight.

Mother, Grieving Over Son's Death, Commits Suicide

Grief over the death of her son in an auto crash four years ago was blamed yesterday for the suicide of Mrs. Leah Lentz, 26, sister-in-law of Mickey McDonald, former Montgomery County (Md.) gambling czar.

Mrs. Lentz was found in the attic of her home, 9902 Franklin avenue, Indian Spring Park, Md., yesterday, with a bullet through her heart and a revolver by her side.

Strewn on the floor were clothing worn by her 3-year-old son before his death. In one hand she clutched a toy with which "Sonny" use to play.

The child was killed and Mrs. Lentz was injured in 1933 when their auto was struck by an ambulance.

Dr. L. M. Irving, of Silver Spring, pronounced the woman dead and issued a certificate of suicide. McDonald, central figure in the now-famous "mistaken identity" slaying of a newspaper route agent several years ago, summoned Montgomery County police when told of the tragedy.

The Washington Post Sports

* X WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, MAY 27, 1937 21

Wages Grim Struggle as Crisis Nears

Talks to Wife; Next 48 Hours to Tell; Has Restful Night.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 26.—Given only an even chance to survive, Gordon Stanley (Mickey) Cochrane, popular catcher-manager of the Detroit Tigers, lay almost motionless today in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, his skull fractured in three places by an accidental "bean ball" thrown by Irving (Bump) Hadley, New York Yankee pitching veteran. (Hadley formerly played with Washington.)

Possible infection of one of the sinuses, dangerously close to the worst fracture, was the threat faced by "Iron Mike" in his fight for life. Except for that, his physicians said, his chances for recovery would be bright.

"If Cochrane can continue as he is for another 48 hours without complications setting in, he will likely make a satisfactory recovery," predicted Dr. Robert Emmet Walsh, staff physician for the Yankees, who is in charge of the case.

As far as could be determined from the brief bulletins and statements issued by the doctors in attendance, Cochrane spent a fairly comfortable day. Last night, he suffered a slight hemorrhage, but was given a good night's rest through the use of opiates.

Players Cite Will to Live.

Cochrane's closest friends were the most hopeful for his recovery. Crestfallen and wet-eyed, the ball players on his club and newspapermen reasoned that if a will to live counted that Cochrane would win his fight with the same dogged will that lifted him from a fair minor league prospect to one of the game's greatest players.

They also recalled that "Iron Mike" had been injured under strikingly similar circumstances in 1931, when he starred with the Philadelphia Athletics. As yesterday, he was "beaned" on his next appearance at the plate after hitting a home run. Sergeant Connally, pitching for Cleveland, threw a wild one that struck him on the head. At the time he was believed seriously injured, but he recovered within a few days and batted .349 for the season, going to the Tigers as manager in 1934, to win the first of two successive American League pennants.

All visitors were barred from Cochrane's room in the large, rambling hospital, which overlooks the Hudson River. Mrs. Cochrane, who flew to her husband's bedside, was admitted, however, and talked with him briefly.

"He told me he had lost sight of the ball about 3 feet from the plate and could recall nothing of what happened after that," said Mrs. Cochrane.

Hadley, who has been pitching in the American League for 11 years, was absolved of blame.

"I don't know what makes my delivery sail," he explained. "Perhaps it comes from the way the ball is held. It was sailing plenty yesterday. In the third inning Mickey hit the sailer for a homer. In the fifth he just didn't seem able to move as he saw it coming for his head.

"Except for yesterday, I haven't hit a batsman in three years. In 1934 I hit Luke Sewell with a pitched ball. The very next day I hit Eddie Morgan. I don't have to say I'm sorry. Who in our league isn't a friend of Mickey Cochrane?"

As Mickey fought for his life, conscious but in misery as ice packs were applied to his head, it was recalled that a similar accident here 17 years ago had resulted in the death of Ray Chapman, Cleveland shortstop, in a game with the Yankees at the Polo Grounds. Chapman was struck in the head with a ball pitched by Carl Mays, underhand specialist. He was dead 48 hours after the blow.

Gehrig "Beaned" Twice.

Many other ball players have been seriously "beaned," however, and recovered to continue their baseball careers Lou Gehrig, "iron man" of the Yankees, has been beaned twice. Delmar Baker, Tiger coach, who took charge of the team today in Cochrane's absence, once was in a hospital for six weeks with a skull fracture suffered under similar circumstances.

Although Cochrane, born in Bridgewater, Mass., 34 years ago, has had remarkable success as pilot of the Tigers, the strain has told on him. Worry of managing a club brought on various minor ailments and nervousness. Last year he developed sinus trouble, which was followed by a thyroid condition, and he retired in June to recuperate on a Wyoming ranch.

Kenosha, Wis., May 26 (AP).—Joe Louis interrupted training for his championship bout with Jim Braddock today to wire his sympathies to Mickey Cochrane, Detroit Tigers' baseball pilot, in a New York hospital with a fractured skull.

Louis messaged: "They may put us Detroiters down, but we refuse to stay there. I am pulling for you."

By a Staff Correspondent.

Pittsburgh Field Club, Aspinwall, Pa., May 26.—George Diffenbaugh, the Indian Spring professional, lost to Al Kreuger, 2 and 1 yesterday in the first round of the P. G. A. play—but that's not all he lost—he lost his caddie and clubs for three holes—and as a result was the talk of the tournament!

George has lost golf balls before, he's lost clubs and even matches, but it was the first time on record any one could remember a player losing his caddie, and the two holes he lost while playing with Kreuger's sticks was the margin of the lanky Wisconsin's representative victory.

George played the eighth hole, was handed his driver by the boy and hit his tee shot on the ninth hole. He walked down to his drive but when he turned to get a club, no caddie. He went back and looked around the tee, fearing the boy may have fallen, Kreuger joined in the search and his caddie retraced the eighth hole, but No. 25 was not in sight.

George played his second shot with Kreuger's clubs, lost the hole and caused a mild sensation among the gallery at the ninth green, two players and only one caddie. He asked Al Treder, the Manor pro, to get his clubs from his locker so he could complete the round.

They played the tenth hole with Kreuger's clubs, George losing his third straight hole, to go 3 down, and when he drove off the eleventh hole there was his caddie waiting for him to drive. The boy's explanation was he just couldn't imagine what made him go over there and wait.

The incident caused more comment around the Field Club during the afternoon than any of the matches, and was virtually the topic of conversation. The boy had been caddying at the club for five years, evidently suffering from a momentary loss of memory.

George won the first hole, Kreuger three-putting, but it was even ta the second when the Indian Spring mentor also took 3 from the edge of the green, Kreuger won the third with a par, but George birdied the fourth, lost the fifth and squared the match at the sixth with a par.

A short putt, less than 2 feet, cost Geroge a win on the seventh, and then Kreuger won his three straight holes when George lost his caddie.

Four down and four to go, the plucky Washington mentor shot two consecutive birdies to reduce the margin to dormie 2, but lost the match when the winner's 4-foot putt for a par and halved on the seventeenth found the cup.

16 Golfers Play Third PGA Round

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.
A Staff Correspondent.

Pittsburgh Field Club, Aspinwall, Pa., May 26.—Sam Snead, hailing from the mountains of West Virginia, developed a comeback spirit along about the twelfth hole here today, and after being 5 down and 8 to play, defeated Butch Kreuger on the last hole, and advanced with 15 others into the third match play round of the twentieth renewal of the Professional Golfers Association championship.

George Diffenbaugh, the Indian Spring professional, from Washington, D. C., lost his caddie for three holes, while playing Snead's victim, Alvin Kreuger, and subsequently lost the match, 2 and 1, after being even on the eighth tee, and winning 2 holes after being dormie 4 down.

The morning rounds found little in the way of upsets, Tommy Armour, the "Silver Scot," bowing to little Sam Bernardi in the only surprise victory of the 32 matches. Al Watrous, with 4 pairs and a birdie in five extra holes, defeated Wild Bill Mehlhorn on the twenty-third hole with a 10-foot putt that dropped to end the marathon match.

Shute's Standing.

Denny Shute, the lanky defending champion, was 2 down at the thirteenth hole in his first round against the challenge of Joe Turnesa, but won out, 2 and 1, and disposed of Olin Dutra, who "didn't figure to beat the champ," as the match ended on the sixteenth green in the afternoon.

Ed Dudley, the pipe-smoking secretary of the P. G. A., was a total of 9 up in two matches, winning over Herman Barron in the morning, 5 and 3, and defeating Pat Wilcox in the afternoon, 4 up and 3 to play. He meets Shute tomorrow in one of the headline matches of the day.

Paul "Little Poison" Runyan stuck to sub-par golf and bowled over Levi Lynch and Willie Goggin by 4 and 3 and 2 and 1 margins to enter the round of 16 in an event of which he was champion in 1935.

Jimmy Hines won four of the last five holes from Al Espinosa, after turning down, and added to a 6 and 4 morning victory over Clarence Owens to qualify as Runyan's opponent tomorrow.

Harry Cooper kept the comeback margin of victory as the order of the day, rallying to dispose of Johnny Revolta in the afternoon by a 1-up margin, winning with little difficulty over Ben Richter, the southpaw, in his first match.

Victor Ghezzi's last hole birdie ended the last of the local hopes for the championship, Sam Parks bowing, 1 up, after an explosion shot

Baseball Heads Together on All-Star Game

Managers to Choose All-Star Game Nines

The American and National League teams that take the field at Griffith Stadium in the All-Star game on July 7 will be the selections not of the Nation's fans, as in the past, but of the 16 big league managers.

That was determined here yesterday when Baseball Commissioner Landis met with President Will Harridge, of the American League; President Ford Frick, of the National League, and Clark Griffith and Edward B. Eynon, jr., of the Washington Club.

Commissioner Landis explained the reason for not inviting the fans of the Nation to ballot for their favorite players by issuing the following formal statement:

"What the public wants in the All-Star game is not a mere exhibition or parade of all-star players, but the full strength of the two leagues pitted against each other.

"The managers are in the best position to judge the best players in their league."

Player Limit Up.

In order that each league may be able to throw its full strength into its team, the player limit for the All-Star game was raised from 21 to 23, with the provision that six pitchers must be chosen for each club.

The identity of the players chosen for the All-Star team will be made known on June 28, it was announced.

Each American League manager will submit to Joe McCarthy, who will pilot the league's All-Star team, a list of the 23 players he deems as the league's best representatives. From the consensus of the eight league managers, the team will be chosen. In the National League, the procedure will be the same.

In order to guard against past situations which precluded All-Star managers from using star pitchers because they had pitched the day before the All-Star game, the officials who met here ruled that no pitcher on the All-Star list should be permitted to pitch between the Sunday preceding the All-Star game and the Wednesday that it is scheduled.

Work Three Innings.

No pitcher will be permitted to toil more than three innings in the All-Star game unless the battle goes into extra innings, it was further decided.

Joe McCarthy and Bill Terry, as managers of the two clubs which figured in the last World Series, will pilot the All-Star teams and have a free hand in the management of them.

The decision to place the selection of the teams in the hands of the managers rather than the public which has enjoyed that privilege during three of the four years that the game has been staged, puts the classic back on the same basis as in 1935. That year, the league managers also selected the teams.

The hue and cry raised by the fans forced the All-Star commission to give the balloting back to the fans in 1936, but the new determination to make it a bona fide baseball scrap instead of an exhibition of stars caused the commission to place the selections again in the hands of the managers.

U. S. Horses to Run.

London, May 26.—Two American owned 3-year-olds, William Woodward's Perifox and Ralph Beaver Strassburger's Le Bambino, were among the 22 final acceptors today for the Derby to be run at Epsom Downs next Wednesday.

Bolton Agrees To New Trial With Nationals

Catcher Cliff Bolton, the human jumping bean, who has vanished from Washington club three times, is back in the fold.

Clark Griffith, owner of the Nats, announced last night that Bolton would rejoin the team on Saturday.

The stocky catcher, who suddenly disappeared from the Nats' Orlando (Fla.) training camp late in March and hied himself to his High Point (N. C.) farm, has had another change of heart.

Griffith yesterday dispatched Joe Engel, chief scout of the Nats, to High Point to interview Bolton, who had failed to heed all of Griffith's previous inquiries. Engel advised Griffith by telegraph that Bolton would report to the club Saturday.

Bolton's presence with the Nats will force Manager Bucky Harris to make new disposition of Catcher Shanty Hogan. The addition of Bolton boosts the Nats' roster to 24, 1 over the limit, and ups to 4 the number of catchers with the team.

Griffith indicated last night that Hogan would be placed on the reserve list as a coach, or that he would be given his unconditional release.

Mary Cootes, Edith Clarke Net Victors

Mary Greason and Sara Moore Beaten in Tennis Tourney

By John R. Vosburgh

Mary Cootes, daughter of an Army colonel, eliminated Mary Greason, daughter of a Navy captain, 6—4, 2—6, 6—3, and meets Edith Clarke, daughter of a Marine colonel, in the title round. The hard-swinging Miss Clarke won over Sara Moore, conqueror of Mrs. Margaret Robinson, 1936 champion, 6—4, 6—3.

Both Miss Cootes and Miss Clarke made a bid to enter the doubles final today. The Alexandria girl is paired with Miss Greason and faces Miss Moore and Mrs. Dorette Miller at 3 p. m. in the semifinals. Mrs. Robinson and Miss Clarke encounter Willie O'Steen, young playground champion, and Mrs. Kay Johnson Baker in the other team event.

Miss Cootes, No. 2 seeded player, soon found herself in for a tough assignment in disposing of the blonde Miss Greason, seeded No. 4. The George Washington University student displayed a stinging service and clever court strategy.

With these weapons she harried Miss Cootes throughout, only to lose largely from sheer exhaustion in the final set as the Alexandria miss kept whizzing her skimming forehand drives.

Miss Clarke won her match despite 14 double faults and through trailing, 2 to 3, in the second set. Sara's service was giving Miss Clarke opportunity to stoy away a big total of placements, which had Miss Moore running all over the court.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

Singles.

Semifinals—Mary Cootes defeated Mary Greason, 6—4, 2—6, 6—3; Edith Clarke defeated Sara Moore, 6—4, 6—3.

Doubles.

Quarterfinals—Mrs. Margaret Robinson and Edith Clarke defeated Margaret Graham and Edith McCulloch, 6—0, 6—0; Mrs. Dorette Miller and Sara Moore defeated Anne Ellis and Mrs. Marian Prichard, 6—2, 6—1.

TODAY'S MATCHES.

Doubles.

Semifinals, 3 p. m.—Mrs. Margaret Robinson and Edith Clarke vs. Mrs. Kay Johnson Baker and Willie O'Steen; Mary Cootes and Mary Greason vs. Mrs. Dorette Miller and Sara Moore.

Appleton Pounded, Wastes 2-Run Lead

By Shirley Povich.

An obstreperous band of South Side Chicago characters known as the White Sox brutally assaulted the pitching of Pete Appleton in the fading daylight of the ninth inning yesterday and made off with a ball game that had belonged to Washington.

They snatched it all of a sudden by a score of 6 to 5 when Appleton, seemingly secure in the protection of a 5-to-3 lead and two out in that ninth, was set up on by the Chicago mob. He kept his feet, but he lost his lead, his standing in the community and the ball game.

It was a sickening ball game for the Nats to lose, not to mention the fact that it was their fourth straight licking. At one point, as late as the seventh inning, Washington was in possession of a 5-to-1 lead, was fondly contemplating the end of its losing streak and otherwise the Nats were enjoying the proceedings.

Appleton, who found his way into the ball game in the eighth when he put down a one-run rumpus the White Sox had started against Carl Fischer, was breezing in that ninth. He got Luke Sewell and Pinch Hitter Mule Haas out on flies to the infield and a general exodus of the fans began.

But then, Rip Radcliffe ripped a single to right. Well, that was annoying, but not alarming. And then Mike Kreevich banged a single to left. That was both annoying and alarming, what with the tying run on base and the heavy end of the Sox batting order due at the plate.

A triple would tie the score, and that's what happened. Dixie Walker, a ball-playing son son of a ball-playing father, thumped a long three-bagger over Sington's head against the rightfield wall and Radcliffe and Kreevich scampered home with those tying runs.

Zeke Bonura laid it on next. He picked out one of Appleton's curves, bashed it far against the concrete in centerfield, and Walker was home with the winning run. Appleton was on his way home, too, because Manager Bucky Harris wiggled a finger in his direction and motioned him to the showers.

Syd Cohan finally got the side out, but there was not much honor attached to his efforts, either. He got that third out because Freddie Sington made a sensational shoestring catch of Lucius Appling's line drive.

Myer Reaches Third.

The Nats raised a lot of false hopes in their own ninth when they needed a run to square matters. Kuhel and Lewis went out very tamely, but Buddy Myer whacked a single into leftfield and Johnny Stone put him on third with a single to right.

That put the issue squarely up to Al Simmons, and I am pained to report that Mr. Clint Brown, who took up the pitching for the White Sox in that ninth, pushed a third strike past Mr. Simmons.

All afternoon the White Sox had served warning that there was dynamite in those bats. They were not making many runs off Carl Fischer, who had a 5-to-2 lead when he quit the game in the eighth, but their hits were carrying a deal of authority.

In fact, of the 12 hits the Sox made, one was a home run contributed by Bozie Berger, the local boy

This Morning

WITH SHIRLEY POVICH

It is always a great temptation to rear back and cut loose with both typing fingers at the big shots who dip into the rights of the peepul and get away with it. Not only that, but it always goes over big with the peepul.

POVICH.

But this morning this department is unable to work itself into a high state of indignation at yesterday's decision of baseball's poohbahs to do away with the fans' vote on the American and National League All-Star teams.

As you may have heard, the fans aren't voting this year. Commissioner Landis and the two major league presidents decided to have it that way. They took the ballot away from the public and gave it to the 16 big league managers who will vote on the make-up of the All-Star teams.

* * * *

These All-Star teams used to be the people's choice. A Nation-wide poll of the fans named the players who would compete and the managers took these players and staged their game. It was pretty popular stuff. Each of the millions who cast a ballot had a personal interest in the game. The day of the game saw millions of grandstand managers observing the play of their choices by radio or via the newspapers.

Well, the big shots of baseball have decided that the fans' ballot didn't make for the best teams. There were good ball players that the fans were overlooking. And they decided, too, that the game had passed the novelty stage. Within the spectacle it afforded, they wanted an honest-to-goodness, knock-down-and-drag-out ball game, not a mere parade of stars.

So they reasoned that the 16 big league managers were in a better position to name the best players. And, personally, I have no quarrel with that logic.

* * * *

The fans are too prone to thumb the batting averages, identify the players with the highest figures and vote for them forthwith. But if it's a ball game they want, that won't work. The managers know best the players who will rise to the greatest heights under pressure, who will have the percentages in their favor, who are in the best condition at the time.

And methinks the fans would appreciate that. The play is the thing, as Hamlet said—not the show. If they want sensational baseball—the tops—then they want the managers to pick the teams.

That was a smart idea of the All-Star committee, too, that business of ordering all managers to desist from using any pitchers on the All-Star list in games for a period of three days before the All-Star classic here.

It required that kind of an order to make the managers keep the faith. In the manager's book, this All-Star game is a swell show, a good idea and very worthwhile but not important enough to interfere with the regular rotation of their pitchers in games which mean bread and butter.

Thus it was that when the All Star teams met in Cleveland in 1935, Manager Frankie Frisch of the Cardinals had nobody but a second-string Cardinal pitcher, Bill Walker, to start against the American Leaguers.

Manager Frisch had found it expedient to use Dizzy Dean the day before in an important game and he was not ready to pitch on the All-Star date. And Manager Bill Terry of the Giants wouldn't let the All-Star game interfere with Carl Hubbell's pitching schedule the day before. So Hubbell, too, was not available.

Consequently the American Leaguers rapped the daylights out of Walker and won the ball game. One reason why they won it was because Manager Walter Johnson of the Indians had generously withheld his pitching ace, Mel Harder, from regular duty in order that he could pitch in the classic.

But there will be no such problems for Manager Joe McCarthy or Manager Terry at Griffith Stadium on July 7. Any pitcher whom they may be tempted to call into duty will have sufficent rest to go in there and toil his three innings at top speed. And it will make for a better ball game.

And don't think the two leagues aren't taking this All-Star game seriously. Each wants to win it for the prestige it carries, particularly in those cities which are represented by both American League and National League clubs. In those cities, it hurts to lose—no fooling.

At The Post . . . .

Dear Al:

Those who bet the daily double today received 10 cents less than they would have gotten for a parlay on the same pair of winners. Peg Hanna, Washington trainer, will never have another poor day in his life. At least he said that he wouldn't if a certain horse won and the plater got home in front. What famous colonel is only getting 10 miles on a bottle of beer these days? Sammy Palumbo, the gem of the ocean, will resume riding tomorrow, having served out his suspension. T. C. Bradley, chief steward at Charles Town, was a visitor at this track. I can't do anything right. A guy writes in for my job on the day I picked nine winners—five at Hagerstown and four at Suffolk Downs. In addition, my best bets won at both tracks and even Clocker Mike's best bet won. These are beautiful days here in Maryland's mountain country and a trip to the races here makes a good day's outing—if one plays the right horses. Leon Garrett, the current saddle star here, couldn't ride a winner at the Oaklawn meeting last March. I believed that story about the horse being traded for a down payment on a second-hand car but I have my doubts about the one about Don Yates trading a horse for a bicycle pump.

First race—Aella turned in something that resembled her real race here the other day. Off that performance, I believe she is the logical choice. Radial should go well in this field, particularly if the mud comes up. GAYLASS to take care of the others.

Second race—Lilteen was a tip last out and turned in a good performance. Might be ready to down this kind. By Surprise is fit and looms as the one to beat. Crossing Over is in light and should be prominent.

Third race—Sun Belle seems the best suited in this field. Needs only the right handling. Miss Adeline is not the filly she was last year but this cheap company gives her a chance. Dickery Dock for the show end.

Fourth race—Chief Hollis and Flosilda promise to battle it out for the chief award in this short sprint. Both are as fit and ready as hands can make them. Small Chance to take care of the show money.

Fifth race—Soupcon seems headed for another set of brackets in this group. Likes the track and should score despite the rider. Canteret needed that last and still won. She will be a keen factor. Miss Symphony may be third.

Sixth race—The Swagman, easy winner of his last, should add another win in this group. Helen Bab and the lightly weighted Justa Gal may complete the money brackets.

Seventh race—I look for sharp improvement from Minna. I understand that Palumbo will ride. Jim Moss will be dangerous if in action. Pukka Heaven seems capable of earning third cash.

Best bet—Aella.

TOP SHELL, steadied along while setting and pressing the early pace, opened a good lead, but was put to severe punishment to barely last. PRECIOUS KING worked his way to the leaders the first time around and closed with a rush. ROUGH PLAYER was taken up several times during the early running, came between TOP SHELL and PRECIOUS KING with a belated rush and was going fastest at the end.

SIXTH RACE—About 1⅛ miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:20. Off at 5:21½. Winner, J. E. Crider's ch. m. STEPEE, hard ridden throughout, closed gamely under pressure to be up in the concluding strides. TELL IT drew out to a good lead at once, set good pace and tired badly in the closing sixteenth. PAULINE H., lacking early speed, worked her way up on the outside and closed full of run.

STRICTLY ABOUT JOE LOUIS . . . who will try to lift the heavyweight crown from the Irish brow of JAMES J. BRADDOCK in Chicago June 22 . . . Louis has no Chinese blood in his veins . . . which many claim in explanation of his slant eyes . . . this is not the truth although there is more than a trace of white and Indian blood in the Brown Bomber . . . much to his credit, Joe is fiercely proud of being a Negro . . . as are his comanagers, JOHN ROXBOROUGH and JULIAN BLACK . . . incidentally, both are college men . . . and Roxborough's brother once served in the Michigan Senate . . . one of Joe's favorite sports used to be horse-back riding . . . his handlers persuaded him to give it up . . . for fear their million-dollar investment would be permanently injured . . . Joe, who lacks the cultural background of his two managers, bought a house for his mother with the first important money he earned in the ring . . . he furnished it also, cluttering it with every article he ever had wanted . . . by the time he had finished, you couldn't move around in the place without tripping over some piece of furniture or gadget that Louis had wanted when he was poor . . . when he got married, Roxborough had a lovely apartment furnished for him in the best of taste . . . but Joe didn't like the atmosphere . . . so he got another apartment and furnished it to his taste . . . now his apartment looks just like his mother's home.

JACK BLACKBURN, Louis' trainer, takes anywhere from one hour to almost double that time bandaging Joe's hands for a workout . . . the bandaging of his dangerous mittens for a fight is an even more complicated process . . . he has such big hands he can hardly wrap them with the amount of gauze and adhesive allowed under the New York State Commission rules . . . but JOE JACOBS, manager of MAX SCHMELING, made him confnrm to the rules before Der Schlager went in to upset him.

* * *

Before he became even a good amateur boxer, Joe was the butt of all the jokes around Detroit gymnasiums . . . he was the big, sleepy, good-natured guy whose feet suffered all the hot foots . . . even Roxborough did not realize he had a great fighter at first . . . . and the Chicago and Detroit promoters who had a moral claim on his services did not think enough of his ability to tie him up . . . MUSHY JACKSON, who was then just another fight hanger-on, saw the Bomber in action and returned to New York to urge Promoter MIKE JACOBS to sew him up . . . Mike did . . . and has made several fortunes on his investment . . . Mushky now is one of Jacobs' trusted cohorts . . . BILL McCORMICK.

Pinch-Hitters Clinch Game For Indians

By the United Press.

New York, May 26.—The New York Yankees won their sixth straight game today, Lefty Gomez blanking the Detroit Tigers, 7-0, for his fifth win of the year.

The Yanks barraged a pair of Detroit rookies for 13 hits, including homers by Selkirk and Lazzeri. Joe DiMaggio led the attack with three singles. Coffman, who gave way to Gill in the second inning, was the losing pitcher.

Cleveland's Indians jumped back into second place by staging a four-run rally in the ninth to defeat the Philadelphia Athletics, 8-6. The victory was the result of two pinch hitters coming through with home runs. Bill Sullivan, batting for Pitcher John Allen, smashed his four-bagger in the sixth with two mates aboard to tie the score 4-4. Bruce Campbell, batting for Andrews in the ninth, hit one over the fence to start the winning rally. Four more hits followed, Julius Solters' single with the bases loaded driving in two counters and Pytlak's one-bagger accounting for the other. Philadelphia fell to third.

Free-Batting Game.

In a free-hitting game at Boston, the Red Sox beat the St. Louis Browns, 11-9. Each team used four pitchers with Wes Ferrell getting credit for the victory, and Bonetti being charged with the loss. The Sox collected 17 hits, Gaffke and Foxx hitting homers, and the Browns got 13, two of them four-baggers by Beau Bell and one a homer by Clift.

A three-run burst in the ninth gave the Chicago White Sox a 6 to 5 decision over the Weshington Senators.

In the National League the New York Giants pulled to within a game and a half of the leading Pittsburgh Pirates who were idle, by whipping the Cincinnati Reds, 6-3, running their winning streak to five games. Clydell Castleman who had to be rescued by Melton when the Reds threatened with two runs in the seventh was the winning pitcher and Hollingsworth, Cincinnati starter, was charged with the loss. The Giants outhit the Reds 12-9.

Mize Wins For Cards.

The St. Louis Cardinals kept within a half-game of the Giants by coming from behind, scoring four runs in the eighth, and winning, 6-4, over the Boston Bees. Mize's home run with two mates aboard was the lethal blow of the rally, and spelled defeat for Guy Bush, who had relieved Danny MacFayden. Mike Ryba who followed Warneke and Haines to the St. Louis mound, was the winner.

Only first division club to lose was the fourth place Chicago Cubs who succumbed, 6-1, to the Philadelphia Phillies in the face of Rookie Wayne Lamaster's three-hit flinging. The Phillies only got six safeties off Parmalee, Shoun and Bryant, but worked the trio for seven bases on balls to aid their scoring. The Cubs' one tally was Frank Demaree's circuit clout in the second. Martin homered for Philadelphia. It was a four run assault in the seventh, however, that drove Parmalee to the showers.

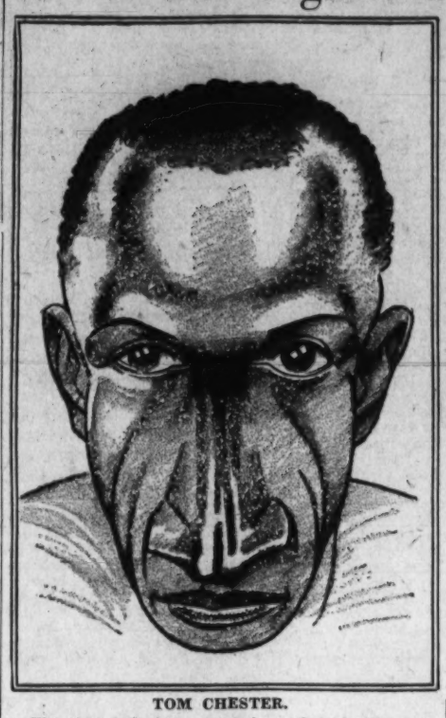
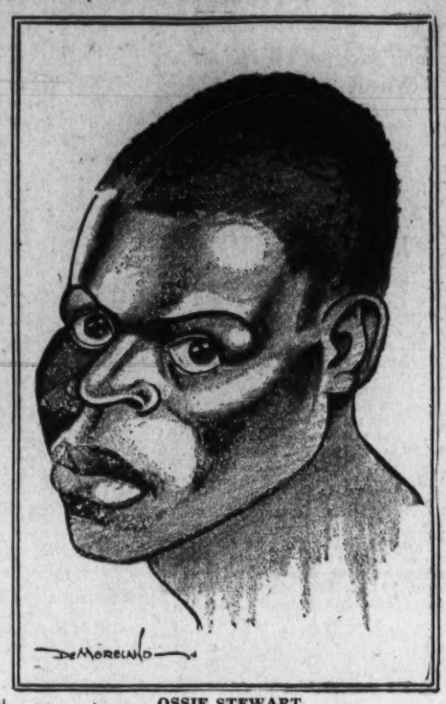
Fistic Figures in Police Benefit



TOM CHESTER.

This happy looking colored gentleman does not ordinarily wear such a gay expression, but apparently he is pleased at the prospect of fighting Ossie Stewart on the Police Benefit card at Griffith Stadium next Wednesday night . . . around New York, Tom is regarded as one of the best amateur middleweights ever developed . . . for three straight years he won every amateur title in his weight division in the Empire State . . . capturing the International, National and Metropolitan A. A. U. and Golden Gloves championships without recording a single defeat . . . since turning pro, Chester has beaten Max Marek, who defeated Joe Louis in the amateurs . . . and has fought with fair success such performers as Jackie Aldare, Solly Krieger, Mark Hough and Gene Dundee . . . the tough competition has seasoned him well and many believe he is on the threshold of becoming as great a professional as he was an amateur . . . his opponent on the police card should prove or disprove this belief.



OSSIE STEWART.

Chester's opponent, was not born in "Alabama, near Joe Louis' birthplace" as press agents would have you believe . . . he is a Baltimore boy, but now fights out of Pittsburgh . . . has had 49 fights and only one defeat has been recorded against him . . . that defeat came at the outset of his career, when Billy Edwards, then a seasoned campaigner, won a decision . . . Stewart proved his mettle in the losing bout by pulling himself from the floor twice . . . since starting to fight around here, Stewart has established himself as the reigning local colored idol by beating and knocking out Sammy Williams, stopping Rudy Marshall, a feared middleweight, and applying a nice shellacking to Joe Pimentel, the Puerto Rican titleholder . . . Stewart is a home boy . . . he supports his mother, brother and a sister . . . when not busy with footwork in the ring he likes to tap dance . . . and when not busy thumping opponents, he likes to thump out swing tunes on the piano . . . before the end of the summer, we may find him on top here.

Tony Manero won from the veteran Willie MacFarlane in the afternoon, 4 and 3, while Byron Nelson, the medalist, played the two hardest matches of the day against Leo Diegel and Craig Wood, and defeated them with subpar golf.

Johnny Farrell, the rain spoiling his usual faultless attire, was forced to the last hole twice against a pair of dark horses with like sounding names, George Schneiter and Charles Schneider, but won by 2 and 1 up margins.

Ky Laffoon, the dark-skinned Indian, played steady golf to dispose of John Shimkonis and Billy Burke, winning 5 and 4 and 2 and 1. The match with Burke was close all the way.

Jimmy Thomson defeated Ralph Guldahl in the afternoon in a battle of the Ryder Cup candidates, shooting a 34 on the first nine, two under par, and winning 2 and 1. Harold McSpaden went 20 holes in his second match against Bunny Torpey after beating Clarence Clark, the blond New Jerseyite, 3 up, in his first match.

Snead, followed by a large gallery in the morning despite a storm that forced the refreshment tents into havens of refuge, won easily over Jack Sabol, 4 and 3

Corn Climbs To 17-Yr. High; Wheat Slumps

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 26.—Frantic efforts to buy corn, rye and oats in time to deliver on May contracts whirled those grains wildly upward today 4½ to 7½ cents.

High-price records of the last 17 years were smashed by corn, with rye reaching peaks unequaled before since 1928 and for the first time ever known surpassing May wheat.

In striking contrast, wehat plunged down 4⅛ cents a bushel, owners of May wheat delivery contracts trying excitedly to let go of holdings before premiums over 1937 new crop wheat would vanish.

Canadian Clearings Indicate Prosperity

Ottawa, May 26 (AP).—Millions of check stubs bear evidence of a new faith in Canadian prosperity. After tallying up the total spent by bank checks in Canada in the first four months of 1937, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics announced today it had reached $12,525,000,000, compared with $11,132,000,000 in the same months of last year.

"The gain of 12.5 per cent is an excellent measure of the betterment over the early months of 1936," said the report. Sharpest increase was in the maritime provinces where the total of $254,317,000 was 35 per cent higher than 1936 figures.

The Market

New York, May 26.—An easier tone in Government bonds, lower prices for stocks and a mixed commodity market brought to a close a dull financial day. Stock turnover was around 600,000 shares, the second smallest business in over a year. July wheat rose 1⅛ cents to 118 cents a bushel.

Stocks continued to wabble between opposing views on business prospects. There is now general expectation that some decline in activity will take place this summer, if it has not already set in; but many shades of opinio can be seen on the extent of the recession. Certain factors which helped to sustain activity last year, among which was the two billion dollar soldiers' bonus and the increased layout of money for doles in other directions, are absent this summer.

On the other hand business itself is doing something to sustain its recovery. On that score may be mentioned the increasing pressure of corporations to install more efficient machinery and methods to offset the rise in labor and material costs, Those improvements may more than offset the expenditures by Government, which in any event go largely into quick consumption industries which are prosperous enough anyhow.

From the stock buyer's standpoint the chief worry is not so much the sum total of money taken in over the total of expenses for operation aside from ordinary taxes, but the amount which may be left for distribution to stockholders. There are strong reasons for thinking that the Government may not crack down too hard on the making of profits, since its fiscal health depends so largely on the ability of corporations and their stockholders to pay taxes.

Anxiety springs rather from the side of profits available for distribution. The British investor, for example, is finding that rearmament, while hailed as something which will help certain business activity in Great Britain is going to put a limit, and a rather low one at that, on the portion of profits that any company can pay in dividends. Our own fiscal policies are too sympathetic with those of the British for untroubled sleep by investors.

Relapse in Stocks.

Stocks on the whole were better in the opening deals than during the remainder of the trading. Steel's little hop at the start failed to arouse any enthusiasm, and as trading relapsed into the familiar dullness, prices developed a tendency to soften. Selling of railroad issues again was a discouraging factor, although this promises to be a better crop year than the past three or four.

Steels, motors and rails, which had resisted the decline in the early hours, gave way a bit in the late operations. Santa Fe, Chesapeake & Ohio and Union Pacific lost 1 to 2 points. Utilities were little changed. Oil, chemical, food, rubber and a few other groups were slightly lower. Early gains in the metal division were either canceled or sharply reduced. Smelters spurted for a while but soon slumped.

Both classes of New York Dry Dock advanced slightly on increased volume, after approval of the recapitalization plan. Panhandle preferred was good for more than half a dozen points. Other exceptions to the prevailing softness were Eastman, with a 5 point climb, Federal Mining, with 4 points, Hershey Chocolate and Detroit Edison. Steel preferred changed little.

U. S. Bonds.

Irregularity in Government bonds has quickly followed the flareup that came from the oxygen given by the Supreme Court's decision on social security. It hasn't taken the market long to return to its old consciousness that the future of the Government bond market lies in a brake to expenditure, a balanced budget, and a reduction in total debt, along with an easy money market. Most forces now seem to be working in the opposite direction.

As for the security law, it doesn't seem to secure much, either as a means of bond support or as insurance of old age. The collections under that head are thrown into the general fund, where they would not be needed were the expense items they pay eliminated. At the same time the fund would not be needed to support Government bonds were additional issues no longer necessary. What the market fears may happen is that, when funds are needed to make payments under the old age pension act, all the Treasury will have will be its own I. O. U.'s, which it can cash only by selling them to the market. The market is fast reaching the point at which it won't produce more funds.

That is the fundamental danger in the Administration's fiscal policy, i. e., not so much the present size of the debt alongside current requirements, as the doubtfulness of a considerable increase at some future time when more funds are urgent. Since the beginning of this depression the public debt has doubled If it is still around 35 to 40 billions when the next depression comes, no one can guess how money to carry the country over another acute period will be secured.

Gold Problem.

Worry over the gold problem seems to be greatest among those outside official circles. Many well-informed persons think that there is no serious cause for alarm over the apparent gold dilemma. Some British observers think that our Treasury cannot possibly cut the gold price and at the same time cannot possibly go on purchasing all gold offered, but there are persons on this side who not only think the Treasury will continue its present policy but that no trouble in long run will be caused if it does. Our purchase of gold, much as it keeps to the fore the danger of inflation, at least has a powerful advantage over the purchase of silver or the increase in the public debt for boon-doggling purposes, e. g., gold is money. It will continue to be regarded as the only satisfactory form of money, and it must be held in adequate amount to make possible any success whatever with currency management as now practiced by governments.

An elaborate sports program has been planned for the delegates and their wives, daughters and guests. As in past years, there will be golf and horseshoe tournaments, as well as numerous other forms of indoor and outdoor amusement.

The trip to and from White Sulphur Springs will be made on a special train of the Chesapeake & Ohio. T. Stanley Holland is chairman of the transportation committee.

Industrial Rise Is Maintained During April

New York, May 26.—Industrial activity advanced by only the usual seasonal amount during April, according to the regular monthly business survey of the National Industrial Conference Board. The seasonally adjusted indexes of production and trade remained substantially below the peak for the recovery period reached in December, 1936.

Greater than seasonal gains occurred in April in all classes of building, in production of steel ingots, electric power and zinc, and in machine tool orders. These advances were offset, however, by losses in production of automobiles, pig iron, bituminous coal, refined copper and newsprint, and in cotton consumption. Indexes of distribution and trade were also lower in April than in March, the declines in this field being reflected in recessions in bank debits and freight carloadings.

Automobile production rose to a total of approximately 535,000 units during April, but the advance was less than the usual seasonal amount, bringing adjusted output to a level about 12.2 per cent below the recovery peak reached in December of last year. Despite the prevalence of strike conditions in the industry, production in the first four months of the year exceeded by 11.7 per cent that for the corresponding months of 1936.

Steel ingot production again advanced during April, but on a seasonally adjusted basis was substantially lower than in three previous months of the recovery period, namely, January, 1937, and December and November, 1936. New orders have declined moderately since the recent announcement that three would be no advance in prices for third-quarter deliveries, but backlogs remain in sufficient volume to keep activity at a relatively high rate.

On the Air Today

Freeman F. Gosden and Charles J. Correll, better known to millions of radio listeners for the last eight years as "Amos 'n' Andy," apparently are open for a new sponsor. An announcement from the National Broadcasting Co. and the advertising agency which has handled their account on the air says:

"On January 1, 1938, the sponsor's contract with 'Amos 'n' Andy' expires. The 'Amos 'n' Andy' contract is the longest ever entered into in the history of radio. Even more significant is the fact that after this record run 'Amos 'n' Andy' are today, as through the years, America's favorite radio institution.

"Messrs. 'Amos 'n' Andy' have expressed themselves as feeling that their association with one product over so many years should be brought to a happy end, and that sponsorship should be transferred to another worthy major product."

Well, I don't know but that if I were the Messrs. "Amos 'n' Andy" I would hang right onto that association of eight years with considerable affection. Why bring it all to a "happy end?"

Naturally, the old order changeth, as I like to say in my original way, and "Amos 'n' Andy" are not in the position of leadership they enjoyed in the earlier period of their eight years of peddling tooth paste. Upstarts like Major Bowes and Jack Benny have entered the field and the sacred ratings compiled to represent to the broadcasting industry the mass radio audience's devotion to the current week's programs are not always kind. Veterans and unknowns march side by side if they strike the public fancy equally.

The Motion Picture Daily's national poll of last winter is the only clew to the popularity of "Amos 'n' Andy," but it should be fairly accurate. In the "Open Champion's" division, the blackface comedy team ranked thirteenth. Benny, Allen, Vallee, Helen Hayes, Cantor, Bob Burns, Crosby, Astaire, Jessica Dragonette, Lanny Ross and Nelson Eddy topped the veteran team.

In the "Comedians" category, Correll and Gosden were not mentioned in the first 10. In the classification, "Comedy Teams" they rated third, following Burns and Allen and Stoopnagle and Budd. In the "Drama" division, they rated eleventh, but few responding to the poll could be expected to classify the comedy serial as "drama." The other ratings give a far more fair appraisal of their drawing power.

Under the heading of "Comedy Programs," which should give a reasonably favorable basis of rating, Correll and Gosden drew seventh. Benny leads this field.

I still believe I wouldn't have their feeling about association with one product and transfer my labors to another worthy product. No sir.

U. S. to Postpone Naval Gun Action Until Early July

The United States will not decide what size guns will be the chief armament of the new battleships, the U. S. S. North Carolina and U. S. S. Washington, until early in July, Secretary of the Navy Swanson announced yesterday.

Plans of the two ships, bids on one of which will be opened June 17, are designed to provide for either 14-inch or 16-inch guns, he indicated. The decision is being postponed, the Secretary stated, because "we don't like to lead in this rivalry of guns."

Secretary Swanson implied the question of the American-built Russian battleship may be the reason for the delayed decision. He admitted there is an unnamed private company in the United States capable of building the giant guns.

Youth Is Arrested For 7 Robberies

A 19-year-old youth was being held at the Eighth Precinct Station last night for investigation after he is alleged to have confessed to more than seven housebreakings and robberies committed over a period of two years.

Charges of housebreaking, larceny and stealing Government property will be lodged against the youth, Chief of Detectives Bernard W. Thompson said yesterday. Seized by Detective Sergt. Eugene Lambert, the youth gave his name as Charles Stewart Taylor, 19, of the 3800 block Veazey street northwest.

Hundreds of dollars' worth of property was recovered from second-hand dealers and the boy's house, Lambert said. The loot included a yard-long airplane bomb, several oxygen tanks, binoculars, two rifles, several pistols and cameras and two bayonets.

G. W. U.'s Prettiest Coeds Decorated, Leaders Honored

George Washington University's three prettiest coeds, selected through the 1937 edition of the student annual, the Cherry Tree, were decorated at ceremonies yesterday afternoon in the university yard.

Dean Elmer Louis Kayser presented corsages to Ruth Leavitt and Beverly Squires, who were awarded second and third place in the annual, and placed a wreath of roses upon the head of Sue Slater, awarded first place.

He also introduced the eight members of the senior class who were selected for the Cherry Tree's "Hall of Fame" because of leadership in student activities. They are Ethel M. Nelson, Margaret Graves, Verna Volz Kiefer, Margaret Davis, Paul Brogren, Hal Kiesel, Ross Pope and Donald Sickler.

Uncle Henry had lots of time and lots of room for rich foods and heavy liquors. Modern man's menu is lighter . . . and when he drinks, he drinks lightly, and chooses a light whiskey.

A LITTLE matter of three or four hours of solid eating and drinking was nothing unusual for Uncle Henry. The idea was just this: Pack in the hearty foods and pour in the heavy liquors until you couldn't hold any more. Then stop. Perfectly simple, wasn't it?

Simple is the word for it, thinks modern man. His tastes are different. He definitely doesn't stuff. And when he drinks, he drinks lightly of a light whiskey like IRISH AMERICAN. This modern whiskey, with its distinctive tang and "personality," was especially developed for modern tastes. IRISH AMERICAN combines a robust pot still whiskey and a specially distilled American whiskey, and the result is happy indeed. As a straight drink, it's a social success everywhere. As a foundation for fine mixed drinks, it has a host of friends. Ask for it by its full name . . . get a treat you won't forget!
